INDICT M'GARRY IN COURT 'FIX' AND BAIL CASES

Malfeasance, Bond Fraud Charged.

Judge Eugene L. McGarry of the Municipal court was reported named in two true bills voted by the grand jury yesterday. One of the bills accused Judge McGarry of conspiracy to take false acknowledgements on bail bonds. The other, an outgrowth of the now notorious "fix" case, charged him with malfeasance in office.

It was the first time in the 33 year history of the Municipal court that a judge has been the target of reported grand jury action. Chief Justice John Sonsteby said that when he received official information he would ask Judge McGarry, who was elected to the court in 1934 for a six year term, to refrain immediately from hearing any more cases pending the outcome of the action against him. Judge Sonsteby does not have the power to suspend a judge of the court.

McGarry Protests Innocence.

"I don't believe I am guilty of any offense," Judge McGarry said late yesterday. "If I am indicted I want an immediate trial. And I want State's Attorney Courtney himself to prosecute the case."

Nine true bills in all were said to have grown out of the three weeks' grand jury investigation of McGarry's conduct in Felony court. [He was removed to a civil branch Sept. 5.] Also named in the conspiracy indictment, it was reported, were Sam Brin, west side saloon keeper and friend of McGarry, and Harold Gendon, novelty salesman and present owner of a $97 Bellwood lot often approved by McGarry as surety for bonds many times its value. The seven other true bills all named Brin and were based on his alleged forgery of Gendon's name to bail bonds.

Bond Forgeries Alleged.

Yesterday brought the first intimation that the state's attorney's office is in possession of evidence of forged bail bonds. Testimony regarding some fifty bonds approved by McGarry was given to the grand jury. McGarry's signature attested that the surety had appeared before him and signed the bonds.

Conviction on the conspiracy charge would carry a sentence of one to five years in prison. The penalty for malfeasance in office is a fine up to $10,000 and removal from office.

The malfeasance bill was said to be based partly on the fact that McGarry accepted more than three bonds a month from a nonprofessional bondsman who received pay for his services [Gendon]. This is in violation of Municipal court rules. It also contained a charge that Judge McGarry showed partiality in the alleged "fix" case.

Burglar Placed on Probation.

This involved a confessed burglar, Frank Klakowicz. Judge McGarry put him on probation, as a favor, it was charged, to Ald. Joseph Rostenkowski [32d].

This case first came to light on Aug. 10 when the state's attorney's office made the "fix" charges. There followed demands from the Chicago Crime commission that McGarry's conduct be investigated. The Chicago Bar association began an inquiry, which still is in progress.

After Judge McGarry's removal from Felony court, the state's attorney's office on Sept. 6 launched an investigation of bonds he had approved while on the Felony bench. Two days later this matter was taken before the grand jury. First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley and Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin directed the work of the jury.

Brin, who operates a saloon at 1410 Roosevelt road and another on the south side, has been sought by deputies and state's attorney's police, who wanted to take him before the grand jury for questioning.

Conscience Prompts Movie Sneaker Inner to Pay Up

Did you ever sneak into the movies when you were young? And how's your conscience now? John Mitchell, manager of the Genesee theater in Waukegan, received a letter with a dollar bill enclosed yesterday from Victor R. Eliason of Ames, Ia. Eliason is troubled, he wrote, because he had sneaked into shows in that theater when he was a youth living in Waukegan.

Hides in U. S. Home 7 Years, Says Bergdoll

New York, Sept. 27 [Special].—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, world war draft dodger, astounded a general court martial today when he testified he was in Philadelphia for seven of the 19 years he supposedly was living in Germany to escape serving a five year prison sentence.

Bergdoll told the court he returned to the United States in 1929, nine years after his conviction and escape from an army prison, and stayed in his mother's home for four years, never leaving the house. Then he went back to Germany for two years.

Returning to the United States again in October, 1935, Bergdoll said he again stayed in the Philadelphia house for three years. He went to Germany for the third time in October, 1938, and stayed until last May 25, when he returned and surrendered.

Tried by Army Officers.

Bergdoll is on trial now before a general court of 13 army officers on charges growing out of his escape from the military prison.

His amazing story of seven years spent in the United States was told to support the plea of his counsel, Harry Weinberger, that a two-year statute of limitation had expired and that Bergdoll could not be tried on a new charge. The army contends that the statute of limitation still is in force because time spent outside the jurisdiction of the United States does not count.

In attempting to prove Bergdoll's long residence in Germany, Maj. Archer Lerch, the army prosecutor, produced a passport application made in that country Oct. 1, 1934, in which Bergdoll swore he had lived in Germany since 1920.

Bergdoll was followed on the stand by his mother, Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, and his wife, Bertha. They corroborated his testimony.

Tells of Entry in 1929.

Bergdoll told the court he entered the United States in 1929 through Canada and traveled on a passport issued to Joseph Amman, a hotel porter. He said he made the second trip to the United States by the same route and used the name of John Sparks.

When he returned to Germany in 1933 and 1938, Bergdoll said, he sailed from New York aboard German liners, using the name Bennett Nash.

An agent of the shipping line produced passenger lists for May, 1933, and October, 1938, which contained the name Bennett Nash.

Bergdoll was 23 years old in 1917 when the United States entered the world war. Joint owner with his mother of a fortune of $800,000 left by his father, a wealthy brewer, he had lived the life of a playboy.

Bergdoll registered for the draft, sought exemption on the ground he was a manufacturer of automobile parts and farmer, and was summoned for examination. He ignored the order and was declared to be in the military service of the United States.

Fugitive Many Months.

From Aug. 8, 1918, to Jan. 7, 1920, Bergdoll roamed the country, sending taunting notes to the draft board and military authorities. He was trapped in his mother's home Jan. 7, 1920, and convicted of army desertion on March 4, 1920. He was sentenced to be dishonorably discharged and to serve five years at hard labor.

Two months later Bergdoll told army officers he had buried $160,000 in gold in Maryland and asked to be taken there under guard to recover the money. Permission was granted and on the way the party stopped at his Philadelphia home, where by a ruse he escaped from two army sergeants, fled to Canada, and went to Germany. Today Bergdoll said the money actually was hidden in his mother's home and he had recovered it on his first trip home.

Bergdoll married Bertha Franck in Germany in 1926. Four children were born to them before she came to the United States in 1936 to try to arrange for his return. A fifth child was born to her in 1937 in Philadelphia at the time Bergdoll says he was there.

ENGINEER'S WHISTLE AWAKENS TOWN, BUT SAVES LUMBER YARD

Residents of Hebron, in McHenry county, were indignant yesterday at the North Western freight train engineer who aroused them long before dawn with harsh blasts of his locomotive whistle. But they were glad he had whistled when they thought it over last night.

The engineer awakened them to let them know a huge barn on the George Nichols farm was burning. Although the flames destroyed it with a loss to building, farm equipment, and stored corn of $8,000, the warning came in time for firemen and volunteers to save a lumber yard a short distance away.

Florida Rapist Slayer Guilty; Death Penalty

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 27 (AP).—Charles Jefferson, bogus talent scout who confessed slaying a 17 year old movie struck school girl, was convicted tonight of first degree murder without a recommendation for mercy. The death sentence is mandatory. The jury, which had heard Jefferson admit killing Frances Dunn of Miami with a hammer and a butcher knife, deliberated 4 hours and 5 minutes.

Charles Jefferson.

Counsel Plans Appeal.

The defendant's counsel had said he would appeal to the Supreme court if Jefferson was sentenced to die.

Judge C. E. Chillingworth was expected to pass sentence later in the week.

Jefferson apparently had entertained little hope. Before the jury retired he had said:

"I'm ready for the worst. I can't expect anything else."

The 29 year old prisoner, appearing as the sole defense witness, readily admitted clubbing and stabbing Miss Dunn, 17 years old, the day after he lured her and Jean Bolton from their Miami homes with promises of a chance in the movies.

Denies Raping Victim.

But he denied rape preceded the killing, and said he struck only after Miss Dunn and Miss Bolton had quarreled about aiding him in carrying out a kidnaping hoax for publicity purposes.

The tall defendant insisted Miss Bolton stood by while he struck down her schoolmate, contradicting Miss Bolton's testimony that she sat terror stricken in Jefferson's car.

Jefferson said after he had driven the girls to a lonely beach road north of Miami early last August, he announced to them they were being kidnaped and Jean suggested such an abduction might prove good nation-wide publicity for a coming movie career.

But Miss Dunn refused to join in such a hoax, he said, and while she and Jean quarreled he struck down Frances with a hammer.

Cost of Conflict for Year Is 8 Billions.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Sept. 28, Thursday (AP).—The Bank of England today reduced the rediscount rate from 4 to 3 per cent. The reduction, after five weeks of the 4 per cent rate, was regarded as a vital step in adjusting Great Britain's war economy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27.—This country prepared to tighten its belt today—long war or short war.

It learned from Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, that the war bill for the current year will be something like 2 billion pounds, or $8,000,000,000, at the present rate of exchange.

Simon let out this gloomy estimate this afternoon in introducing his emergency war budget, which supplements and extends last April's budget. The expenditure, Sir John revealed, will be covered approximately on a 50-50 basis between loans and taxation, with the taxpayers digging down for the biggest income levy in the history of the isles.

Income Tax of 35 Per Cent.

Simon disclosed that the war financing program calls for a retroactive income tax of seven shillings [$1.40] on every pound [$4], and that next year's income tax rate will be $1.50 to the pound. In other words, the standard tax on income until next March 31 will be 35 per cent. For 1940-'41 the rate will rise to 37.5 per cent. Up to today the rate had been 27.5 per cent.

[The British income tax during the world war reached 30 per cent.]

Increases also will be made in the surtaxes. Incomes of $8,000 will pay an additional 26 cents on each pound, while incomes of more than $120,000 will pay $1.92 additional on each pound.

The tax on beer also will be raised so that the consumer will pay 2 cents more a pint. A pint will cost 20 cents instead of 18 cents.

Boosts on Wine, Tobacco.

New tax levies also will be laid on sugar, whisky, wines and tobacco. Death duties on estates beween $40,000 and $200,000 will be increased 10 per cent. Estates valued at more than $200,000 will pay 20 per cent more. The maximum rate of taxation on large estates now is 60 per cent.

Simon also announced introduction of an excess war profits tax, modeled on the armament excess profits duty. The tax will be applied to the whole field of trade and industry at a rate of 60 per cent on any excess profits over the prewar standard since March 31.

Simon indicated that the government is considering the possibilities of a capital levy on individual wealth.

Simon recommended a Spartan existence for every one. He called for curtailment of civilian demands on industry, advised local authorities to cut to the bone expenditures on air raid precautions and other schemes, and urged citizens to save all they could with the idea of investing in war loans.

Pound a Good Medium, He Says.

Simon declared that despite all this the pound sterling is not licked. It is still a good medium in international trade while the German mark is worthless in that respect, he declared. Simon proposed to promote export trade despite the war.

Opening his statement, Simon recalled that when parliament adjourned in August the total authorized expenditures were $5,812,000,000, of which $2,008,000,000 was to be borrowed. On Sept. 3, at the outbreak of the war, parliament voted an additional credit of $2,000,000,000. Even this figure, approximating $8,000,000,000, he warned, might be insufficient to cover all requirements up to March 31, 1940.

Sir John estimated that under present conditions the national revenue based on the April figures would amount to only $3,560,000,000 instead of $3,768,000,000.

The new taxes imposed today, he calculated, would bring in $428,000,000 during the remainder of the cur-

A DAY AT NAZIS' FRONT REVEALS IT'S A QUIET WAR

BY LOUIS LOCHNER.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Sept. 27 (AP).—Today I toured a long stretch of Germany's west wall, and here's all that happened on the western front as far as I could see:

Ten thousand feet above Saarbruecken, now an unpeopled ghost city, six German pursuit planes chased and shot at a French plane.

Artillery was fired from a point five miles from Zweibruecken to another spot a mile and a quarter from the city.

About 6 p. m. random artillery shots were fired near Zweibruecken. The Germans called this firing the "vesper blessing" because it takes place daily at the same hour.

Follows Siegfried Line.

Today's journey took me from Trier, on the Moselle river, to the Saar river and the Saar valley and to Kaiserslautern in the Palatinate, always following the Siegfried line.

Germans said that desultory shots had been fired in the early morning from the French heights opposite Saarbruecken. It was certain that neither Saarbruecken nor Zweibruecken was hit by the French during our stay, nor could I detect any signs that these principal Saar valley centers had been hit previously.

Numerous German officers and privates with whom I talked said not a single German pillbox had had to return French fire. The Germans reported that the only daily fighting, outside of occasional exchanges in the air, is near Zweibruecken. It is here that the "vesper blessing" sounds. At 6 p. m. the sun is at the backs of the French and the German positions are best visible to them. Not much harm is done, however, on either side, the Germans said.

Saarbruecken, an industrial city of 69,000 inhabitants, with valuable steel and iron works, is dead. The population has moved out. Signs on many shops read, "Evacuation of this business has been completed." Yet the French, so far as I could observe today, make no effort either to seize it, which might cost considerable loss of life because of strong German fortifications surrounding it, or to shell it directly.

Sees Attack on French Plane.

With our military escorts I entered the dead city with two other American newsmen in full view of the French. It appeared that had they desired the French easily could have picked us for easy marks. The German officers accompanying us made no effort to conceal their uniforms indicating their rank. Nothing happened.

We were able to press forward to a street only a mile from the French line. We felt almost disappointed that nothing was happening, and then we suddenly heard the roar of motors far above us.

Our military guides estimated the planes to be at an altitude of 10,000 feet. German pursuit planes were chasing one French ship.

Tracer bullets indicated they were hitting their mark. The next moment, through strong field glasses, I saw a jet of fire issuing from the French plane. By a power dive, however, the pilot managed to choke it off. He soon disappeared from our view. Whether he landed safely behind his own lines we could not determine, but an army communique subsequently reported him shot down.

The Saarbruecken industrial plants have carted away their valuable machinery as well as steel and ore reserves. The German guide told us

THAELMANN, GERMAN RED CHIEF, REPORTED RELEASED FROM PRISON

BERLIN, Sept. 27 (AP).—An unofficial but trustworthy source said tonight that Ernst Thaelmann, former communist chieftain in Germany, and his associates had been released from prisons and concentration camps as a result of the German-Russian cooperation. Placards and books attacking communism have been removed from public view.

Thaelmann, twice a candidate for the German presidency, was arrested March 3, 1933, soon after Adolf Hitler, his bitter enemy, became chancellor. His arrest followed the eighth fatal clash between his communists and Hitler's Nazis. No formal charges ever were placed against him. In 1933 it was said he was being held in connection with the Reichstag fire.

In his first presidential campaign in 1925 Thaelmann, who boasted he once was a hobo in the United States, placed fourth. He was a poor third to President von Hindenburg in 1932.

Bulgaria Joins Parade

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 27.—Dobri Bojiloff, Bulgaria's finance minister, will lead a delegation to Moscow to prepare a Russian-Bulgarian trade agreement. It was reported that Russia was ready to take over Bulgaria's export surpluses, chiefly tobacco and textiles, and that Bulgaria would import petroleum products and agricultural machinery. There also will be negotiations concerning a direct air line between Sofia and Moscow.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 27.—Europe was shocked tonight by curt demands made on the little Baltic nation of Estonia by soviet Russia.

One of the demands concerns naval bases along the Estonian coast, including the islands of Dagoe and Oesel. Soviet control of such naval bases would enable Russia to dominate the northern part of the Baltic sea.

Russia, furthermore, has warned Estonia and Finland that their navigation rights are to be restricted. It was understood that Moscow also presented formal demands for control or stronger influence on islands of strategic importance now held by Finland and other nations bordering the Baltic. Russia, too, is angling for an outlet to the Baltic through Danzig, the former free city annexed by Germany.

All Eyes on Moscow.

All eyes in Europe were turned on Moscow. There foreign ministers of four nations—Russia, Germany, Estonia, and Turkey—gathered amid an atmosphere of mystery. Each of the three visiting statesmen had a different mission to perform.

European diplomats were both excited and perplexed in as much as little or no information of the negotiations leaked out from within the walls of the Kremlin.

Some professed to see Dictator Josef Stalin and Adolf Hitler reaching a military alliance, which would have an important effect on the conduct of the war. Others speculated on the possibility of Russia figuratively taking over Estonia.

"Anything may happen," remarked a Baltic diplomat.

Torpedoing Angers Russia.

Russia's demands on Estonia coincided with an announcement by Stalin's government that a soviet steamer had been sunk off the Estonian coast by an unidentified submarine.

Russia was enraged over the torpedoing of the Metallis, a 4,000 ton freighter, near Narva bay. Five of the freighter's crew of 24 were missing. Nineteen crewmen were said to have been picked up by soviet patrol ships.

The press loosed a blast at Estonia and accused the nation of harboring naval bases for foreign powers.

Estonia Protests to Russia.

Estonia, meanwhile, sent a note of protest to Moscow after soviet bombing planes appeared over Tallinn, the Estonian capital, and other towns. The bombers ostensibly were searching for the runaway Polish submarine Orzel, which escaped from the Tallinn harbor the day after soviet troops invaded Poland.

[The Orzel, carrying 16 torpedoes, left Tallinn Sept. 18. The vessel voluntarily had been interned. Two Estonian guards aboard the submarine were held prisoner for three hours after the escape. They were released in a small boat and rescued. Russians charged the Orzel's escape was arranged with Estonian aid.]

Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, who reached Moscow this evening, met with soviet leaders at the Kremlin at 10 p. m.

[An Associated Press dispatch said the conference continued until 2:30 a. m. today.]

Discuss Polish Questions.

A communique said Von Ribbentrop, Stalin, Premier-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, Count Friedrich Werner von der Schulenburg, German ambassador to Moscow, and Alexander Shkartzev, soviet ambassador to Berlin, sat in on the conversations.

The communique said the conference was devoted to discussions of "questions connected with developments in Poland." The conference, it was said, would continue tomorrow.

Von Ribbentrop, who was accompanied to Moscow by Albert Forster, Nazi governor of Danzig, hopes that in personal conversations with Stalin Germany and Russia will be able to draw a revised map of central Europe. This would involve the fate of Poland, the Baltic states, Finland, and the whole southeastern part of Europe, which the Nazis and soviets want to unite through a Monroe Doctrine of their own.

Official circles in Berlin indicated the negotiations involve "mostly political questions, since military matters are settled as by a miracle."

Everything Up to Stalin.

Von Ribbentrop visited Moscow recently to conclude a nonaggression treaty with Russia. Instead of insisting upon a return visit by Molotov he traveled to the soviet capital because everything depends on Stalin—as one Nazi official put it in Berlin.

The Nazi official said a mere formal visit by Molotov to Berlin would make it impossible to perform real work quickly.

On Von Ribbentrop's previous visit to Moscow Molotov barely opened his mouth while Stalin made all the decisions. The Germans know that under the present conditions Stalin could not be induced to leave Russia. Therefore they dropped traditional protocol red tape for the sake of a direct talk with the master of Russia.

Von Ribbentrop and Stalin hit it off very well during the negotiations for a nonaggression pact, and at a formal banquet in his honor Stalin toasted his guest in champagne with the German words, "Good friendship to Germany," which were the only four German words he knew.

While Von Ribbentrop was engaged in his conference with the Russians, Karl Selter, foreign minister of Estonia, and Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister, were cooling their heels awaiting the time when they will meet with members of the soviet government.

Selter's Second Visit.

Selter arrived in Moscow 15 minutes after the German foreign minister and his party reached the capital in three planes. It was Selter's second visit in three days. None knew the purpose of his trip to Moscow other than that it was on "urgent business."

The presence in Moscow of Saracoglu, the Turkish statesman, heightened a belief in some diplomatic quarters that Russia was preparing to spring another surprise in war-torn Europe.

Germans in Berlin said Turkey "is beginning to realize that the British guarantee to protect her independence is more of a liability than an asset and it would be comprehensible if, in negotiations with Moscow, she would decide to renounce her agreement with England."

The Germans expressed the hope that new concessions from Turkey will induce Russia to devote more interest to the Black sea and the Mediterranean.

Japan Figures in Diplomacy.

Japan apparently is playing an important part in the Moscow negotiations. Shigenori Togo, the Japanese ambassador, conferred with Molotov last night.

Moscow's demands on Estonia have frightened Finland. That nation is especially interested because her Aland islands will be seriously threatened and her maritime commerce will come under soviet control should Estonia be obliged to bow to Russia.

[The Aland islands lie midway between Finland and Sweden, about 150 miles northwest of the Estonian island of Oesel.]

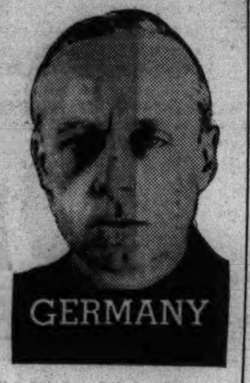
Even Sweden, softened by 100 years of peace, is alarmed at the possibility of a strongly fortified soviet base at Oesel within a short distance from her capital at Stockholm. She also fears that the soviet government would be able to halt her profitable exports of exceptionally high grade iron ore from the port of Lulea on the gulf of Bothnia to Germany.

Nazi Police Break Up Lines of Women Before Stores

BERLIN, Sept. 27 (AP).—Police today broke up lines of women formed before stores. It was reported some women who were reluctant to move were obliged to peel potatoes for soldiers.

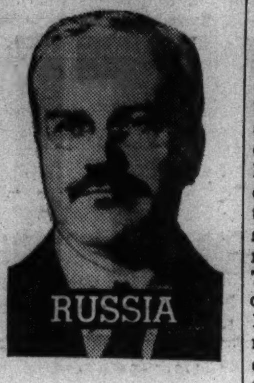
Who's Who in Diplomacy at Moscow

Following are sketches of the foreign ministers of four European countries who met yesterday in various conferences in Moscow, the soviet capital. Secret negotiations are under way which statesmen fear may further complicate the continent's affairs.



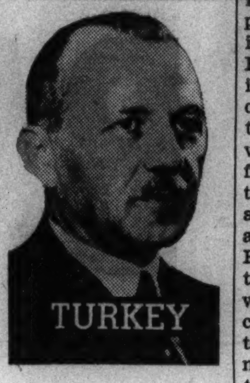
Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Joachim von Ribbentrop has been foreign minister of Germany since Feb. 4, 1938, when he was appointed by Hitler in an army and diplomatic shakeup. He is 46 years old. He won the Iron Cross fighting in the German army in the world war. In 1934 Von Ribbentrop was appointed special emissary on disarmament affairs and was German ambassador to Great Britain from 1936 until he became foreign minister.



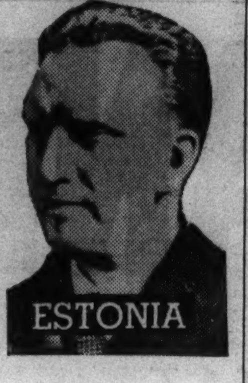
Vyacheslav Molotov.

Vyacheslav Molotov was appointed commissar of foreign affairs for soviet Russia last May 4, succeeding Maxim Litvinov. He is 49 years old and is generally regarded as second only to Dictator Josef Stalin in the soviet inner circle. Molotov is also chairman of the council of commissars. He has been a member of the communist party since 1906 and was several times exiled and imprisoned by czarist Russia.



Sukru Saracoglu.

Sukru Saracoglu has been prominent in Turkish politics for many years and was appointed foreign minister two years ago. He is well known as an economist and has consistently urged the necessity for maintaining Turkey's security in the Mediterranean. Saracoglu is a former minister of finance and was minister of justice in 1932. He has been a delegate to Paris on negotiations on the Turkish debt.



Karl Selter.

Karl Selter, minister of foreign affairs for Estonia, is one of the foremost economists and politicians in eastern Europe. He is 41 years old. During the world war he fought in the Russian and Estonian armies. From 1922 to 1927 he was judicial counsellor to the Estonian ministry of war, and later acted in a similar capacity at the ministry of justice. In 1932 he was appointed commerce counsellor.

FEAR PRESIDENT HAS AGREED TO POLICE FAR EAST

Military Activity in Pacific Cited.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—With the eyes of America focused on the European war, the administration's moves in the Pacific since the outbreak of that conflict, which definitly show that the United States has undertaken to police the Far East, have gone unnoticed.

In the last few weeks, at the suggestion of the White House, the navy is preparing to send some of the units based on the west coast to the Hawaiian Islands. The army is making ready to send men and guns to strengthen Pacific outposts.

Already a squadron of planes and six submarines have been sent to augment the Asiatic force, purportedly in the interests of maintaining American neutrality. The work of establishing and strengthening naval and air bases in the Pacific, authorized by the last session of congress, is under way.

May Be Taking Police Job.

These things together with the denunciation of the 1911 commercial treaty with Japan cause observers to believe that President Roosevelt is assuming the white man's burden in the Far East so that Britain and France can mass their might against Germany in Europe.

It is expected that the next step on the part of the administration, if Japan does not heed the series of portents, which this nation has already offered, will be to slap an embargo against Japan upon the expiration of the denounced treaty in January. The cutting off of American raw materials and American purchases particularly of silk, will seriously cripple Japan as she needs the raw materials for war and the American purchases to finance her China operations.

An embargo resolution was introduced at the last session of congress by Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. It was dropped, however, when it was pointed out that such action would violate the 1911 commercial treaty. The administration's next move was to denounce the treaty and pave the way for an embargo.

No Move for New Treaty.

No move has been made on the part of this country looking toward a new treaty or extension of the old. The Japanese ambassador, Kensuke Horinouchi, has held several conferences with the state department which seemed to indicate exploratory conversations were under way, but he has not followed up his visits since the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese armistice on the Outer Mongolian front.

At the navy department the impending establishment of a fleet at Hawaii was said to be under consideration for training purposes only. However, diplomatic circles saw the move charged with grave international significance.

The announcement was made as British and Japanese troops exchanged shots in China as the climax of the Japanese demand that France and Britain get out of China. Japan has said she will be responsible for maintaining Chinese neutrality.

Follows World War Precedent.

Japan, in making her demand on Britain and France, showed that she would wait no longer this time than she did in the world war to press home her advantages while other great occidental powers with interests in the orient are involved at home.

In the world war Japan swept into German colonies, then occupied German concessions in North China and finally presented China with a drastic 21 point ultimatum that would in effect have made China a Japanese protectorate.

The United States told Japan she could not see Japan assume domination of China with indifference and encouraged China to resist. Japan backed down and modified her demands.

In the present situation, Mr. Roosevelt is moving to block Japan by a demonstration of force and by hanging the embargo threat over the head of Tokio.

Suspect Secret Understanding.

The administration's operations in the orient were seen by observers as another indication that the Roosevelt neutrality policy means the extension of every aid to France and Britain and the throwing of every stumbling block in the path of Germany and nations aiding her.

The latest Pacific moves were seen as giving added confirmation to the previous suspicions of Senators William E. Borah [R., Idaho] and Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], veterans in the battle against foreign entanglements, that Mr. Roosevelt had concluded an unwritten alliance with Britain and France under which this nation in the event of a European war would undertake to maintain the status quo in the far east.

Fleet Split Three Ways.

At the navy department officers said that the plan to send a portion of the fleet to Hawaii for a considerable stay had been under consideration for some time. Ships of all types would be included in the Hawaiian unit.

The plan would divide the fleet into three main divisions—the body of the fleet on the west coast and the Hawaiian and the Atlantic scouting forces. The Asiatic squadron is not large enough to be considered a main division of the fleet.

At the war department it was said that any troop or material movements to Hawaii or other Pacific outposts would be considered restricted information. However, it was learned that there is considerable activity in several large army posts—officers, men and equipment are being moved secretly to secret destinations.

France Seizes 100,000 Tons of Sea Contraband

PARIS, Sept. 27 (AP).—The French navy announced tonight that it seized more than 100,000 tons of contraband in the first three weeks of the war.

GREEN FINDS RED PURGE IN FEDERAL OFFICES UNLIKELY

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, agrees with Congressman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] that the government should expel communists from its service. But Green declared yesterday, after his address to the American Legion convention, that he'll believe in such a purge only when he sees it accomplished. He added there was no chance the Congress of Industrial Organizations, headed by John L. Lewis, could rid itself of Reds.

"The National Labor Relations board has many Reds in key positions," Green asserted. "Naturally they side with the C. I. O. in disputes and discriminate against the A. F. of L. The C. I. O. executive board, its directors, and its structural organization is 50 per cent communists. How can their ranks be purged?"

Green said he had seen no resentment among communists because "their leader Stalin" joined Hitler in the invasion of Poland. Instead, he said, both communists and Hitlerites were bragging about the combination.

URGE CIVILIANS BE SPARED LOSS OF CONTRABAND

PANAMA, Panama, Sept. 27 (AP).—A proposal to eliminate from contraband lists all articles destined for the civil populations of warring nations was submitted to the inter-American neutrality conference today by the delegates from Uruguay.

The proposal, which got immediate widespread attention and was expected to become one of the more controversial issues of the conference, called for a joint declaration along the following line:

"That it is inadmissible that war contraband lists include, either conditionally or absolutely, products or articles destined for the subsistence of civil populations, and raw materials and machinery used for peaceful industry."

WARSAW YIELDS TO NAZIS; TROOPS ENTER TOMORROW

Capital Torn by Bombings and Heavy Shelling.

BULLETIN.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Polish telegraph agency tonight published a dispatch under a Warsaw date line which said the Polish command for defense of the city was "indicating that resistance had been abandoned."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—The Polish capital, reported laid waste by bomb, shell, and fire, surrendered unconditionally today to the besieging German troops under the command of Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz. The city was under siege for 20 days.

Polish troops trapped in Warsaw were estimated to number 100,000. Official handing over of the city to the Germans is scheduled to take place on Sept. 29.

[The surrender was announced at 8:17 p. m. Five and one-half hours earlier, at 2:45 p. m., the Warsaw radio had been heard in Budapest, the announcer saying the city then still was holding out under terrific shell fire and air bombings.]

Two Defenses Hold Out.

The only islands of resistance left in Poland are the peninsula of Hela, north of Gotenhafen [Gdynia], which is kept constantly under fire by two German battleships lying off Danzig, and the fortress of Modlin, about 12 miles northwest of Warsaw, which is being heavily bombarded by German aircraft.

A German war communique today said:

"The Polish metropolis [Warsaw], which at the beginning of hostilities was regarded as an open [unfortified] town and therefore was respected accordingly, through measures of the Polish command, by restoration of old fortresses and supplying the civilian population with arms, was turned into a fortified area.

"Attacks yesterday brought the first line of fortresses in the north and the second line of fortresses in the south into our possession. Under the thrust of these attacks the Polish commander this forenoon offered surrender of the city and the military force. The chief of the army commissioned Gen. von Blaskowitz to conduct negotiations for the surrender."

Terms Not Revealed.

Terms of the surrender were not made known immediately, but it was indicated the Germans had insisted upon elaborate guarantees "to protect the civilian population."

It was regarded likely, too, the Germans had exacted effective guarantees to prevent attacks by the civilian population upon the occupying force, and had a military government ready to enforce such measures, to remove prisoners, relieve distress and stamp out any incipient epidemics.

Eight days after the German Polish campaign started on Sept. 1, German tanks invaded southwestern Warsaw for the first time. The next day they retreated. Four days later, on Sept. 13, the German pincers encircling the Polish capital closed when the army coming from Silesia and the East Prussian army joined forces southeast of Warsaw.

Iron Ring Closed.

On Sept. 22 the iron ring around Warsaw was drawn closer when the fortress at Modlin was cut off from the forces defending Warsaw.

On Sept. 16 the Germans proposed by radio to the Polish commander that he negotiate for the city's surrender, but no intermediary appeared as instructed.

A German spokesman here said that the army refrained for a week from assaulting Warsaw and that this restraint apparently was misinterpreted as weakness by the Polish command, so force was reapplied. In the last few days Warsaw was severely bombarded by German artillery and bombing planes.

Fuehrer Adolf Hitler today appointed Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt, who commanded the German army which invaded Poland from Silesia, military governor for Polish territory occupied by Germany. Civil administration in the occupied area was entrusted to Dr. Hans Franck, German commissar for justice.

More scattered Polish units are in the no man's land between the German armies which are retreating from and the Russians who are advancing to the demarcation line of the Narew, Vistula, and San rivers.

POLISH CAPITAL IS DESCRIBED AS A CITY OF RUINS

Failure of Water Supply Brings Fear of Plague.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 27 (AP).—Hymns were substituted for stirring military marches today as the Warsaw radio came back to life to tell with dramatic pauses the Polish story of the lingering hours of the German siege.

The station—silent since early Monday morning—returned suddenly to the air at 2:15 p. m. [8:15 a. m. Chicago time] to describe the "destroyed inferno" as bombs, shells, and fire tore and burned the once beautiful city into ruins. The broadcast lasted 30 minutes.

The announcer told a story of the deaths of more than 3,000 civilians today, the failure of the city water supply, and fear of plague—and still of the resistance of the Polish troops.

At that moment, he said, German bombing planes were throwing incendiary bombs into the center of the city.

Booming Heard Over Air.

Because the Germans could not capture the city, asserted the announcer, "they are systematically ruining it, one district after another, so the Polish soldier will have nothing more to defend, no reason for wanting to live."

Just then a dull booming came over the microphone. The speaker paused as if he, too, heard the artillery, then said, "Our troops are defending us and they will continue to protect us." Dull roars shook the microphone near the finish and the speaker stammered from time to time. It seemed as if the studio was being shaken violently.

The announcer pleaded for aid from Poland's allies and declared the morale of defenders and civilians was excellent.

Food Situation Tragic.

This is how the announcer described the situation in Warsaw:

"Food situation is tragic. . . . Our last hospital was destroyed by German shells today. . . . Dead and wounded are lying in the streets because transportation and communication facilities have broken down. . . . Fires rage unchecked. . . . Destruction of the Hospital of the Child Jesus shortly before noon caused the deaths of 17 nuns and three physicians. . . . Polish antiaircraft guns brought down eight raiding planes yesterday. . . . About 500 fires are burning. . . . About all that is left to burn is blazing. . . . All public buildings are either afire or already badly damaged. . . . Polish troops are holding out against savage and desperate Nazi attacks; in some places they have bettered their positions with bayonet charges. . . . We expect aid from our allies. . . . The city is razed but we live on."

A Polish army flyer who took off from a bomb pitted field in the heart of Warsaw and escaped through a barrage of German shells told a grim story today of tragic scenes.

He was Lieut. Col. Mateus Izycki, one of seven pilots who attempted to fly out of Warsaw at dawn last Monday. The makeshift plane he piloted made a safe landing somewhere in Hungary, and today he made his way to Budapest. What became of his fellow airmen, he doesn't know. The seven planes were all that were left in Warsaw.

The officer told of civilians creeping from cellars between air raids and artillery bombardments to bury the dead in parks and public squares.

Pall Hangs Over City.

The colonel related that a thick black pall, which never lifted, hung over the city, growing blacker each day when new fires were added to the flames of Warsaw.

He said:

"Warsaw could not last forever. Until Polish honor was satisfied, and only then, was surrender considered."

"From the air the city is a horrible sight," he related. "Hardly a building is intact. The city was ringed by six divisions of German soldiers whose artillery poured in shells unceasingly, aided by an average of 200 raiding planes a day.

"From 40 to 60 new fires were started daily from incendiary bombs. Only small fires could be handled; the big ones were left to burn. No gas was used throughout the siege, except for occasional tear gas charges against our artillery.

Big Buildings Toppled.

"It is a city where priests say mass in wrecked churches; a city of never ending bedlam where heavy bombs went crashing through four or five floors to topple an entire building.

"There's a no-man's land strewn with dead men, women and horses. Across this area, except where the Germans had reached outlying houses, our own artillery replied from behind barricades of overturned street cars, sandbags, buildings, stones and captured German tanks.

"We captured a number of German tanks by using hand grenades tied to bottles of gasoline. At times there was bitter fighting at close range."

All Sections Shelled.

Col. Izycki said the only time the Warsaw defenders had any rest was when the Germans took time out for lunch. "Otherwise," he continued, "the shelling was steady and methodical, striking every section of the city. There were freakish touches about it all. Ironically enough, the war ministry was one of the few buildings untouched when I left.

"The Germans captured our broadcasting aerials outside the city, but we kept using them from our downtown studios two days before they caught on.

"All hospitals were hit or destroyed and practically all medical aid was administered on the spot.

"On some captured German prisoners we found pamphlets promising them that by Christmas Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels would speak to them from London."

Kennedy Again Pleads with Americans to Rush Home

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Joseph P. Kennedy, the American ambassador, today renewed his appeal to Americans in the British isles to return home unless they have urgent reasons for staying. There still are 4,000 Americans in the United Kingdom. About 2,500 have made no plans to leave. Kennedy, in personal letters, assured them there are plenty of accommodations in ships provided by the American government.

Two Versions of Who Won One Battle

British and German authorities agree that a battle between British warships and German airplanes occurred Tuesday in the North sea. They sharply disagree, however, on the results of the battle. Below is each country's version of the action. The reader is left to decide which should be considered the more accurate account.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The long awaited trial of strength between bombing planes and battleships has begun in the European war, both the British and Germans disclosed today.

Twenty German bombers yesterday swooped out of the mists of the North sea, 150 miles off the Norwegian coast. It was reported a fierce battle ensued with a squadron of British ships, including battleships and an aircraft carrier.

Official announcement of the encounter was made by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in the house of commons and by the ministry of information.

Reports Raiders Driven Off.

The British reported that the German raiders had made no direct hits and that the bombers were driven off with the loss of one plane and damage to another.

Churchill told of the battle in reply to A. V. Alexander, a Laborite, who had asked if it were true that the Germans had sunk an aircraft carrier and damaged a battleship.

The first lord of the admiralty replied that he had received a wireless report from Sir Charles Forbes, commander in chief of the home fleet. He quoted the admiral's message:

"Yesterday afternoon in the middle of the North Sea a squadron of British capital ships, together with an aircraft carrier, cruisers, and destroyers, were attacked by about 20 German planes. No British ship was hit and no British casualties were incurred. One German flying boat was shot down and another was reported badly damaged."

The house cheered.

A Disputed Point in War.

Churchill then said that another German plane came down in the North sea and with her crew of four was picked up by a British destroyer.

Naval strategists are watching developments closely in clashes between the air and sea arm, for it is one of the disputed points of the war whether the bomber is or is not mightier than the battleship. Most British naval experts contend that a bomber cannot harm a battleship.

Churchill also told commons that the German liner Bremen was "believed to be in a northern Russian port." The Bremen has been unreported since sailing from New York Aug. 30. The admiralty last week characterized as absurd a report that the British had captured the liner. It said the ship was not in a British port. Earlier the Bremen had been reported safe at Murmansk, soviet arctic port.

BERLIN, Sept. 27 (AP).—Germany's supreme command declared today that the Nazi air force had "successfully attacked" several British warships in the North Sea.

A communique said the encounter took place yesterday "in the middle part of the North sea," and added:

"Besides one airplane carrier which has been destroyed, several severe hits were scored on one battleship. Our airplanes sustained no losses."

In Berlin this was interpreted to mean that a second British aircraft carrier—the Courageous, sunk Sept. 17, being the first—had been destroyed. But the communique did not name the British vessel.

Ships in British Unit.

"Battleships, airplane carrier, cruisers, destroyers" were in the British unit attacked, the communique asserted.

The airplane carrier was destroyed, but not necessarily sunk, German naval circles stated further.

The air force command said one 500-kilogram [1,102-pound] bomb, among others, had struck a British aircraft carrier squarely and that two 250-kilogram bombs had hit a battleship near her prow and amidships.

"The effect of those heavy bombs requires no further explanation," the command said, adding that all German planes returned to their bases after the attack.

Say Empire Defense Periled.

Germans tonight claimed that Britain now had only five aircraft carriers and that at least two of these were not ready for action since they were being overhauled.

The Germans held that aircraft carriers were of vital importance to England for defense of the empire. They argued that Singapore, for instance, could not be defended properly without help from such vessels.

British High Commissioner Named for Dublin Duty

DUBLIN, Sept. 27 (AP).—Premier Eamon de Valera announced today that the British and Irish governments had agreed on the appointment of a British high commissioner in Dublin because of the problems created by the war.

[Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons at London that Sir John Maffey had been appointed special representative in Ireland to supplement communication between the British and Irish governments.]

Sorry! Goering Tells Dutch After Nazis Fire on Plane

THE HAGUE, Sept. 27 (AP).—The German ambassador to the Netherlands, Count Julius Zech von Burkersroda, called at the foreign office today. He expressed regrets on behalf of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German air minister, for an attack by a German seaplane on a K. L. M. [Netherlands] airliner yesterday in which a Swedish passenger was killed. The attack occurred near Heligoland, German island naval base.

[In Stockholm the German chargé d'affaires expressed regret to the government over the attack and the death of the Swedish passenger.]

SWISS STAY OUT OF WAR WITH A NEUTRALITY LAW

Provisions Are Specific and Rigidly Enforced.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 27.—A powerful factor in keeping Switzerland out of the world war and preventing her involvement in any other conflict, despite her proximity to embattled nations, is the country's neutrality law. The law is specific in its provisions and is rigidly enforced.

It is receiving renewed attention at present because of the fight now getting under way in the American senate, with noninterventionists opposing the proposal of the Roosevelt forces to repeal the American neutrality act.

The Swiss statute states that "it is forbidden to prepare, undertake, maintain or favor in Switzerland in any way whatsoever any action hostile to any belligerent."

Bans Arms Exports.

To carry this out, this action formally forbids and stops by any means possible:

1. Exportation of arms, munitions, or explosives, or war material or pieces thereof to belligerent states, as well as the gathering together of any material of this nature near the frontier, or with the intention of having it transported across the frontier.

2. The purchase or acceptance of arms, war material and other articles of equipment brought upon Swiss territory by deserters. Such material should be handed to the nearest commander of troops or to police headquarters.

Further Restrictions if Necessary.

The law also provides that further restrictions on exportation of war materials can be established when necessary. It further forbids any activity in Switzerland which might favor a belligerent. Specifically prohibited are:

1. Establishing or joining any organization working for the benefit of the military interests of any belligerent, or creating or maintaining any enlistment offices for such purposes.

2. Creating or operating of any means for transmitting news—telephone, telegraph, radio, visual signaling, etc.—for the benefit of one belligerent, or construction or use of any sort of device intended to, or of a nature to, serve as means of communication with the land, sea, air, or economic forces, or war economic organizations of any belligerent.

Propaganda Prohibited.

3. Establishing or maintaining of any kind of propaganda service for the benefit of a belligerent.

The last provision is very strongly enforced and has resulted in the closing of foreign societies and organized propaganda agencies.

MINES THE CROP OF DEATH SOWN BENEATH SEAS

Luckless Ships Touch Inert Robots Into Life.

Like Jason sowing the dragon's teeth, the European powers planted a deadly crop beneath the sea during the world war. Mines went into the water inert mechanisms. But on contact with a luckless ship, they sprang to instant life and caused its destruction.

An estimated 215,600 mines were laid in waters all over the world from 1914 through 1918—172,000 by the allies and 43,600 by the Germans. The harvest in British shipping alone, exclusive of fighting craft, was 300 merchant ships and 200 mine-sweepers, all either destroyed or badly disabled by these invisible weapons. Losses to other combatants and neutrals were not as high as this, but they were undoubtedly heavy.

159 Fighting Ships Lost.

The number of fighting ships and auxiliaries belonging to all combatants which were admitted officially to have been sunk by mines was 159, of which Britain and her allies lost ninety-nine. The British lost 71 ships and Germany 52. Eight battleships and six cruisers represented allied losses in the heavier types, Britain sustaining the loss of five and four respectively. The Austrians lost one battleship, the Germans two cruisers.

Since the outbreak of the present war, it is logical to assume that both sides have been busy laying their available supply of mines and getting mine production under way at maximum speed. So far two neutral vessels are known to have been sunk in the Baltic, and destruction will inevitably proceed at an augmented rate as the seas are planted more thickly.

The submarine mine is a weapon adapted both to attack and defense. It can be laid to block the enemy approach to bases, and it can be placed in the path of the enemy's shipping. It will circumscribe the operations of an enemy fleet and it will compel the enemy to occupy a large force of vessels in keeping essential channels clear.

Weapon of the Weaker Power.

The mine, like the submarine, is the weapon of the weaker power, but during the last war the British with a clear superiority in fighting ships, used it out of necessity to cramp German submarine operations after the success of the U-boat campaign against merchant shipping threatened to win the war for Germany.

In 1918, when Britain and the United States laid 70,000 mines in the great North sea barrage from the Orkneys to Norway, and sealed the channel with 9,500 more planted from Folkestone to Cape Griz Nez, the U-boats were bottled up for the first time in four years.

A reasonable expectancy of the effectiveness of mines, according to the United States Naval Institute Proceedings, could not be greater than one out of three, but considering the cost of a submarine or surface vessel which a mine costing little more than $300 might sink, the waste is easily accepted.

Well placed, in a protected area of high strategic value in which enemy mine sweepers are incapable of operating, mines can accomplish much more than present a chance danger to the enemy. An example of the severe limitations they impose on naval operations is the British debacle in the Dardanelles, which must be traced to eighteen mines that turned back the combined fleet power of Britain and France.

Force of Fleet Nullified.

Similarly, the entire force of Germany's battle fleet was nullified by mines when the Germans attempted to take control of the Gulf of Riga in 1916. Caught in a veritable hornet's nest, they limped back to their home ports to put three of their greatest ships in the dock for repairs.

New and speedy mine layers can be used in modern tactics to cut across the head of enemy formations in battle. The mine, as a tactical weapon, offers as great possibilities as that patient, awaiting agency of destruction, the moored mine.

In mine operations against merchant shipping, mine fields were usually placed on known trade routes, near lightbuoys or channel markers or light-ships. Germany placed 11,000 mines in British home waters during the war, and the British loss in the first six months would have been far greater had England not employed more than 1,000 vessels in mine sweeping operations in this one zone.

The first German mines were laid at the mouth of the Thames in 1914, and in operations near such heavily traveled points submarine mine layers were employed, since they could operate in absolute secrecy. During the war the small German UC boats could carry but 18 mines and the larger type 42, but the carrying capacity of a submarine mine layer in the present war will be closer to 60 mines. These, of course, will be placed in the most advantageous spots, while surface mine layers carry out volume planting in less exposed areas.

North Sea Greatest Field.

The greatest mine field laid in the world war was in the North sea, covering 242 miles of open sea. A field of this nature might be likened to a very rough, treacherous stretch of country whose crossing would be a desperate venture, rather than to a country protected by a single barrier, such as the Great Wall of China, requiring one great effort to cross.

There are three types of mines: stationary, floating, and controled, or observation, mines.

An observation mine is exploded from shore when a hostile ship is seen attempting to pass over it. It can be rendered harmless to friendly ships by simply cutting off the circuit from the control station. This type of mine is mostly used for defending the approaches to harbors, and has a limited utility.

Floating mines are banned by international law and their use is curtailed out of regard for the fact that, since it does not discriminate between friend and foe, it is less safe for a combatant than the anchored type. Floating mines travel beneath the surface, held at a constant depth by a hydrostatic valve.

Anchored Mine Used Most.

The anchored mine is the type in almost universal use. Its two principal parts are the mine sphere, either globular or pear-shaped, and the mine anchor. These are held together until dropped from a mine layer. The Mark VI. mine, developed by the United States during the war, was a representative type. The total weight of mine and anchor was 1,400 pounds, of which the T. N. T. charge was 300 pounds.

The mine case was formed of two hemispheres of steel welded together, and the firing mechanism was contained in a central axis extending along the case. The diameter of the case was 34 inches.

Since T. N. T. is impermeable to water, it could be submerged indefinitly without losing its explosive power. The mine was so safe in handling that the great North sea field was laid without a single accident. The detonator and firing mechanism, controled by hydrostatic valves, were inoperable until the mine was well submerged.

The anchor was a rectangular box of steel plate, weighing 816 pounds, with a mooring cable, wound on a drum, contained within it. A plummet, attached to a line, hung below the anchor, and by regulating the length of the plummet line, the mine could be made to set itself automatically at any desired depth.

Plummet Controls Depth.

When the plummet reached the end of its cord, it released the mine from the anchor. As the anchor descended, the mooring cable unwound, until the plummet struck bottom, when the cable drum was locked and no more cable allowed to unwind. The descent of the anchor caused the mine to be drawn under the water, so that when the anchor rested on the bottom the mine was moored beneath the surface a distance equal to the length of the plummet cord.

The mines would explode upon being struck by a passing vessel. Detonators for electrically fired mines were fired by a small length of wire, termed a "bridge," around which was placed a priming that burned and detonated a small charge of fulminate of mercury or some other explosive, which in turn detonated the main charge. The detonator for mechanically fired mines was exploded by the friction of the striker entering it.

Antennæ extending 35 feet, if touched by a metal ship, were sufficient to explode the mine. The result was that the danger zone was largely increased, and in planting the North sea barrage, the number of mines required was reduced by two-thirds.

Mines Rest on Anchors.

In surface mine-laying vessels the mines rest on their anchors, which have wheels on the bottom running on rails laid on the decks in a fore and aft direction. The mines are hauled along these rails until they enter mine traps placed in ports cut in the overhanging stern of the ships. These traps hold in position ready for letting go. When the trap is opened the mine anchor runs down a short track and drops in the water. In the case of mine-laying submarines the mines are carried in tubes or chutes formed in the hull, from which they can be released one at a time. Surface craft not equipped with special gear drop the mines with a derrick boom.

The principal defense against mines is the mine sweeper. The simplest and most effective system of sweeps in the world war was for two boats to take positions 400 to 500 yards apart, with a long cable of serrated wire between them, weighted in the center to keep it well submerged. Moving forward, the ships swept mines to the surface with the cable or exploded them harmlessly. If the mine's mooring cable were cut by the serrated wire the mine would bob to the surface to be exploded by rifle fire.

This work was extremely hazardous. In the first two months of war, for every two mines swept up one trawler was lost. By 1918, this rate was reduced to one loss for 80 mines.

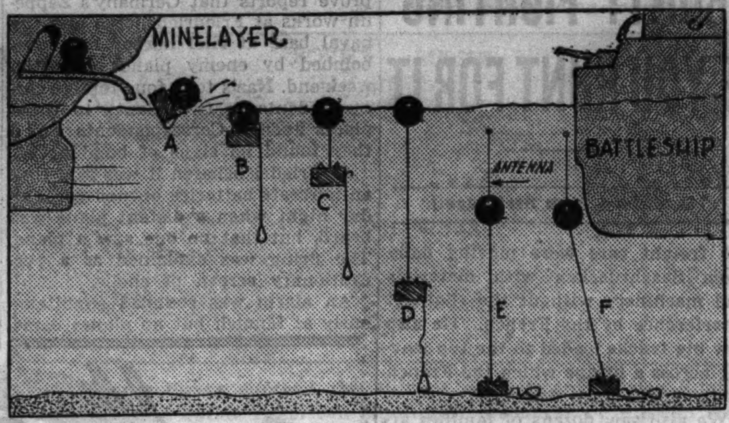
Single vessel mine sweepers carry two sweeps, one to either side, each kept out by an otter-trawl, but regulated for depth by attachment to a torpedo-shaped float and a water kite. Along each wire is distributed a series of small mechanical or explosive wire cutters. The path swept by this type of craft is about 200 yards.

When the mine field is located, it can also be destroyed by counter-mining. Other mines are placed in the field and exploded.

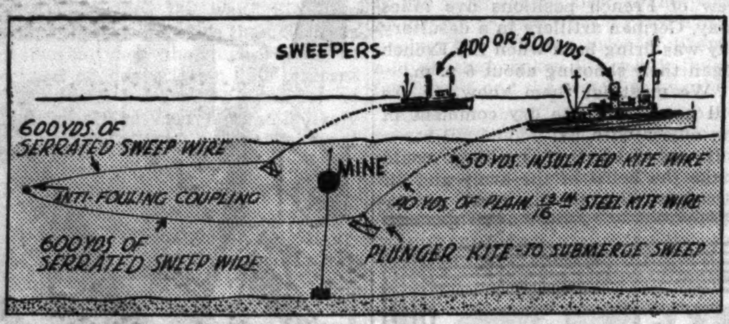
After the armistice, it took a year to clear the seas of mines.

Use of Mines in Naval Warfare

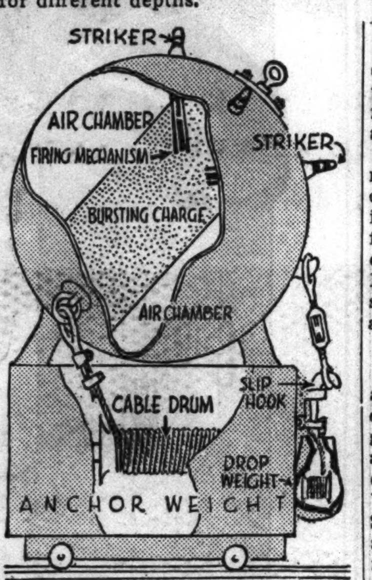
(Story in adjoining column.)



How a mine barrage is laid by a mine layer of one belligerent to catch battleships of the enemy. The mines are wheeled on a track to an open port and dumped into the water on line previously mapped. (A) On striking water the drop weight is disengaged (B) and sinks to a depth which will equal distance from mine to surface when the mine finally settles. When the drop weight has run out (C) it disengages a slip hook, which releases cable anchor weight (shaded block) from floating mine. The anchor cable runs out until drop weight strikes bottom (D). When drop weight strikes bottom it releases valve, filling anchor weight with water until the anchor weight is heavy enough to settle on ocean floor, (E) pulling mine below surface. When a battleship strikes the mine (F) or its antenna, the mine explodes.



This diagram shows how mine sweepers clear the ocean of mines. In actual practice several sweepers operate together with plungers set for different depths.



Cross section of a mine, showing striker type. In this type the striker must come in contact with ship to explode the mine. Other types of mines employ an antenna.

240 AMERICANS SAVED IN SINKING OF ATHENIA ARRIVE IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Two hundred and forty American survivors of the Athenia disaster came back today aboard the U. S. liner Orizaba.

The 7,000-ton vessel, one of five diverted from the coastwise trade to bring U. S. citizens home from Europe, was jammed with her extraordinary load, the white rows of cots in her public rooms making her resemble a hospital ship. She brought more than 350 passengers, all Americans. Among these were: Mrs. Catherine O'Hagan, of Chicago; Ernest, Mrs. Ellen and Miss Faith Ratcliffe, of Oregon, Ill.; Robert Pritchard of Aurora; William, Mrs. Edna and Donald Edwards, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Walda and Shirley Sykes, of Fort Wayne; Miss Florence Hargrave, Miss Jeanette Jordan of Madison, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grant, of Wisconsin Rapids.

LLOYD GEORGE BACKS BRITAIN'S STAND ON REDS

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—David Lloyd George, Britain's premier in the world war and critic of the present government, tonight approved the government's decision virtually to ignore Russia's march into Poland.

In reply to a letter from Count Edward Raczynski, the Polish ambassador, Lloyd George said:

"It would be criminal folly to place the Russian advance in the same category as the Germans', although it would suit Hitler's designs if we should do so."

Russia, Lloyd George added, merely reannexed territory forcibly taken from it after the world war.

Lloyd George said the British people are not prepared to make colossal sacrifices to restore the Polish government, which, he said, "fled for safety to a foreign country while their brave soldiers still were fighting desperately."

HITLER MASSES ARMY'S MIGHT AT WEST FRONT

Reported Making Ready to Offer Peace.

PARIS, Sept 27.—(AP).—Adolf Hitler was reported tonight to be speeding concentration of German troops on the western front to be used as a club in an attempt to induce France and Britain to discuss peace terms.

Advices reaching Paris from Germany through neutral countries indicated the German chancellor was preparing to make a formal offer of peace based on the status quo resulting from the partition of Poland between Germany and soviet Russia.

Agent Sent to Moscow.

It is for this reason that Hitler was believed to have sent his foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to Moscow today ostensibly to put the finishing touches on the partition of Poland. Actually von Ribbentrop was reported in Paris to be trying to persuade Joseph Stalin to sign, or at least to give the impression that he is willing to sign, a military alliance that Germany could use as a threat against the French and British.

Trains were said to be moving in a steady stream across Germany, pouring more and more troops into the Siegfried fortifications. Many squadrons of warplanes were reported shifted to the west.

It was obvious the Germans have made no real use of the forces concentrated on the western front. The reason was considered to be that the Germans did not want large-scale operations to start for fear of endangering any chances for peace.

Until now the Nazis have appeared content to take the usual measures to defend their fortress line and hamper the French advance.

Nazis Pound Four Salients.

Operations tonight illustrated this German strategy. German artillery was concentrating its fire on the four main salients which the French have driven into Nazi territory. At the same time, the German tactics appeared to be to try to keep the French command aware of the immense German forces being held in leash as well as the possibility that they might be turned loose in a major offensive.

The heaviest fire from the German guns battered the area behind the Lauter river, across which the French hold a wedged salient in Bienwald forest. German guns shelled deserted towns four miles behind the French lines.

Nazi shells ripped holes in the strategic French highway from Hagenau northwest to Wissembourg on the western edges of the Bienwald forest.

Hornbach Region Pounded.

The Hornbach salient, which the French have pointed at the important German town of Zweibruecken, was under unrelenting artillery fire. On both flanks of this sector, which lies 25 to 30 miles northwest of Wissembourg, German raiding parties conducted light operations.

A heavy artillery duel was resumed where the French lines bend almost to the banks of the Saar river between Merzig and Saarlouis.

The French general staff communique tonight stated: "The day was marked by the activity of our reconnaissance detachments."

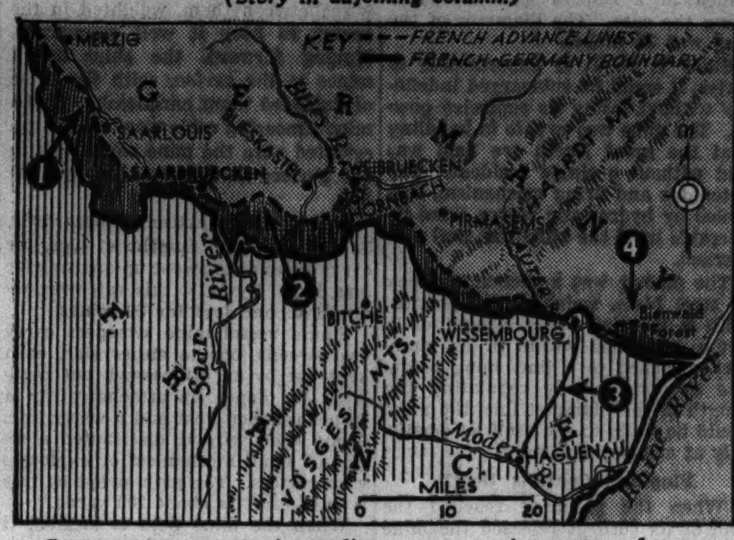
This morning it reported:

"Calm night. Enemy artillery fire on our rear lines in the region of Wissembourg."

[The German army communique yesterday said: "In the west there were only minor skirmishes. The enemy is doing trench digging along the entire front. Two French airplanes were shot down in an air fight over Freiburg and Sigmaringen." Sigmaringen is 75 miles inside Germany.]

Western Front Developments

(Story in adjoining column.)



Germany was reported speeding troops to the western front yesterday to force England and France to discuss peace terms. According to the French a heavy artillery duel was fought (1) between Merzig and Saarlouis; the Saarbruecken sector (2) remained quiet; Nazi shells ripped holes in the strategic French highway (3) from Hagenau to Wissembourg, and heaviest German fire was reported near Bienwald forest (4), where French hold a wedged salient.

DID YOU NOTICE?

Items Which Weren't Headlined in Recent War News

Daily gasoline rations for London taxicabs were increased from two to three gallons, the equivalent of about 3½ American gallons.

The Rumanian war ministry took possession of the country's entire cotton stock. Cotton goods, yarns, and raw cotton can be sold only by special permission.

Trenches are being dug in streets and squares of several German cities, including Hamburg and Munich, as a precaution in event of air raids.

Approximately $250,000,000 worth of contracts for aircraft, munitions, guns, and essential war supplies have been placed in Canada by the British, or will be signed up shortly.

Wallace Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, has been named chairman of a board which will handle all war purchases and contracts in Canada.

Prices of some of the carefully rationed foods in Germany are: 40 to 80 cents a pound for meat, depending on quality; 34 cents for fats and cheese; 30 cents for sugar; 12 to 15 cents for flour.

Nine German labor service men were killed by soviet troops east of Nowogrod, Poland. The Russians said they mistook the Germans for Polish troops.

All British merchantmen are being armed against both enemy submarines and aircraft, and all ships are being convoyed to and from England.

WHAT YOU WOULD PAY AS INCOME TAX IN ENGLAND

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27 (AP).—England has upped its income tax rates to help pay for the war. Here's a comparison of what Britons will pay in the year beginning next March 31, compared with the federal rate in America:

	American.	British.
Income of $2,000 per year:
Family with 2 children	None	$ 70.08
Married couple, no children	None	246.26
Bachelor	$ 40	350.40
Income of $4,000 a year:
Family with 2 children	28	721.26
Couple, no children	60	871.26
Bachelor	120	976.26
Income of $20,000 a year:
Family with 2 children	1,164	8,047.26
Couple, no children	1,260	8,202.06
Bachelor	1,450	8,326.26

Only the credits for families and dependent children are used in applying rates for comparative purposes, although numerous other deductions and credits probably would have to be considered in practice.

The table shows only the income taxes of the central governments of the two countries, and does not show other taxes levied by central and local governments. For example, thirty-one states in this country have their own income taxes in addition to the federal tax.

Nazis Build War Road in Tunnel at Swiss Line

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 27 (AP).—Residents of the Swiss town of Riehen report German troops are working day and night in the tunnel through Tullingen hill, opposite the town. A railroad is being torn up and a road constructed to link to the highways to Baden. Military observers said the tunnel highway could enable the Germans to rush motorized units into the Siegfried forts near Basel.

Switzerland Sentences 2 Nazis to Prison as Spies

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland, Sept. 27 (AP).—Two German citizens, one a former Austrian army officer, were sentenced today to six weeks in prison for espionage.

A DAY AT NAZIS' FRONT: FIGHTING IF YOU HUNT FOR IT

200 freight cars were moving daily from Saarbruecken with materials and machinery without the slightest interference by the French. He also saw big trucks loaded to the top leaving across a bridge which the French easily might have destroyed.

We also saw dozens of families arriving with vehicles of every description and taking from their homes such valuables as they failed to grab when the hurried orders to move out first came.

Zweibruecken Is Lifeless.

Similarly, Zweibruecken was a dead city. Its industrial plants lay idle. Soldiers here and there and families calling for their belongings were the only evidences of life. Outside the city, on heights commanding a good view of French positions five miles away, German artillery in a desultory way was firing back when the French began their shooting about 6 p. m.

"We must let them know we are still here," was the dry comment of one officer with us.

It appeared that nothing could shake the belief of the army and air force, as well as the local population, that the French never can get past the Siegfried line.

Spike Friedrichshafen Raid Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Seeking to disprove reports that Germany's Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen and the naval base at Kiel harbor had been bombed by enemy planes over the week-end, Nazis took four foreign correspondents in two planes to these places today. Correspondents said they found no signs of bombing.

At Friedrichshafen it was said that antiaircraft batteries opened fire Friday night when a distant plane was heard, but that no one saw a plane. The firing was explained as a precautionary screen of shells.

An alarm was sounded simultaneously at Munich but no planes came.

ENGLAND PUTS 35% WAR LEVY UPON INCOMES

Cost of Conflict for Year Set at 8 Billions.

rent financial year and $906,000,000 next year. The bulk of this would be derived from the income tax increase, which Simon estimated would produce $280,000,000 this year and $584,000,000 next year.

Tax Allowances Sliced.

Existing income tax allowances were sliced. The deduction for earned income was made one-sixth instead of one-fifth, with a maximum of $1,000 instead of $1,200.

Allowance for married taxpayers was cut from $720 to $680. Deduction for each child was reduced from $240 to $200.

This meant that unmarried persons making over $400 and married persons without children making over $680 now were subject to income tax.

Sir John figured surtax increases in revenue at $20,000,000 this year and $32,000,000 next year. The death duties he put at $6,000,000 and $24,000,000; beer, $44,000,000 and $108,000,000; spirits, $8,000,000 and $14,000,000; wine, $4,000,000 and $8,000,000; tobacco, $32,000,000 and $64,000,000, and sugar, $34,000,000 and $72,000,000.

Simon refused to speculate on what the excess profits tax would bring in and ignored this source of revenue in his calculations.

In summing up, Simon called on the citizens to bear the unprecedented burdens with courage and determination. He said that Germany's financial troubles were infinitely greater than Britain's.

"Even before the war," Sir John said, "there were more than 50 kinds of marks, each showing a different degree of depreciation. At present the German mark has no position as an international currency and is likely to lose rapidly its value as an internal currency."

"Fourth Arm of Defense."

"This great war sets for us a special economic problem of special urgency and gravity," he continued. "Nothing can prevent modern war from being a most potent instrument for the destruction of human life and wealth. Finance is sometimes said to be the fourth arm of defense. If finance failed, then the prop that sustained the whole war would collapse. Inflation is a course we must strive by all means in our power to avoid.

"If we are prepared to face the possibility of a three year war in other ways, we must make our plans in the fiscal sphere also. If the price of victory be high, it is a price worth paying, for it is the price of liberty and all that makes life worth living for Europe and the rest of the world."

After a brief debate commons passed the budget resolutions without a record vote. There was little opposition to the chancellor's drastic proposals. Labor Leader Clement R. Attlee demanded better organization of internal economy and weakly protested against the increased sugar tax.

How Germany Might Obtain American Munitions

(Story in adjoining column.)

Manufacturers contend the alliance of Germany, soviet Russia, and Japan would make it possible for Germany to obtain American munitions. Japanese or Russian steamers could be loaded with supplies at San Francisco and carry them to Vladivostok (broken line). There the supplies could be shipped into Russia over the trans-Siberian railroad. Russia then could pass the munitions into Germany.

ARMY TO COVER 75 MILE AREA IN RECRUIT DRIVE

Recruiting parties are being sent out to all cities and towns within 75 miles of Fort Sheridan in an effort to speed the army's enlistment drive, it was learned yesterday. Information regarding army enlistment is being given out at temporary headquarters in each locality.

The war department on Tuesday issued orders for the enlistment of 3,000 men from Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan as soon as possible. It was the largest order for new men since the army was reorganized in 1920.

DENIES REPEAL OF ARMS BAN WOULD HIT NAZIS

Morton Says Pacific Route Open to Their Friends.

Germany as well as Great Britain and France could obtain munitions from this country if the arms embargo is repealed. This statement was made yesterday by Sterling Morton, secretary of the Morton Salt company, and treasurer of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, after his return from Europe.

Morton disagreed with those who contend that the British fleet would prevent arms shipments reaching Germany. The present concord between Germany, Russia, and Japan makes it feasible to send arms to the Nazi army, he declared.

Pacific Ocean Routes Open.

"It would be perfectly possible for munitions and supplies produced in this country to go from San Francisco to Vladivostok in Japanese or Russian steamers," he said. "From that point there is a double track railroad and the goods could be carried directly into Germany.

"I cannot imagine that the British, occupied as they are in the Atlantic, would take any measures against either Russian or Japanese ships in the Pacific. Perhaps if those who are willing to risk war to favor one particular side knew that the other side may also benefit from repeal, their ardor would cool."

Complete Double Tracking.

Double tracking of the Trans-Siberian railroad was completed in 1937. More than four years were required to lay approximately 3,000 miles of rails under difficult conditions.

Regardless of the resulting aid to either side, however, Morton is opposed to lifting the arms embargo. Had the proposed "cash and carry" amendment to the neutrality act been in force when the war started, he would have been in favor of retaining that regulation, he said.

"It is unneutral to change rules in the middle of the game," he said. "This is not our fight, any more than the Napoleonic wars were. We spent thousands of American lives and billions of dollars to 'hang the Kaiser to a sour apple tree' but he seems to be living to a ripe old age in comfort and security at Doorn."

Morton was delegate to the convention of the International Chamber of Commerce in Copenhagen.

MIDWEST IS MAIN BATTLE GROUND ON NEUTRALITY

Senators from Area Are Deluged by Mail.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—Senators from midwestern states are special targets of the bombardment by constituents which is opening the battle over the Roosevelt administration's neutrality repealer.

Altogether, more than one million letters and postal cards have been received by members of the senate favoring or opposing the scrapping of the embargo on the export of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerent nations.

In the midst of the deluge of mail, senators were at work on the speeches they will make in the debate which is scheduled to begin the first of next week. The senate foreign relations committee will meet tomorrow to act on the administration bill, introduced by its chairman, Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.].

Goes to Senate Today.

The noninterventionists, led by Senators William E. Borah [R., Idaho] and Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], will record their opposition to the measure in the committee, but will not endeavor to prolong consideration of the question by that group, a substantial majority of which is committed to the measure.

Senator Borah tonight said the committee unquestionably will report the bill favorably to the senate tomorrow.

Senator Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.] has received more letters, postal cards, and telegrams on the neutrality repealer than any other senator. Every post brings him three or four mail bags full. Against the walls of his office suite are stacked mountains of letters in the little valleys between which a force of clerks work feverishly at the job of opening and classifying the communications. The clerks today were nine days behind in opening the senator's mail, not having progressed beyond letters received on Sept. 18.

Tide of Favor Swings.

The chief of the mail opening squad estimated that the senator had received 60,000 letters and postal cards up to date, of which 30,000 have been opened and tabulated. Senator Lucas, who was viewing the operations at the time, said the majority of communications of all sorts that he has received is opposed to repeal of the arms embargo. He would not say it was a large majority, but a substantial one.

However, the senator added, the number of letters in favor of the repealer has been increasing enormously since the President's message to congress. He would not be surprised, he said, if the majority soon were pro-repeal.

There is a good deal of evidence of organized mail lobbying, Mr. Lucas said. There are 15,000 postal cards inspired by various persons or groups opposed to the repealer who worded their appeal in the same phraseology. Of this number, 6,000 signed by German names incorporated phraseology which the senator recalled he had read in a letter from an officer of the German-American alliance.

Within the last few days Senator Lucas has been receiving postal cards in identical phraseology urging him to support the President's repeal proposal.

Working to Avoid Conflict.

Next to Senator Lucas, his colleague, Senator James M. Slattery [D., Ill.] has received more letters from constituents on the pending repealer than any other member of the senate. The count at Senator Slattery's office tonight was 28,000 letters and postal cards, the majority opposing repeal. The senator said he has a wholly open mind on the question.

"I am very much opposed to the United States of America being involved in the European conflict," he said. "I have not committed myself on the repeal of the arms embargo and do not know how I will vote on that question. I want to hear all the arguments on both sides."

Of the midwestern senators, Van Nuys and Minton of Indiana, Herring of Iowa and Brown of Michigan, Democrats, are supporting the arms embargo repealer, while Vandenberg of Michigan, Republican, and La Follette of Wisconsin, Progressive, favor retention of the embargo.

Gillette of Iowa, Democrat, and Wiley of Wisconsin, Republican, have not declared themselves definitly.

BRITAIN REJECTS INQUIRY ON CIVIL AIR BOMBINGS

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—The government informed the house of commons today that practical difficulties were too great to try Herbert Hoover's proposal to establish a neutral fact finding commission to investigate air raids affecting civilian populations.

Asked if a neutral commission could not investigate the bombing of the Polish town of Krzemieniec while it contained the Polish foreign office headquarters and numerous diplomats, R. A. Butler, foreign undersecretary, replied he did not think it necessary. "We have ample evidence of such indiscriminate bombing on the part of the Germans," he added.

Butler referred the questioner to United States Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle's report of his experiences during the raid.

DIES OF BICYCLE INJURIES.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 27 [Special].—David Ward Baker, 9 years old, died last night of a skull fracture incurred Sept. 6 when his bicycle was hit by a truck driven by Harold Whitney, 30.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Do you think England and France should declare war on Russia?

Where Asked.

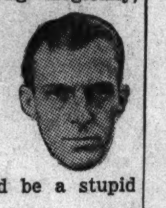
On East Wacker drive.

The Answers.

J. A. Tesk, 5646 North Kolmar avenue, photo-engraver—Absolutely yes, unless they want the world to see the hollowness of their pretensions to goodness. Their pact with Poland calls for it, but their word is no good. Look at the five billion England owes us.

Miss Jeanne Rolfe, 5344 Woodlawn avenue, home girl—No. It would make it more difficult for them to beat Germany. Of course, there is just as much reason for warring on Russia, but the allies can't do it all at once. They have their hands full at the present time.

John Lauer, 822 Michigan avenue, Wilmette, advertising—Logically, they should declare war on Russia, too. They can't reasonably resent Germany's invasion of Poland without doing so. But from the realistic view of power politics it would be a stupid thing to do.



Mrs. Gladys Murphy, 4714 Byron street, switchboard operator—I don't believe in war at all, so I don't think they should declare war against Russia. I hate to see thousands of lives lost to adjust boundary lines. International disputes should be solved by boxing matches.

Alfred F. Behn, 2913 North Harding avenue, sales engineer—No, because by declaring war on Russia they would bring about a world war. Russia with its tremendous resources could prolong the conflict indefinitly. If that happened we'd be more apt to get into it.

Italy Launches Drive on Hoarders of Foodstuffs

ROME, Sept. 27 (AP).—A drive against hoarders of foodstuffs was ordered today by Italy's minister of justice, Count Dino Grandi.

YOUNG MEN MAP NATIONAL DRIVE BY PEACE LEAGUE

Organization of Young Men for Peace, an association of Chicago students and young business men who plan a nation-wide drive to keep the United States out of foreign wars, was announced yesterday by Victor Lutnicki, a young attorney and one of the founders of the group. He said the organization hopes to set up similar groups in other cities within the next few months.

"Young Men for Peace has, as an immediate objective, the denunciation of the attempts now being made to repeal the neutrality act and allow shipment of arms to Europe," Lutnicki said. "Our ultimate objective, however, is to prevent our country from ever again fighting a war on foreign soil."

Members of the organization will meet tonight in the restaurant at 115 East Chicago avenue.

MEN and CHILDREN FIRST!

- Don't worry, men. There will be no cold suppers and fireless hearths this fall while wives foregather to argue world events.
- The women, as always, put home interests first.
- Sales of the Ladies' Home Journal—having passed previous records with 1,015,000 newsstand, 3,250,000 total—went up 35,000 during the first 3 weeks of the European war!

After sell-outs on August and September issues, sales on the October Journal started for a new high during a week flooded with world-shaking announcements, special editions, breath-taking radio bulletins—the greatest excitement in newsprint since 1914.

There is just one reason: the feminine state of mind. You may not have fully appreciated it. While men give themselves nervous indigestion worrying over the hate of dictators and the fate of empires, women are thinking up special meals to cure it. Between a woman and a war map will always loom up a nearer, clearer vision—her own home and its beloved inmates. As long as there's a roof over her head and a handful of peas for her kettle, children will be fed, men will be soothed, life will go on.

Men are proud and patriotic—women are personal in their interpretation of the world, and this is rightly so. Chaos abroad intensifies their appreciation of their own point of view . . . and of the magazine which reflects it. If you make or sell something that women use and buy—it will pay you to heed this difference. Tell your story in the Journal, the magazine that gets women's full-time attention, the magazine that women are buying and reading in ever-increasing numbers.

BUILDERS OF CHICAGO (14)

By CALEB

THE closing year of the Civil War saw one of Chicago's greatest civic achievements launched at the hands of a man who is today practically unknown—the establishing of the Union Stock Yards by Samuel Waters Allerton.

Born on May 26, 1829, in the village of Armenia, N. Y., Allerton came of humble circumstances, but Pilgrim Father ancestry. One of his forebears was a member of the Boston Tea Party, another a surgeon in the Continental Army. His own father early met business reverses, and the family removed to Yates county, N. Y., to engage in farming. Here the boy proved himself a successful stock-raiser; and at 23, with $3,300 in savings and $5,000 in borrowings, he began buying and selling livestock, moving westward until, in 1856, he finally reached Chicago.

From a prairie farm in Platt county he enlarged his stock buying and shipping operations; organized a hog and cattle market, and a company to exploit it; and thus became pioneer to the enormous packing industry of later-day Chicago. An exceptional deal in hogs gave him not only capital, but entree into banking circles with Aiken & Morton's honoring of an $80,000 sight draft; and, on the national banking act's passage, he urged Aiken to start the First National Bank, of which he became one of the largest stockholders and first directors.

In 1865, however, occurred the real coup of his career. With John B. Sherman, a New York state Chicagoan like himself, and other associates, a square mile of land was purchased several miles southwest of the then city limits, and the Union Stock Yards was opened. By a year later, three-quarters of a million cattle, sheep and hogs had been dressed and shipped from this focal point. Today, the institution that has since developed could feed the combined populations of France, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, yearly.

In 1893, Allerton entered the mayoralty race as Republican candidate in opposition to Carter H. Harrison; but was defeated after one of the bitterest municipal elections in local history. For more than twenty years he was a director of the Chicago City Railways Company; and died Feb. 22, 1914, at the ripe age of 85. The major contribution of his career to the city of his adoption was the vision that culminated in the Union Stock Yards, and the allied activities of "Packingtown."

WAR CENSORSHIP TO GAG QUEBEC ELECTIONEERING

Ban Rally Broadcasts; Talks Must Be O. K.'d.

OTTAWA, Quebec, Sept. 27 [Special].—The general election Premier Maurice Duplessis has called in Quebec next month on the ground the province's autonomy is menaced by the federal government's war measures will be the first in Canada's history to be held under censorship.

[Premier Duplessis called the election Monday because, it was indicated, he feared Quebec's constitutional rights were being infringed through conscription of finance and industry and exchange control.]

Broadcasting of political meetings in the campaign will not be allowed. Only studio broadcasts will be permitted after the texts have been approved by the war censors.

Premier to Defy Rule.

Premier Duplessis claimed today that the censorships would prevent the "free discussion of questions of vital importance to the electors."

As for the rule requiring studio political broadcasts to be passed by the censor, he said:

"As prime minister of Quebec province I will submit no text to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. I contend the prime minister has the right to express his views and those of the province without having to pass through federal authorities."

It was reported in some newspapers today that the federal government was almost certain to extend its election censorship to newspaper reports of meetings.

All Subject to Regulations.

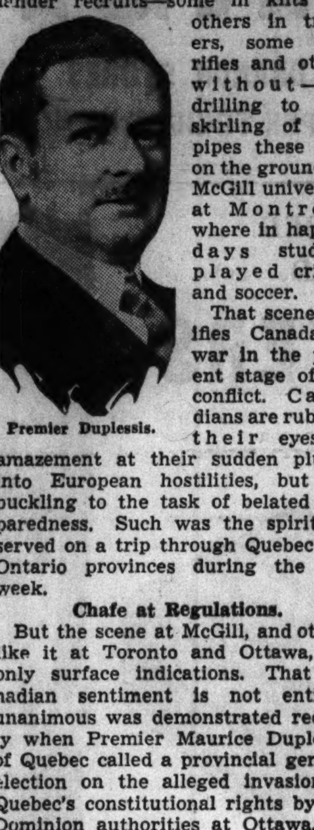
A member of censorship bureau said this was unfounded. He pointed out that every one in Canada, whether speaking at an election meeting or not, was subject to the defense of Canada regulations, which provide that "no person shall by word of mouth spread or make statements false or otherwise intended or likely to cause disaffection to his majesty or interfere with the success of his majesty's forces or the forces of any allied or associated powers, or to prejudice his majesty's relations with foreign powers or spread reports or make statements false or otherwise intended or likely to prejudice the recruiting, training, discipline or administration of any of his majesty's forces."

If contrary statements were made, it was pointed out, the person who made them and the newspaper which published them would be guilty of an infraction of the regulations.

It is asked here how an election on the justice or constitutionality of the government's war measures can be held at all without infringing the war regulations. It is feared any attempt to apply censorship will only increase the danger to Canada's unity inherent in the calling of an election on such a question.

Canada Speeds Preparations to Send an Army Overseas

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Premier Duplessis.

New York, Sept. 27.—Scottish Highlander recruits—some in kilts and others in trousers, some with rifles and others without—are drilling to the skirling of bagpipes these days on the grounds of McGill university at Montreal, where in happier days students played cricket and soccer.

That scene typifies Canada at war in the present stage of the conflict. Canadians are rubbing their eyes in amazement at their sudden plunge into European hostilities, but are buckling to the task of belated preparedness. Such was the spirit observed on a trip through Quebec and Ontario provinces during the last week.

Chafe at Regulations.

But the scene at McGill, and others like it at Toronto and Ottawa, are only surface indications. That Canadian sentiment is not entirely unanimous was demonstrated recently when Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec called a provincial general election on the alleged invasion of Quebec's constitutional rights by the Dominion authorities at Ottawa. It will be held Oct. 25.

While the Dominion government's encroachments so far have consisted of war measures drastically affecting the civil liberties and daily life of private citizens, the announcement of the Quebec election was regarded as the prelude to a bigger fight. That will be over conscription of men for service overseas when and if the Dominion government seeks to impose the system.

Opposed by French Element.

French Canadians opposed conscription during the last war and presumably will follow the same course in this struggle. Four members of the Canadian cabinet have announced they will resign if conscription is adopted. Nearly a third of Canada's population is French-Canadian.

Recruiting is voluntary at this stage. Both the present government, under Prime Minister Mackenzie King, and the Conservative opposition are pledged not to introduce conscription. The only group on record for conscription is the so-called New Democracy party, headed by William Herridge, former minister to Washington. This party can muster only 17 votes out of 245 in the house of commons, including the strength of the "Social Credit" or rubber dollar party in Alberta.

Want Empire Ties Severed.

The French in Canada are intensely nationalistic and many would like to have the country cut loose from England, or at least to establish Quebec province as an independent nation.

On the other hand, several neutral sources in Montreal declared the French Canadians were recruiting for service in larger numbers proportionately than other elements of the population. The French flocked to the colors after "godless" Russia invaded Poland. They are being told that this is a "holy war."

In Montreal the Fusiliers Mont-Royal and Regiment de Maisonneuve, both French infantry units, are being formed. The French are drilling on the "Champ de Mars" [field of war], a downtown square.

A number of skeleton regiments, which really are branches of English regiments, are starting to fill in the gaps. One of these is the Victoria Rifles of Canada, members of which wear green full dress uniforms instead of the traditional British scarlet.

In Toronto the city armory is being shared by the Black Watch Highlanders, the kilted soldiers called "ladies from hell" during the last war, and the Royal Grenadiers.

Already 55,000 men have volunteered and Canada needs only 32,000 for the first two divisions to be sent across when England asks for them. Recruits are being weeded out by a "re-testing" process. It is said that many veterans of the last war have volunteered, but most of them have been turned down because they do not measure up physically.

Uniforms on Display.

Stores in Canadian cities carry big signs asking for skilled men for artillery and ordnance. The regulation khaki, powder blue cloth of the Royal Canadian air force and other uniform materials for officers are being shown in all the best tailoring establishments. A fairly good officer's uniform costs $50. An officer's cap retails at $5.

Women also are signing up for war work in great numbers. Many of them will be used in munitions factories.

The long siege of unemployment is a big factor in the early enthusiasm, it was indicated by the story of one young soldier who swaggered out of the Toronto city armory in a new uniform.

"This is better than being out of work," he said. "Now I get $1.30 a day and keep."

But a brighteyed, little, gray haired French woman standing on the curb of the "Champ de Mars" had a different viewpoint.

"I lose nice, big son in last war," she sighed. "Now grandson in this one."

American Sense of Humor.

So far, however, the Canadians haven't lost their sense of humor, which is inclined to be more American than British.

In Montreal the swanky Samovar night club changed its designation from Russian to Polish 10 days ago and eliminated its cossack act from the floor show. A street peddler was hauled up before a judge and about to be sent to jail for selling a puzzle without a license. When the judge found he was peddling a caricature of Hitler, he dismissed the defendant with his blessing.

Toronto citizens are rising against Stewart Smith, lone communist alderman, seeking a way to unhorse him.

At Ottawa the famous Royal Canadian Mounted police, in their scarlet jackets and Stetson hats, are riding around the house of commons building for the first time in history. However, good authority has it that the mounted patrols were started this summer at the behest of the Ottawa tourist bureau, as an extra attraction for the American tourist rather than as a war measure.

WAR RESOURCES BOARD'S SUDDEN END IS SURPRISE

Dissolution Regarded as Brain Trust Victory.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—Dissolution of the war resources board, announced by President Roosevelt yesterday, not only took the capital by surprise but came without warning to members of the resources board.

This group, set up last month to prepare plans for the mobilization and control of industry in a war emergency, will be disbanded within the next two weeks, the President said. He stated that he expected to receive a report from the group of seven leading industrialists within the next ten days. Upon receipt of the report, he said he would commend the board for its good work and dismiss the members because their work would be done.

It was evident that members of the board had not expected such action. Several were house hunting in the capital, expecting that they would be here for some time. It also was a surprise to Bernard M. Baruch, financier and head of the old wartime industries board of the world war, who expected to give the new board the benefit of his advice.

Creators Also Surprised.

It was an even greater surprise to the creators of the board, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson and Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison. At the time of the creation of the board, Johnson had declared that in the event of emergency he expected the body to become an executive agency with powers similar to those of the Baruch board.

The decision was interpreted as a triumph for the brain trusters, who were thrust into the background at the outbreak of the present European war. A White House aid two weeks ago went so far as to assert that the brain trust was out the window.

Far from being dead, the brain trust was plotting against the war resources board, it was revealed today. President Roosevelt, it is reported, was told that he would be turning over the control of the nation's business to the very interests he has been fighting in his campaign against big business.

Members Singled Out.

The brain trusters pointed out, it is said, that Edward R. Stettinius Jr., who would become one of the nation's most powerful men as chairman of the board, was the son of a J. P. Morgan partner and top man of the United States Steel corporation.

They further pointed out that John M. Hancock, another member of the board, is a partner in Lehman Brothers, investment bankers, closely allied to the Morgan interests, and that the American Telephone and Telegraph company of Walter S. Gifford, also a member, had just been the object of a FCC investigation.

Other members of the board are John Lee Pratt, retired General Motors executive; Gen. Robert E. Wood, head man of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Harold G. Moulton, head of Brookings institution.

No indication was given today whether Mr. Roosevelt intends to replace the board with another group which would attack the same problems under a different name and with a complete New Deal membership. This was considered a probable step in the course of the next few months in administration circles.

The death sentence of the board was seen as relegating Assistant War Secretary Johnson, who has been feuding for a year with his boss, Secretary Harry H. Woodring, to a minor rôle in the war department.

Engineering Values an Even Flow

Maintain even heat flow with COAL—THE THRIFTY FUEL

ENGINEERS have long known that heat energy steadily, evenly applied, is more efficient. In your home, an even flow of heat is best, too.

That's why coal is the modern fuel. It's the only fuel that insures a steady, even flow of heat. You get no sudden starting and stopping of the fire in your furnace if you use coal or coke. This starting and stopping you get with other fuels means "layer-cake" heat in your home. The air in your rooms settles in layers during the off periods—cold air on the floor near your feet, warm air around your chest and hot air around your head.

With coal or coke, either hand fired or with a stoker, you can maintain a steady, even temperature throughout. Doctors will tell you that this is more healthy—helps cut down colds. And, of course, coal or coke is a lot more economical. It gives you greater comfort and saves money, too. Other fuels cost you at least 40% more.

An Association dealer is competent to prescribe the correct type of fuel for best results. Association dealers have engineering service available to you at no cost. Buy a good quality coal for best, most satisfactory and economical results. It is the cost of heat for the year which should be considered rather than the price per ton.

Order coal or coke from your local coal merchant today. If you are not sure he is a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association, call STAte 9723.

SHERIF PASSES GAMING BUCK TO HIS OWN POLICE

"I Didn't Know About It," He Tells Grand Jury.

Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien and Chief Lester Laird of the Cook county highway police were called upon yesterday to explain to the grand jury what, if anything, they have done to enforce the laws against gambling. The grand jurors previously had heard about slot machines operating in the county throughout most of the summer and of the continued operation of three or four notorious gambling establishments.

Sherif O'Brien was the first to enter the grand jury room. He responded to what was called an urgent invitation but which was in effect a command.

Doesn't Know, Sherif Says.

The sherif is reported to have told the grand jurors he didn't know gambling had been rife all summer in his bailiwick. He is reported to have told them he didn't know of the existence of the Gateway inn at Dundee and Skokie roads; the Dev-Lin inn, Devon and Lincoln avenues, in Lincolnwood; the Harlem Stables on Harlem avenue, two blocks north of Irving Park boulevard, or the new and finely appointed gaming resort near 97th street and Western avenue.

George Turner, manager of the Gateway inn, which, like all the others, is reported to be owned by William Johnson, testified before the grand jury early in September. He returned as a witness last Friday and then admitted the gaming resort had been open and was doing business every night.

Sherif O'Brien was reported to have said he knew nothing about Turner's place of business.

Hears About Shooting.

The sherif added that he had heard about a man being shot last Saturday night by robbers who saw him win $675 playing dice at the Dev-Lin inn, and followed him from there. And the sherif admitted hearing about the complaint by a widow who told the state's attorney's office she lost $350 Monday night at the Harlem Stables.

"When I took office last December I told Chief Laird to enforce all the laws, including the laws against gambling," the sherif said when he emerged from the juryroom. "I am a man of manifold duties and I have to delegate some powers. I delegated the power of enforcing the laws in the suburban districts to Chief Laird. If there has been gambling it is Laird's fault."

The grand jury is reported to have told Sherif O'Brien to go out and get Laird and send him in to be interviewed. Within a half hour Laird arrived, nattily dressed in gray.

"Continue to Enforce Law."

What his experiences with the jury were was not stated. On his coming out he was met by reporters. He was in a hurry and didn't wish to answer questions, but as he waited for an elevator a reporter said to him:

"The sherif placed all the responsibility for gambling on you."

Laird was lighting a big black cigar.

"Yes," he replied, "we are going to continue to enforce the laws against gambling."

The sherif had said as much upon leaving the Criminal Courts building, only he put it:

"We are going to coöperate with the grand jury to stop gambling."

The jurors also heard Judge Joseph B. Hermes of the Municipal court, who for several weeks has been assigned to the racket court. It is there that men arrested in raids on handbooks are arraigned. Judge Hermes is reported to have told the grand jurors the police system is not legal. They do not present legal evidence, the jurist declared, and consequently all he can do is discharge the defendants.

SIX FACE GRAND JURY AS RESULT OF C. I. O. STRIKE

Newark, N. J., Sept. 27 [Special].—Four women and two men were ordered held for grand jury action today on charges of assaulting loyal workers who refused to join a C. I. O. strike at the plant of L. E. Waterman and company, manufacturers of fountain pens. A picket line has paraded before the Newark plant of the company since Aug. 25, when a strike was called by the United Rubber Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate. Only half of the company's employés walked out.

On Sept. 6, the pickets allegedly assaulted loyal workers who refused to join the strike. On the same day Elisha Waterman, executive vice president of the company was beaten severely when he attempted to enter the plant.

The four women were charged with assault and battery and paroled in custody of their lawyers. The men were released in $1,000 bail, each.

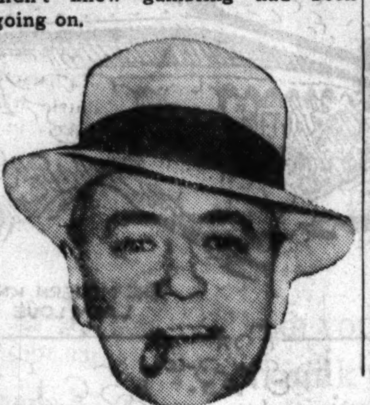
Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien, who appeared before grand jury yesterday. He was called upon to explain what he had done, if anything, to enforce laws against gambling. He is reported to have told the jury he didn't know gambling had been going on.



Chief Lester Laird of the county highway police followed O'Brien into the jury room. He was told by a reporter that the sherif had placed all the responsibility for the gambling on him.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 27 [Special].—Sam R. Mitchell, 76 years old, who spent 56 years behind the counter of one store, died in Farmer City last night. In 1883 he became connected with the Burford Brothers Dry Goods company of which fourteen years later he became the sole owner.

SCIENTIST, ONCE SLAVE, HAS NEW PLAN FOR SOUTH

Dr. Carver Sees Use for Chicken Feathers.

A bespectacled, little colored gentleman sat at a window in a south side hotel yesterday. He stared at the hats of passing women, and from time to time jotted down notes with a pencil stub.

"Seems like our chicken feathers might be fixed up to decorate those hats," he said. "Have to think about that when I get back home."

He was Dr. George Washington Carver, once a slave who, with his mother, was traded for a mule. Now he is the famous director of scientific research at Tuskegee institute in Alabama. His interest in the possibilities of chicken feathers was not unusual; for more than forty years Dr. Carver has devoted himself to converting waste products of the south into useful materials.

Finds Cheap, Practical Paint.

When Dr. Carver last visited Chicago, in 1937, he was working on his then recent discovery that oil obtained from the common southern peanut was beneficial in treating victims of infantile paralysis. Today he is pushing onward into other fields of research.

The product of one of his most recent experiments is a cheap, practical paint. Dr. Carver explained that for years the shoddy, unpainted houses of the southern Negroes have been an eyesore to him. So he decided to do something about it. The result is that many a colored houseowner now is brightening up his home with a paint made of ordinary southern clay and used motor oil.

"If they want red paint, they use red clay, and so on," Dr. Carver said. "It's as simple as that. After we show them how to do it they have no trouble making it themselves for practically nothing."

Work Shown at Museum.

Dr. Carver liked to talk about the little museum he is establishing in his laboratory at Tuskegee. It will contain a record of his forty-three years of research at the school. Writing paper made from plant stalks, rubber and shoe polish from sweet potatoes and insulating fibers from corn shucks will be a few of the hundreds of products on exhibit.

As nearly as he can estimate, Dr. Carver is about 77 years old. As was the case with slaves, no record of his birth was kept. But he became annoyed yesterday when asked if he planned to retire soon.

"Haven't got time to retire," he snorted. "Too many thing to do. "Why, I have a hundred experiments in mind. Anyway, what about those chicken feathers?"

SUES TO MAKE RICH WIFE LET HIM USE HOME

R. C. Brewer Says Police Aid Her in Conspiracy.

Robert C. Brewer, a marine engineer who wooed and won Mrs. Eunice Essig Brach Brewer on a South American cruise in 1937, filed a petition in Circuit court yesterday to restrain his wife from barring him from her home at 175 Sheridan road, Winnetka.

Brewer, who is 37 years old, recited in his bill the hectic events of the morning of Sept. 7 when, he alleged, he was prevented from entering the house. He charged a conspiracy between his wife; William Peterson, chief of police of Winnetka; Glen Boyd, a Winnetka police lieutenant, and Richard Fisher, police magistrate in the suburb, to deprive him of his right to live there.

Wife Has $1,000,000 Trust.

Mrs. Brewer won a divorce in 1931 from Frank V. Brach, wealthy candy manufacturer, and receives the income from a million dollar trust established by Brach at that time. She met Brewer during a cruise on which he was chief engineer of the ship and they were married May 4, 1937, in New York City.

At her request, the bill said, Brewer left her alone in the Winnetka home on Dec. 1, 1937, and several days later she moved out his belongings. In September, 1938, she filed suit for divorce at Cody, Wyo., charging mental cruelty, but dismissed the bill after Brewer denied the allegations.

Moves Back While She's Away.

While Mrs. Brewer was in Europe, her husband moved back into the house. On her return she had the locks changed and when Brewer tried to enter on the morning of Sept. 7, Lieut. Boyd prevented him, the bill said. Mrs. Brewer then swore out a complaint charging her husband with disturbing the peace. He was locked up for several hours and later released on $25 bond. The case is set for hearing on Sept. 30.

The bill asserts that Brewer has never relinquished his homestead right in his wife's residence and that "she has failed to provide plaintiff with another homestead suitable to the condition of life of the family."

The bill was drawn by Attorneys John T. Conlon and Robert P. Burkhalter.

HULL VERSUS PITTMAN.

The President has asserted that the repeal of the arms embargo would aid in keeping us out of war. How does he know that? He has offered nc proof.

Now the secretary of state is the official who should know more than any one else in the government what effect a change in the neutrality act would have upon our relations with other countries.

Secretary of State Hull expressed himself on the subject on another occasion, and his reasoning then is still applicable. On May 12, 1938, he replied to a letter from Chairman Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee asking his views about raising the embargo on the sale of arms to the government of Spain. A special act of Jan. 8, 1937, had prohibited the sale of arms to either faction in the Spanish civil war.

"In recent years," said the secretary of state in replying to the senate committee, "this government has pursued a course calculated to prevent our becoming involved in war situations. In August, 1936, shortly after the beginning of the civil strife in Spain, it became evident that several of the great powers were projecting themselves into the struggle through the furnishing of arms and war materials and other aid to the contending sides, thus creating a real danger of spread of the conflict into a European war, with the possible involvement of the United States.

"That there was such a real danger was realized by every thoughtful observer the world over. Twenty-seven governments of Europe took special cognizance of the fact in setting up a committee designed to carry out a concerted policy of nonintervention in the conflict. In view of all these special and unusual circumstances, this government declared its policy of strict noninterference in the struggle and at the same time announced that the export of arms from the United States to Spain would be contrary to such policy."

Thus the embargo on the sale of arms to Spain was for the purpose of keeping us from being involved in the war. And because it had proved useful in attaining its objective Secretary Hull was opposed to changing it. He said:

"Even if the legislation applied to both parties, its enactment would still subject us to unnecessary risks we have so far avoided. We do not know what lies ahead in the Spanish situation. The original danger still exists. In view of the continued danger of international conflict arising from the circumstances of the struggle, any proposal which at this juncture contemplates a reversal of our policy of strict noninterference which we have thus far so scrupulously followed, and under the operation of which we have kept out of involvements, would offer a real possibility of complications. Our first solicitude should be the peace and welfare of this country, and the real test oi the advisability of making any changes in the statutes now in effect should be whether such changes would further tend to keep us from becoming involved directly or indirectly in a dangerous European situation."

The secretary of state only a little more than a year ago said that the way to keep us from being "involved directly or indirectly in a dangerous European situation" was to refuse to lift the arms embargo during a war that was then in progress. What the secretary said in 1938 about the Spanish war is true today about the greater war. He has not been called upon by the senate committee to state his views fully about the proposed bill. Secretary Hull is recognized as the sort of man who would not go back on his clearly expressed views of one year ago. A move on Monday by Senator Vandenberg to get a statement from Mr. Hull was defeated by the administration. Mr. Vandenberg persisted with a personal letter to the secretary of state giving him an opportunity to indorse the bill if he was for it. In his reply Mr. Hull avoided committing himself in any way on the repealer. There is every indication that our chief of foreign relations does not approve of the proposed change in our foreign policy, and that the advocates of repeal are afraid to let him say so.

WASTERS AND SAVERS.

The civil service commission reports that civil employés of the federal government reached an all-time high on June 30. They numbered 920,310, an increase of 58,396 during the present year alone. They exceeded for the first time the peak civilian employment during the world war, estimated at 918,000.

The public has long ago given up hope of any relief from this waste of public funds, this burdening of the productive section of the population with useless and needless political pay rollers, so long as President Roosevelt remains in office. The cancer of waste so lavishly nourished in Washington has spread to the state governments controled by the Democrats. Illinois' pay rolls are also at an all-time high.

The way out is being pointed to us by some of the Republican state administrations elected last November. In Iowa Gov. George A. Wilson, Republican, who took office the first of the year, has already reduced the number of state employés by more than one-tenth. They numbered 2,706 on July 31, as against 3,081 on last Nov. 30, the last pay roll representative of the Democratic administration of former Gov. Nels G. Kraschel.

It is a matter of regret that every Republican governor has not as good an economy record as have Gov. Wilson and a number of the other Republican state executives elected last year. But the fact remains that the only important state governmental economies have been enforced by Republican state administrations or, as in the case of New York, by a Republican legislature. The Democrats almost without exception have continued their wasteful ways.

OUR GAMBLER SHERIF.

It is rather surprising that Sherif O'Brien has not taken a more active interest in the shooting and robbery of a citizen who was riding home with several hundred dollars won in a gambling house in the Cook county area the sherif is supposed to police. The sherif not only knows all about gambling, he also has known the indignation of the citizen who is cheated of losing his money to a bookie by losing it to a holdup man.

On Nov. 6, 1935, a policeman at State and Madison streets seized a man in headlong flight. Among those who gathered to identify the prisoner was the future sherif, then Congressman Thomas J. O'Brien. The agitated statesman disclosed that the gunman had forced him to lie down on the floor with the common people during a holdup of a handbook in the nearby Saratoga hotel.

This was all known when O'Brien was nominated for sherif last year by the Democratic party. It was also known that in 1922 he had been indicted, but not convicted, in the federal court on a charge of shaking down prohibition violators. It was also known that in his early days in the state legislature O'Brien was one of the Democrats who deserted their party to elect William Lorimer senator. A number of his fellow deserters later confessed that they shared in the jackpot that the Lorimer gang provided to buy the election. O'Brien didn't admit anything—but his vote is on record.

That a man of such reputation should have been nominated and elected the chief law enforcement officer of the most populous county in the United States is explained by one fact. Throughout his career he has been the chore boy of Patrick A. Nash, the boss of the Democratic party.

The sherif is chargeable to the Democratic party. He is in the lap of the Democratic state's attorney of this county, the Democratic governor of this state, and the Democratic boss. He is the political property of that boss. If O'Brien does anything, it is because Nash tells him to do it. If he fails to do anything, as he has failed to suppress gambling, it is because Nash tells him not to do it. The grand jury, which summoned the sherif to tell why he has permitted gambling to flourish, should also summon his boss.

SOUND ADVICE.

Congress and the country will do well to heed the advice given the other day by Philip A. Benson, president of the American Bankers' association. Mr. Benson was speaking of the economic problems associated with the depression and the European war. To meet them he proposed "a moratorium on legislation, burocratic regulations, reform, and industrial strife" at least until the country is measurably more prosperous than it is today or has been for the last ten years. The failure of the country to achieve recovery despite the immense sums spent by the government he attributed to interferences with business which had impaired confidence.

There is little that is new in this advice. It was true when Mr. Roosevelt gave it to the country in his 1932 campaign and it is still true. If he had followed it himself we should be much further along than we are. We should not find some of our citizens welcoming a war boom to the point of forgetting that such a boom is likely to be followed by an equally sharp collapse when the war orders cease to flow.

Mr. Benson had something else to say which was perhaps less familiar. Unless, he said, we release the creative forces of capital and industry we are likely to lose our freedom, war or no war. This is so because the continuance of hard times provokes repressive measures. Congress and the legislatures are under continual pressure to increase taxes for purposes of relief and to devise new measures of economic control. The higher the taxes go and the more rigorous the economic controls the less incentive remains for initiative and investment. That, in turn, leads to still more hardship and still further measures of control. The only hope of breaking the vicious circle lies in freeing business, lowering taxes, and thereby encouraging economic expansion. For ten years now we have been drifting toward a totalitarian economy. The further we go in that direction the greater the menace to our civil liberties. When a government regulates prices, wages, transportation, agriculture, and finance it cannot allow freedom of criticism and opposition. If we let the government take our economic liberties we shall soon discover that the civil liberties have been lost as well, and they may never be recovered in our lifetimes.

SAVE AMERICA FIRST.

The overwhelming majority of Americans are anxious that we stay out of war. America's greatest task today is to see that anxiety hardens into the determination that we can stay out and will stay out.

Those who wish otherwise are today generals without an army. On their banners is the slogan "Save Democracy." It is a threadbare slogan. We saved democracy once and were called Shylocks for our pains.

The American Americans should organize to defeat the recruiting campaign of these Americans of foreign allegiance. In the Voice of the People today Mr. Earle A. Shilton suggests that they inscribe on their banners "Save America First." It is a good slogan.

EXPANDING EDUCATION.

[Des Moines Tribune.]

Twenty years ago 18 per cent of our young people went to high school; today it is 65 per cent, and in some states 90 per cent.

The figures were quoted by Dr. Homer P. Rainey, former director of the American Youth commission, the other day. He thinks it is not too early to be thinking about high schools for the whole 100 per cent of our youth.

This is something new in human history.

But when the statement is made that the percentage of high school children today is three and one-half times what it was twenty years ago it must not be taken to mean that all of this remarkable gain . . . has been registered in the last few years.

As early as 1930 the ratio of children in high school was 50 per cent. In other words, out of the whole increase over a twenty year period two-thirds of the gain occurred in the eleven years from 1919 to 1930, and the remaining one-third has occurred since.

The high schools did very well under the "old" order, too.

LONG LIVE THE LEGION!

Thank you, Legion, for waking up this city.

We have been humdrumming along the back trail toward provincialism of late; now, perhaps, we will make a fresh start forward. Anyway, we have had a shot in the arm.

The Cubs have been floundering; the drama has been dying; newspapers have been folding up; good fellows have not been getting together; and the assessors have been goading useful citizens to seek residence outside the limits of Cook county. The Chicago legend has been growing stale; the lusty, gusty old spirit has seemed to be dying. Then along came the American Legion's convention, and the old town was itself again.

* * *

The great parade, which had a dignity that compensated for the Legion's fantastic sense of humor, was a remedy for civic low blood pressure.

No historian of manners has yet undertaken to compare the behaviorism of the American Legion with that of the Grand Army of the Republic at equal ages. No psychologist has attempted to explain the former's bent toward comedy.

This reminds us, in a far fetched way, of the Abbé Sieyès, a statesman of the French revolution. He dropped out of sight during the years when nearly every one of his kind was going to the guillotine, and came into power again when things quieted down. When asked what he had done during the Reign of Terror, he said with a grim smile, "I survived."

When the men who form the American Legion went into the army, it seemed that they were headed toward a universal slaughterhouse. Many of their comrades died, but the great majority survived.

Perhaps they are still celebrating the unexpected gift of life.

LOVE'S COLD REFRAIN.

[Answering Modesta's "Love's Old Refrain," Sept. 21.]

I had not thought to love you, dear. So long.
The things you read into it have been wrong,
And I, despite your tears, have known this true
While listening to all the wails from you.
You made of love a looping knot to tie
A slip noose to catch freedom. Man will die
For many things, my dear, but not for love—
(You listen badly)—What I'm speaking of Lies in the clouds and sun, but not in eyes
Wet with a woman's tears, nor in their lies.
The songs you sang are echoes from a hill.
The words you spoke recede and soon are still.
The little ways you had of seeming coy
I now bequeath, that you may still employ
Them on another one whom you will find.
(Lady, desist . . . I'm trying to be kind.)
I was just gallant. And you got me wrong . . .
I had not thought to love you, dear. So long!

Final Answer to "Whadda Y' Know."

I thought I had long since stopped everybody saying, "Whadda you know?" but apparently not. The answer is as follows:

"The extent of my knowledge is extremely limited, I assure you, but, in view of the fact that it covers many topics and subjects, if you will name the one particular subject about which you are most interested in discovering what I know, it will give me great pleasure to discourse at length, or briefly, as my knowledge permits, on that one subject." ANOTHER AILMENT OF ANIMAL ORIGIN.

FROM time to time mention nas been made of a disease which is now fairly well disseminated throughout the land. We can scarcely realize that it was barely forty years ago when the first case of undulant fever in a human being was identified in the United States. Originally labeled Malta fever, because of its prevalence among goats on the Island of Malta, it is now termed—more accurately—brucellosis. This latter name has been adopted because Sir David Bruce first described the causative germ.

We now recognize three types. While the manifestations are similar, some variations will be observed—depending upon whether the infection is passed on from cattle, swine, or goats. It is essentially an animal ailment—one that can be contracted easily by man. Competent authorities have estimated that from 6 to 10 per cent of all cows in this country throw off the organisms in their milk. While this is the most frequent source, individuals may become infected directly from cattle, swine, goats or sheep—and farmers and their families show a high susceptibility.

The dominant symptoms are fatigue and weakness. In addition—if the affliction is acute—headache, sweating, sharp abdominal distress, and joint pains will be suffered. Within a short while loss of weight, constipation, and evidences of extreme nervousness may appear. The fever is likely to be continuous with ups and downs—more severe at times. While some will recover from a light attack within a few weeks, the distemper may last for as long as six months. If relapses occur, restoration to health may require one or more years.

There are apparently hundreds—perhaps thousands of ambulatory patients—those who are not ill enough to go to bed, but who feel somewhat below par. These cases, as a rule, go undetected.

It is only through the adoption of careful laboratory examinations that the real trouble is discovered. Diagnostic aids include a skin reaction made with a substance called brucin—a weak solution of which is injected beneath the outer layers of the epidermis. If a reddish, puffy area results and remains for forty-eight hours or more, the test is considered positive. If it is faint, light pink, and without swelling it is negative. Another important procedure consists in checking the patient's blood against the organisms. If the disease has persisted for more than two or three weeks, clumping of the bacteria themselves will disclose its existence.

A stalwart farmer who came under my observation in a hospital had been labeled a neurotic. However, his constant complaints of sleeplessness, irritability, and weakness led his physician to a different conclusion. His blood "bunched" the brucella organisms in high dilution and the diagnosis was clear. He made a rapid recovery with proper management.

At the outset bed rest is demanded. There is a tendency for the malady to cure itself under good nursing if reinfection does not take place. But most of those who are ill will need help, and vaccines have been used with some success. More recently, however, sulfanilamide has been advocated and experiments indicate that if the patient can stand the drug and does not react improperly it is the most powerful of all remedies. In a series of twenty victims—all got well under large doses of this compound or its ally, neoprontosil. It should be emphasized, however, that during its administration the urine must be watched constantly for signs of kidney irritation and the blood count checked daily to forestall the development of anemia or reduction in the white count.

The best that can be said is that undulant fever is a debilitating illness which saps strength and destroys efficiency. We can prevent its spread through milk by boiling or pasteurization. If this were practiced universally we would stamp out the infection except for those instances which arise because of contact. Dairy herds can be tested and carriers destroyed. This plan strikes at the root of the disorder.

THAT DEPENDS.

L. M. P. writes: Is it injurious for a person with arthritis in the fingers to play golf?

REPLY.

In the acute stage, rest is demanded. Exercise, however, may be indulged in if no pain ensues.

NOT NECESSARILY.

K. H. writes: Does porosis of the throat mean tuberculosis?

REPLY.

The word porosis, or poroma, may be applied to any swelling or inflammation which is firm and resistant. It is commonly used in connection with healing bone—a porous substance. No essential relationship to tuberculosis.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Sept. 28, 1914.

PARIS—Desperate efforts of the Germans to break the allied line and halt the well advanced turning movement resulted in the most furious fighting of the campaign on the western front. The high command hurled corps after corps of the German forces against the flower of the French and British armies. There was hand to hand fighting along two-thirds of the line.

VIENNA—The Austrian high command admitted that the Russians had occupied most of Przemysl in Galicia and that the Austrian army had retreated into the eastern forts. Other dispatches said these forts were surrounded. Kaiser Wilhelm hurried to East Prussia to direct operations.

LONDON—Appeals for additional medical men and stretcher bearers revealed a tragic shortage of them on the western front. The wounded were lying for days without attention, it was admitted.

PARIS—German aircraft bombed this city, killing many civilians in an apparent effort to disable the government wireless transmitter on the Eiffel tower.

SAVE AMERICA FIRST.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Permit me to suggest a slogan for use at this time: "Save America First."

This might be made up in red, white, and blue plates to be attached to auto license plates and thus carry the gospel.

More power to the fight you are making. EARLE A. SHILTON.

TOO MUCH DELEGATION OF POWER.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Isn't it about time for the American people to realize that the greatest menace to democracy does not lie over in Europe but right here in our own country, in the unsound, undemocratic, and unconstitutional delegation of power to the President? In other words, congress is seemingly putting it up to the President, and the President alone, to say what is cash and what is credit, and that is bringing us mighty close to the situation of twenty-five years ago where another He Kept Us Out of War President finally got us into the war after the election.

WAKE UP AMERICA.

OUR POSTAL SERVICE.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Last Friday morning at 9:15 I mailed a letter from the Chicago Lawn postoffice, 63d street and Kedzie avenue, to Cicero.

I asked the postal clerk if the letter would be delivered Saturday morning. He said any letter mailed before 9:30 should be delivered the same day.

The following Monday morning this letter was received by my sister, 6120 Cermak road.

This isn't the first time this has occurred. Imagine taking three days for a letter from 63d and Kedzie to 6120 West Cermak road.

I could have boarded a street car at 63d street and Kedzie avenue Friday morning at 9:15 and delivered that letter 45 minutes later and not bothered the postoffice at all.

Instead of our postmaster general gallivanting around in Europe he should be speeding up mail service around Chicago. MRS. WILLIAM ROLFS.

OUR SPELLING BEFUDDLES HIM.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—It is not simplified spelling that is needed. THE TRIBUNE'S simplified spelling only befuddles the language; it does not clarify it. What is needed is a whole new alphabet with a letter or character for every sound in the English language, each of which has the same sound no matter where it is placed in a word. A true, phonetic alphabet.

The Russian language is almost perfect in that respect. Only two characters have two sounds, depending upon their placement. The English language is the hardest of all languages to learn. Although Latin vowels have each two sounds, one not to the manner born can learn as much Latin in three years as he can learn English in twenty.

While in Russia I often saw a clerk write one, to most of us unpronounceable, name such as Josef Djugashvili Vissarionovich [Stalin's real name, by the way] without the slightest hesitation. It was never necessary to ask, how do you spell it? It could only be spelled one way.

In 1845 the Swedish alphabet was changed without the addition of letters. Different signs were placed above most of the vowels and diphthongs—aa became a, ae became ä, etc. It made spelling and reading somewhat easier, but still only a makeshift.

I do not like The Tribune mode of spelling. To one used to orthodox spelling it makes reading harder. The words look unfamiliar.

It cannot be called an improvement. Befuddlement would be a far more correct term. It is like cutting off a dog's tail a joint at a time. Useless as well as painful. A. F. PATTERSON.

JOB FOR AMERICAN PARENTS.

Kankakee, Ill., Sept. 25.—We believe the parents of America should immediately organize parent groups to protest against this country sending our sons into foreign battlefields. We believe that parents will have the most powerful voice with congress if they act in unison. Try calling up two parents, explain the idea and ask them, in turn, to call two. You will have a meeting before you know it. LESLIE HINKLE.

DIVINE HELP AND ARMS SALES.

Lockport, Ill., Sept. 23.—In his speech before the joint session of congress the President attempted to create an impression that he wished divine guidance, and yet, in this same speech, he asks congress to allow the sale of munitions of war which no true Christian can in any manner justify. The sale of arms for the destruction of lives and property of human beings can in no way be justified by any Christian nation.

I appreciate that we are all human and would not want to create an impression that I would not fight and kill if necessary to protect my home and country. Nevertheless, I still believe that there is only one right solution of neutrality for a Christian nation. L. F. ROBLEE, M. D.

NOT AT THE COST OF MURDER.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—We don't require anything from Europe and Europe should not get anything from America.

We, the unemployéd, do want work for which we have suffered for ten years, but if we, the suffering Americans, can gain employment only at the price of murdering women and babies, we shall suffer on.

LEON CHILDS.

HOW ABOUT THE AQUITANIA?

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Instead of harping on the neutrality act, why don't you warn the public about Roosevelt's allowing the Aquitania to sail armed from New York and call their attention to our 'Alabama claims" against England for such an act after the civil war? W. M.

AND TOSS IN RUSSIA.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—I, like 75 per cent of the people of our country, am strictly neutral—we don't care which side wins so long as Hitler loses. And you might throw in Russia, too, while we're on the subject of "neutrality." S. P.

SHOULD HE GIVE UP HIS SEAT?

Chicago, Sept. 25.—If the paid passenger [Sept. 24] was looking out for the young crippled girl's welfare, why didn't he give up his seat, seeing that he was so anxious concerning her? J. M.

THIS IS A POSER.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 26.—Why won't they make earrings with a little cushion in the back so they won't pinch the ear when they are screwed on tight?

MRS. E. W. E.

MORTGAGE PROCEDURE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19 [Legal Friend of the People].—I have property in Chicago consisting of a home valued at $6,000. Recently I mortgaged it for $2,500.

1. In order to do this I was required to insure the property, the policy containing a mortgage clause to protect the mortgage holder.

2. The holder of this mortgage insists that he should hold the insurance policy.

3. I insist that since I paid for the policy myself I am entitled to keep it. The policy covers the full term of the mortgage.

4. The mortgage clause in the policy fully protects his interest in the property.

5. Which one of us should possess this policy? There is no provision in the mortgage which states who shall keep it.

R. A. R.

1. This is common procedure.
2. Same.
3. Wouldn't it be just as reasonable for you to insist that because you paid the expense of drawing up the mortgage, therefore you should hold all of the papers? If there should be a fire loss the mortgage holder would need the insurance policy in order to protect himself.
4. We do not see how you can reason that he is protected if he does not have the instrument in his possession.
5. See preceding answers.

BURYING THE HATCHET

[Memphis Commercial Appeal.]

THE WOLF HOUNDS OF SIBERIA PUT ON THINKING CAPS

But Vets Still Don't Know Why They Were Sent.

Those white, furry caps some of the Legionnaires are wearing at the convention are not a tribute to the Chicago weather, as one might think. They are reminders to their wearers that once they were in Siberia, for reasons they say they have never known, in temperatures of 45 below zero.

Gertrude Hutchins, Siberian A. E. F. Nurse.

Most of the furry caps are worn by veterans of that strange, unexplained American expedition to Siberia in 1918, which lingered on, in the midst of disease and cold, until April, 1920. A few of them are worn by veterans of the tragic American military expedition to Archangel, Russia.

Chadwick a Wolfhound.

Some 450 of the Siberian wolfhounds, as they call themselves, attended their second annual reunion last night in the Sherman hotel. National Commander Stephen Chadwick of the Legion, a first lieutenant in the Siberian expedition, addressed them. Col. O. P. Robison, chief of staff of the expedition, also spoke.

The assembled veterans sent greetings yesterday to Maj. Gen. William S. Graves, retired, commander of the Siberian expedition, who now lives in Shrewsburg, N. J., and praised him for not intervening in Russia's turbulent internal affairs in 1918-20.

Altogether, 15,767 Americans served in the expedition, of whom an estimated 8,000 are living now. The first men landed at Vladivostok in August, 1918, and the last sailed away on April 1, 1920. The expedition cost many millions of dollars, but its objectives will never be made clear. At least, that's what Attorney Ralph Wallace of Los Angeles, former major with the 27th infantry, surmises.

"There are no records of our exploits in the war department," he observed grimly. "They're in the state department. We were sent there as a matter of diplomatic policy.

Allies Sought to Use Them.

"We were supposed to protect the Trans-Siberian railway and also assist some 8,000 Czech prisoners who were trying to make their way home. The allies tried to get us to fight the Bolshevik army, but Gen. Graves sat tight."

More died from disease than from wounds incurred in bolshevik attacks. Pneumonia and smallpox raged, Miss Gertrude Hutchins of San Francisco, army nurse at Vladivostok, said. Typhus sprang up overnight and hundreds were ill with Spanish influenza.

Two veterans, however, recalled the expedition with pleasure. F. C. Halmos of Hollywood, a petroleum engineer, says, "I had so much fun I really liked it. The natives were very hospitable." And Lester C. Dibble, Mason City [Ia.] lawyer who saw 8,000 miles of Siberia, guarding a Red Cross train, said he enjoyed every minute of it. Cold? "Not much worse than Iowa," he said.

Schools Start Free Lunch Service for Poor Children

Hungry pupils should have food as well as instruction, in the opinion of the board of education. And so free lunch service for boys and girls unable to buy their lunch was opened for the year yesterday in elementary schools of congested districts. The free lunch disappeared in a hurry.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring spots affecting the outer or surface layer of the skin often result from a temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing.

You can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment whose medication stays in active contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For nearly 45 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritated oil ducts where many surface pimples start, and aids healing. Carefully cleansing the skin with Resinol Soap helps to quicken the pleasing results. Its gently active lather is refreshing and it rinses easily.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample, write Resinol, Dept. 89, Baltimore, Md.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

It's the HE and the SHE of it!

If somebody will lift up the corner of a convenient incinerator can, we'll drop a couple of alleged Thinkers into it.

What we mean is this: We keep hearing that there's no more housekeeping to be done. Just plain nonsense.

Sure your grandma had to get up early and milk the cow and make the soap and set the bread. And after whipping a stubborn wood stove into a whimper she'd start the preserves boiling.

But we know a little new-day wife who could make her grandmother scream for help. This young modern works eight hours a day in an office. And after that, for another eight hours, she keeps house—and glories in it. Why, she wouldn't trade you a minute of that second eight hours for all the emancipation of women in the book.

Furthermore, she doesn't intend to keep up that business grind all her life. One of these days, she hopes, she'll start buying pink-and-blue ribbon and be so gloriously happy about it that every "career" girl from here to breakfast will grind her teeth in frustrated envy.

Then the housekeeping will begin in earnest. This little missus will have to learn ten thousand things grandma never knew about. Her house will be cleaner, better managed, run with more brains but with no less attention or concentration. Her chances of bearing and saving her child are far better than in the '90's—because she knows how to do things.

Where does she learn all this? How does it all happen? Well, she gets some of it in school. She gets more from her mother. Not much that's new, however. The government may furnish her with a pamphlet or the services of a Miss So-and-So-who-has-a-theory.

But mostly, this grand little realist will turn to a good woman's magazine. An "old-fashioned woman's" magazine, if you will. One that still believes in kitchens and washing machines and brooms and things.

She won't turn drudge. She won't forget her rouge and nail polish. All that is in the same magazine.

But she'll make papa's salary roll two ways to the penny. She'll cut corners and turn tricks that will strain your credulity. She'll find out the best brands and how to buy 'em—the best methods and how to apply 'em and the best bargains and where to get 'em.

He will be as proud of her—and as careless about showing it—as grandpa was. He will go on being a man and She will go on being a woman this generation and, it is to be hoped, for a couple of thousand generations more. God bless 'em both!

Good Housekeeping Magazine, with all its testing and all its guaranteeing of the products in its pages, is glad to be the source of what She seems to have learned so suddenly.

AND A HUNDRED YEARS FROM NOW Good Housekeeping may go the way of Godey's Lady Book or it may be delivered by rocket cars. But then, and long after then, there will still be some enlightened way of helping the "She's" be the kind of housekeepers that make the "He's" the same lovable, clumsy and dependable partners in the only really important business in the world.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING MAGAZINE

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING is proud of being what some advanced thinkers call an old-fashioned woman's magazine. Good Housekeeping believes in the home. Just as it did in the days when it pioneered in establishing testing practice and standards for home equipment. It was the first consumer-protective agency to set up such standards. Good Housekeeping's testing services are divided into two distinct classifications:

(1) GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE started testing household appliances and equipment in 1909. Most well-known makes of stoves, refrigerators, washing machines and the like—electric or otherwise—have been tested at the Institute in the course of its busy career. The Good Housekeeping Institute Seal of Approval is awarded to appliances, equipment and utensils which meet the standards of quality of construction, efficiency of performance, satisfaction in service. Soaps and cleansers are also tested by the Institute.

(2) GOOD HOUSEKEEPING BUREAU was founded in 1912 by the late great Dr. Harvey Wiley, who fought to get the first federal Pure Food and Drugs Law enacted. The Bureau's work is confined to foods, cosmetics and a limited category of pharmaceutical supplies. Products which meet the tests are privileged to display the Good Housekeeping Bureau Seal of Approval.

What kind of tests are conducted?—Products submitted to the Institute are subjected to engineering tests, chemical tests or other laboratory tests depending on the nature of the product. In addition, they are given "practical-use" tests in which they are used by women as they would be in the home. Bureau products are subjected to the necessary chemical or biological tests. Foods tested are also checked by the Institute for palatability and suitable directions. Cosmetics, in addition to the Bureau tests, are subjected to the investigations of the Beauty Clinic, where they are applied and used as women would use them.

Who can have these tests made?—Any manufacturer whose product falls within the testing scope of Good Housekeeping Institute or Good Housekeeping Bureau, provided (1) he is established with good stability; (2) his product is sold with reasonably wide distribution.

Does a manufacturer have to advertise in Good Housekeeping to get the seal of approval?—No! The majority of products awarded Seals of Approval have never been advertised in Good Housekeeping.

Are these tests FREE?—Yes.

Why?—Because they are conducted primarily for the benefit of consumers.

Who pays for this service?—GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, itself. This service has cost over a million dollars in the past five years.

Does Good Housekeeping render any other unique service to its readers?—Yes. Since 1902, Good Housekeeping has guaranteed products and services to be as advertised in its advertising columns.

Where does this guaranty appear?

On page 6 in every issue of Good Housekeeping.

What is the Good Housekeeping Guaranty?—If you purchase any product advertised in this issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine within one year following its date and find the product unsatisfactory, we will carefully investigate your complaint and if the product is defective or is not as advertised herein, it will be replaced or your money refunded.

What does it mean to you?

1. If you purchase any product or service advertised in Good Housekeeping, you will receive the benefit of the Guaranty.
2. Products or services you see advertised in Good Housekeeping will perform what is promised for them and do what it is claimed they will do as stated in their advertisements in Good Housekeeping.
3. Failing such, the products or services will be replaced or your money refunded.

Why do products advertised in Good Housekeeping have such widespread acceptance among women today?

1. Advertising is accepted only from manufacturers in whose reliability Good Housekeeping has confidence.
2. Good Housekeeping carefully investigates the essential claims and satisfactory qualities of products or services before advertising is accepted.

LEGION AUXILIARY INDORSES DIES COMMITTEE QUIZ

1,700 at State Dinner; Election Today.

Indorsement of the Dies committee and its investigation of un-American activities was voted unanimously yesterday by the women's auxiliary of the American Legion. The resolution was offered by Ohio's candidate for national president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Ernest G. Rarey, who is chairman of the Americanism committee.

Election of officers will be held today. Other candidates for the presidency are Mrs. William H. Corwith of New York and Mrs. Myron Miller of Kansas.

1,700 Attend State Dinner.

The social climax of the auxiliary's meeting was reached last night at the annual state dinner, attended by 1,700 persons, in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. The principal speaker was Stephen F. Chadwick, national commander of the Legion.

"We will keep America out of war," he said, "despite what the wise boys in Washington say to the effect that we'll be in the war in six months. With the force of the Legion and its auxiliary, standing shoulder to shoulder, America will not fight in this war."

Vice Presidents Named.

Candidates for district vice presidencies were nominated at the day session. They are: East, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, Norwich, Conn.; central, Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Racine, Wis.; south, Mrs. C. W. Harris Bishopville, S. C.; west, Mrs. Al J. Mathebat, Alameda, Cal., and northwest, Mrs. G. E. Chambers, Cut Bank, Mont.

The convention, amid merriment, adopted a resolution that members should refrain from wearing the Legion's overseas cap. "We should leave something exclusively to the menfolk," said Mrs. Andrew H. Lawo of Memphis, Tenn., community service chairman.

The trophy for department histories was awarded to Illinois. Miss Marie L. Foederer of Highland Park won second prize in the Fidac essay contest.

Lincoln and Dixie Division Veterans Hold Reunions

Members of the 31st [Dixie] and the 84th [Lincoln] division veterans' associations held their second annual reunions yesterday in loop hotels.

The 84th veterans elected R. H. Sweet of Springfield chairman; Paul Davis, Washington, Ind., vice chairman, and W. P. Moore, West Frankfort, Ill., secretary.

GREATER HEROES ARE DEAD, SAYS AN HONORED VET

John J. Kelly Leaves Medals at Home.

In Chicago today is one of the great heroes of the world war of 1914-'18.

He is John J. Kelly, former private in the 78th company of the 6th Marines, who is reputed to have won more medals in the war than any other Chicagoan. His commanding officer, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune of the Marine corps, once declared him "the most distinguished private soldier from Illinois."

Lives on His Pension.

He hasn't got his medals with him now. He left them in California, where he has had to live most of the time in recent years because of gas injuries suffered in the war. He has very little money, having lived since the war on his pension averaging $37 a month. At present he is staying with his brother, Thomas Kelly, before going on to the Mayo clinic for treatment.

Modest and not interested in wearing a uniform or decorations, even in the Legion convention celebrations, Kelly deprecated war yesterday afternoon. "My three brothers and I all enlisted soon after the war was declared in 1917," he said, "and THE TRIBUNE published our pictures as one of the first families to join the colors. I was 17 then."

Tells of Battle Feat.

Asked about the time he advanced through his own barrage, broke up a German machine gun nest, and returned through the barrage with eight prisoners singlehanded, Kelly replied, "The guys that are dead are greater heroes than I am. All I did was use a little head work."

LEGION'S CIRCUS HAS EVERYTHING BUT GOOD CROWD

Marching, Music Vie for Awe and Admiration.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Soldiers' field was the setting last night for a display of amazing and beautiful precision. Some of it was military, some of it musical, and some of it gymnastic. Each was perfect in its field.

There was even a mellow harvest moon, an autumnal haze and a surcease of wind for the "spectacle of stars," the final outdoor spectacle of the 21st American Legion convention. There was everything but a huge crowd, for the stadium was less than a third filled. Yet the show was flawless.

More Than a Circus.

It was unofficially known as a circus, but the roar of drums and the symmetry of marching feet were more in evidence than sawdust. A few aerial acts, such as the incredibly agile Paroff trio, who clambered about like three white monkeys on two suspended ladders 100 feet in the air, gave the crowd its necessary moment of happy breathlessness.

The first long moment of awe came when the Sons of the American Legion's champion drum and bugle corps, the Des Moines, Ia., unit, marched onto the field. In uniforms of red, white, and blue, brilliant against the green grass, and led by an august young drum major and a sun tanned little girl baton twirler in white satin.

Sometimes their steps were short and fast, sometimes long and slow, sometimes dancing, but there was never a break in their perfection.

Their sole competitors for prolonged admiration were the Commonwealth Edison Drum and Bugle corps and the Zouave team from Jackson, Mich.

The Zouaves, in blue dragoons, red jackets, fezzes, and white boots, performed on a great wooden floor, marching, twisting, forming to command. Sometimes they made 300 steps to a minute, the tapping of their feet on the floor [amplified] sounding like rapid, ceaseless drumplay. Here, again, was visual proof of incredible perfection.

Alec Templeton There.

There was also much music, dancing, and three guest stars who dropped in for a brief five minutes. Alec Templeton, the blind pianist, gave a scintillating, hilarious performance on the piano. Morton Downey sang an Irish folksong [although the Legionnaire from Tennessee cried for "Dixie! Dixie!"] and Eddie Cantor told them, in song, what he thinks about America's participation in Europe's war.

EDWARD MULROONEY OF DELAWARE NAMED 40 AND 8 PRESIDENT

Edward A. Mulrooney of Wilmington, Del., yesterday was elected chef de chemin de fer [president] of the 40 and 8, the fun making and honor society of the American Legion. He succeeds James Sheppard of Edgefield, S. C. Among the other officers elected are R. C. Patrick, Mason City, Ia., one of five sous chefs; Phil E. Clements, Indianapolis, historien national; C. W. Ardery, Indianapolis, correspondant national; E. K. Luchenbecker, Minneapolis, avocat national.

Illinois won the 40 and 8 trophy for membership. The Ingram membership trophy went to Minnesota. The Mills award for voiture [chapter] activity was taken by voiture 102, Detroit, and the Murphy trophy for ritual teams went to voiture 45, Minneapolis.

Following are parade contests in which Chicagoland states and cities figured:

Bands: Olympia, Wash., first; Rockford, Ill., second, and Winston-Salem, N. C., third. Drum and bugle corps: St. Paul, Minn., first; Des Moines, Ia., second, and Akron, O., third. Best marching unit, St. Paul. Best appearing drum major, Rich Kennelly, Des Moines. Grand voiture membership in parade: Ohio, first; Michigan, second, and Indiana, third.

BOOST NATION'S ARMED MIGHT, LEGION DEMANDS

Vote for Full Peace Time Military Strength.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Immediate raising of the nation's military forces to their full peacetime strength, sweeping improvements in armament and modernization of the army, navy, aviation service, and merchant marine, were demanded in a resolution adopted yesterday by the twenty-first national convention of the American Legion.

The resolution, prepared by the Legion's committee on national defense, also proposed military training for the Civilian Conservation corps, establishment of additional naval bases and the rehabilitation of American shipyards.

Demand Congress Stay on Job.

In addition, the convention adopted unanimously the resolution of its foreign relations committee which demanded that congress remain in session during the present war crisis, that the President and congress should use every means to keep America out of the war, and that the armed forces be expanded to protect our neutrality.

The Legionnaires heard Gen. Hugh S. Johnson recount the staggering cost of the last war to this country in lives and money. He urged that Europe be left to fight its own battles.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, assailed communism and other subversive doctrines and advocated strict neutrality for this country. He assailed the union of communism and Naziism and called them kindred creeds of tyranny.

Speaking ahead of Green, Col. George Crosfield extended the greetings of the British Legion, of which he is past national chairman. He was followed by Gen. Adalbert de Chambrun, who eloquently recalled past unions of American and French arms. He represented the National Confederation of French Veterans.

Boston Wins Convention.

At the close of the day's session, the Legion selected Boston as next year's meeting place and set the date as Sept. 23-26. Kansas City and Milwaukee made bids for the 1941 conclave.

The purpose of the national defense resolution, it was explained, is to make America strong enough to meet any invasion before it arrives. The ability to turn back an invader before he could reach this country would prevent desolation of any part of it, the resolution stated.

It urged that the government immediately begin gathering a supply of raw and manufactured materials sufficient to equip, supply, maintain, and subsist a military and naval force of not less than a million men for a year. A definite policy on the situation in the Pacific and increased fortification of the Panama canal also were sought.

Make Navy World's Best.

The navy should be made the greatest in the world, capable of defending both the Atlantic and the Pacific coast lines, the resolution continued. It recommended that the army strength be raised to 280,000 and that of the National Guard to 426,000, as provided by the national defense act. It was urged that these restrictive limits then should be removed by congress so that the changing situation may be properly and promptly met.

The convention took a strong stand against retirement of army officers because of age in cases where their mental and physical condition is satisfactory.

Other Recommendations.

Other recommendations included:

Construction of a highway to Alaska for military and strategic reasons and the establishment of an Alaskan National Guard. Establishment of naval bases on Guam and Wake Islands and other strategic points. Immediate appropriation of funds to complete the present program for military and naval aviation.

That the government give all possible aid to private aviation with the view of using it for military purposes if necessary. Inauguration of a rigid airship building program under naval supervision and prohibition of the export of helium [airship gas].

Steps to prevent sabotage through enactment of a law barring from employment in munitions or airplane factories any but citizens of the United States.

The convention also adopted a resolution, withdrawing the Legion from FIDAC, an international organization of world war veterans of the Allied armies. This was in keeping with the policy of strict neutrality.

Col. Crosfield, who lost a leg in the world war, admitted in his address that the British hope to enlist America's good will, but added:

"It would be quite improper for me to urge you to any action, nor do I so desire to abuse the privilege of the invitation you have extended. Any nation faced with the possibility of taking any formal part in the war must determine its own course under the guidance of its duly constituted leaders."

At the close of his talk he presented National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick of the Legion with a Union Jack.

De Chambrun Pays Tribute.

Gen. De Chambrun recalled French and American victories of world war days and paid tribute to the American arms.

"It is thanks to you," he said, "that our strengthened frontiers now lie 200 miles farther than the front on which you were lined up. Firmly associated with England, our ally of those days, we are confident that we carry to a successful conclusion the war that has been imposed upon us."

The general then conferred upon Commander Chadwick the French Legion of Honor and kissed him upon both cheeks to the accompaniment of prolonged applause and laughter.

Gen. Johnson said that in the last war America started out to abolish all former diplomatic games of "seven-toed Pete with the deuces wild."

"With smiles and smirks our associates accepted our childish enthusiasms," he continued. "And they took our money and our lives. We were the world's prize fat boy with a bag of candy among a horde of hungry urchins. We have been so ever since. As Will Rogers used to say, 'We never lost a war or won a conference.'"

Green assailed the secret agreement made by Russia and Germany after each had declared that there is no common ground between communism and Nazism and that conflict between them must always exist.

He was applauded when he said that the American Federation of Labor never knowingly accepts a communist into membership.

Off to a Late Start.

The day's session, which was to have started at 8:30 a.m., got under way at 9:09 with presentation of the Monahan post band, Sioux City, Ia., the champion chosen Monday for 1939-'40. It has been champion five times previously.

Lack of funds had forced the players to give up hope of appearing at this convention, said Leo Kucinsky, their leader. Late last week, however, they borrowed money individually and made the trip. Their victory entitles them to $1,000 prize money, and they can all pay their debts. Later in the program the delegates heard the new champion drum and bugle corps of Capt. Harry B. Doremus post, Hackensack, N. J.

Read Message From Pershing.

The late start was due to the tardy arrival of the Legionnaires, some of whom did not wander in until 11:30 a. m. Past National Chaplain Thomas Kennedy delivered the invocation and National Commander Chadwick read a message from Gen. John J. Pershing who was prevented by ill health from attending the convention.

"You have watched with tender care the sick and wounded whose long sufferings have added to their sacrifice," the message read, in part. "But in these grave times, still heavier duties rest upon you to preserve the blessings of our civilization against subversive influences that are constantly at work to overthrow the things we hold most dear. In this I know you will not fail."

After a lag, due to absence of speakers, Milwaukee's bid for the 1941 convention was made by Harry Devine, president of the common council there. Then Charles Edison of Illinois, chairman of the committee on education of orphans, delivered his report, urging that states and the federal government revise their scholarship laws to include postwar orphans of veterans in the preferred group.

Also heard was Fletcher Padget Jr. of South Carolina, winner of the national oratorical contest sponsored by the Legion. A tall, dark haired boy, he spoke feelingly on appreciation of the federal constiution.

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri embodied in Kansas City's bid for the 1941 convention a strong plea for neutrality.

"The eyes of the nation are focused on this gathering," he said. "Never before have we entered upon such perilous times with so large a number of men with war experience determined to prevent the United States from being drawn into a conflict."

Warns of Possible Defeat.

In delivering greetings to the convention Rabbi A. H. Silver of Cleveland declared that though America is determined to stay out of war, she should consider that a defeat of England and France would have a grave effect upon this country.

"If political barbarism triumphs in this war and France and England fall prey to dictatorships, it will be not its armies but its doctrines that will invade this country," said Rabbi Silver. "Those subversive groups in this country that have troubled us not a little in years past will multiply a thousand fold and will become a real threat to neutrality.

"It is doubtful that in a world where the last beacons of freedom will have been extinguished that our own torch of freedom can remain burning."

Does Your Breath Shout 'FALSE TEETH'?

Stera-Kleen Prevents False Teeth Odor—Cleans Without Brushing

"False teeth odor" is the curse of denture wearers. Ordinary brushing or antiseptics often will not remove scum and food particles that collect on your plate or bridge. This uncleanliness gives off the most offensive of breath odors—you do not know if you have it—but others do.

Prevent this odor by using STERA-KLEEN and make sure of absolute cleanliness. STERA-KLEEN dissolves scum and food particles from the tiny crevices of your plate that brushing does not reach. It is safe—economical—easy to use.

Stir a little STERA-KLEEN in water, put in your plate or bridge for a few minutes. Rinse, and it is ready for use without brushing. Daily use prevents "false teeth odor." Get STERA-KLEEN today. Only 30¢ a package at any drug store.

SEEK QUICK TRIAL OF BOY IN KILLING OF HIS GUARDIAN

Ex-St. Charles Inmate Tells of Shooting Farmer.

Authorities moved last night to bring Charles Allen Dain, a former inmate of the St. Charles School for Boys and now, at 14, a killer, to trial swiftly.

Assistant State's Attorney Donald Wicks of McHenry county said Dain, who killed his benefactor, Lester Groth, 34 years old, a McHenry county farmer, early Tuesday, may be arraigned on a murder charge today before Police Magistrate Grant Dolan at Woodstock. McHenry county authorities said the case will be presented to the grand jury when it convenes in Woodstock on Oct. 11.

Tells of Shooting Victim.

The youthful slayer told yesterday how he shot Groth through the heart with a .22 caliber rifle before beating and stabbing him. Prosecutor Wicks said Dain told him he got the rifle from a toolbox on the farm and shot Groth while the farmer was opening a gate to allow some calves to enter the barn.

Groth took two steps forward and fell on his face, Dain told the prosecutor. Then Dain reversed his rifle, clubbed Groth about the head, and stabbed him with one of the four knives he carried, Wicks said.

Dain's story was confirmed by an autopsy performed late Tuesday night in Genoa, Wicks said.

Both His Parents Dead.

Supt. William T. Harmon of the St. Charles school, to which the boy was committed three years ago, said Groth received $25 a month in return for providing a home for him. Dain was put into a foster home because of his youth and because both of his own parents were dead, Harmon said.

"We have about 90 boys who have been placed in foster homes and who remain entirely under the control of a supervisory staff from the school," Harmon said. "In addition, as of today, there are 851 boys on parole from the school.

"The latter group of boys are under the supervision of the state parole department. Some of them receive wages, decided upon in conference between the boy's sponsor and his parole supervisor. Others, who may be paroled to friends, relatives, or even to their own parents, may not be receiving any wage."

Groth was married and the father of three small children.

Ex-City Clerk Pleads Guilty as Embezzler; Sent to Cell

Belvidere, Ill., Sept. 27 [Special].—Former City Clerk E. J. Geick today pleaded guilty to an indictment charging embezzlement of city funds totaling $6,409.43. He then was sentenced to one to 15 years in the state penitentiary at Joliet. Geick, who is 34 years old, told Judge William L. Pierce he wanted to plead guilty, serve his term and then work to make restitution.

POLICEMAN DIES, THIRD VICTIM OF ROBBERS' GUNS

Lieut. Gene Iattoni of the Calumet City police died yesterday in St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, of bullet wounds. His death was the third that resulted from a pistol battle between policemen and robbers Saturday night in the beverage store of Charles H. Mayer in Calumet City.

Lieut. Gene Iattoni.

One of the other victims was John Fusner, 51, of 512 Lewis street, Hammond, a bystander caught between the two sets of combatants. The third to die was Frank Hussar, one of the bandits.

Two members of the robber gang are in custody. One, John Frejlich of 13431 Avenue M., is in the Bridewell hospital, under treatment for serious wounds. Tony Kaufman, 13537 Avenue M, is held by the police.

LOOK TO CHEMISTS FOR CLEWS IN DEATH OF COUPLE IN AUTO

Ottawa, Ill., Sept. 27 [Special].—Results of chemical analyses were awaited today by Sherif E. J. Welter of La Salle county in the hope that they would solve the mysterious deaths of John B. Kenny of Wenona and Miss Lorena Zimmerman of Leonore.

Kenny, 49 years old, was a maintenance employé in the Ottawa office of the state highway department, and Miss Zimmerman, 30, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zimmerman.

Their bodies were found this morning in Kenny's automobile in the middle of a gravel road 300 feet off state highway 18 and two miles east of highway 51, near Lostant. Headlights of the car were burning and these attracted the attention of Willard Meyer, a farmer who lives near streator.

Meyer found the ignition switch of Kenny's car still on. The gasoline tank was empty. He called Sherif Welter, who said he believed the deaths were the result of monoxide gas.

A SOFT HEARTED BANDIT PROTESTS VICTIM IS CRUEL

John Gilmore, 30 years old, a parole violator from the western state penitentiary in Pennsylvania, was held to the grand jury in $20,000 bond yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman. Gilmore was arraigned on two of twenty-seven charges of robbery the police have against him.

One who testified against the parolee was Joseph Lochanski, owner of a shoe shop at 2312 Chicago avenue. Gilmore was shot and slightly wounded by Lochanski in an attempted holdup in Sept. 7. His arrest followed.

"Judge, I don't like that guy's attitude," said Gilmore of Lochanski. "I could have killed him twice, but I was too soft hearted."

Firebug Was Just Lit, Court Is Told; Gets a Year in Jail

Ollie Weber, 26 years old, who likes to set small fires so he can watch the engines race by, was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Gibson E. Gorman. Weber, who lives at 2151 North Clark street, admitted ten such offenses. A court psychiatrist said Ollie's impulses came from fire water.

AMERICANS PAY REDS MILLIONS, EX-AGENT SAYS

Tells Committee Mail Is Robbed by Spies.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27 (AP).—Dr. David H. Dubrowsky, who represented the Russian Red Cross in America from 1928 to 1935, made an estimate before the Dies committee today that Americans and their government contribute approximately $17,500,000 a year to the coffers of the soviet union.

David H. Dubrowsky.

Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] offered the opinion that was more than sufficient to finance what he called communist espionage and sabotage activities in this country.

Such activities, Dubrowsky testified, included the theft of United States mail by Russian secret police agents and plots to intercept cables and telegrams through minor employés of communications companies.

Witness Lists Contributions.

Dubrowsky's total included:

$8,000,000 in so-called duties and licenses on food and clothing sent by Americans to the needy in Russia.

$5,000,000 from Russian motion pictures distributed in this country.

$2,400,000 from Bookniga, Russian book distributing agency.

$1,200,000 from Inreklama, an agency which he said solicits Russian newspaper advertising from concerns which sell to the soviet's Amtorg Trading corporation.

$500,000 from Iniurcollegia, an agency which collects estate and insurance money for Russian claimants. Dubrowsky charged this organization keeps most of this money for governmental purpose.

$400,000 from the American Veterans administration in pensions and benefits made out to residents of Russia. Most of this amount, the witness said, was intercepted by the Russian government and used for propaganda and other activities in America.

Tells of Secret Agent.

Dubrowsky said he resigned as agent of the Russian Red Cross in America because veterans' benefits were being confiscated by the government.

Dubrowsky charged that the ink was hardly dry on the American recognition of the soviet union in 1933, when Jacob Sternglus, a Russian secret police agent, was assigned to his New York office as a spy.

He said he discovered that Sternglus tried to compel a member of their staf to do "special work," which involved the theft of mail from the mail boxes of private individuals.

When Chairman Dies inquired whether such activities still were being practiced in this country, Dubrowsky replied: "This is the nature of the beast. You can't help it. That man was removed. Another has come, or will come, to take his place."

5 NEW INFANTILE PARALYSIS CASES IN BUFFALO, N. Y.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27 [Special].—This city's infantile paralysis epidemic continued to grow today as five new cases were reported to the local health department, bringing the total to date to 263. One death was reported Tuesday, raising the total death list to eight.

Opening of elementary and high schools—public, private and parochial—scheduled for Sept. 6, was postponed by action of the board of health in an effort to halt the outbreak. In addition, the board issued an order prohibiting children under fifteen years of age from attending public gatherings, including movies and baseball games.

Schools in nearby Batavia, Oakfield, Alden, Alexander and Pavilion have been closed after operating from two to three weeks. Batavia, a city of 25,000, has reported about forty cases of the disease.

WIFE WINS WRIT TYING UP FUND OF HEIR TO 50 MILLION

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington issued a temporary injunction yesterday restraining the First National bank from making a quarterly payment due Oct. 1 on the $100,000 annual income received by Stanley K. Young from the $50,000,000 estate left by his grandfather, the late Otto Young, pioneer Chicago merchant. The bank is trustee of the estate.

The injunction was requested by Stanley Young's wife, Mrs. Ruth Young, 26 years old, of the Ambassador hotel. She filed a suit for separate maintenance on Tuesday, alleging that her husband deserted her last May in St. Petersburg, Fla. Young is reported to be in Belton, Mont.

Hit by a Falling Flower Pot; Falls in Coma 2 Days Later

He told friends of the accident, but said his injury was not serious. Last night J. A. Balboa of 1420 Howard street called on him. He found Short unconscious and took him to the Evanston hospital. There Dr. John Mitchell found that Short, who is 27 years old, has a fracture of the skull.

JILTED FOR FEAR OF NAGGING, GIRL RETURNS LICENSE

Howard N. King, 27 years old, and Eleanore Doris Pihl, 22, were to be married last Saturday afternoon in her home at 2807 Enoch avenue, Zion. She was in her veil; her parents, the minister and 60 wedding guests were ready, but—

King didn't arrive. After waiting several hours Eleanore's father, Herbert, went to the apartment at 128 North Jackson street, Waukegan, where King had been living. King had flown, leaving an unchivalrous note in which he said he feared Eleanore "was a nagger, and the marriage would be no go."

On Tuesday she received a telegram from King, saying he was on his way to Florida. Yesterday, still weeping, Eleanore had the unused marriage license returned to Jay B. Morse, Lake county clerk at Waukegan.

FEDERATION METAL UNIONS HIT LEWIS AND C. I. O. PROGRAM

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 27 (AP).—American Federation of Labor metal trades unions renewed their bitter criticism of John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. today with the suggestion that future White House efforts to bring about labor peace be directed solely toward Lewis. The unions completed a three day convention by adopting a report asserting that the federation stood ready to negotiate peace.

President Roosevelt said recently he would send another message to the A. F. of L. convention here next week, and labor leaders said they expected it to be a plea for labor to get together for national unity.

The convention took no stand on the Wagner act and the national labor relations board which will be considered by the main A. F. of L. convention starting next week.

You've hit your inner stride
....when you regain healthy per-i-stal-sis

You plunge into work and play at top form...there's lift to your step...when you hit your inner stride! That inner stride starts with a rhythmic motion inside. The name for it is per-i-stal-sis. When it's healthy, the intestines contract...expand...contract...as steady as your heart beat. When it slows down, you know something's wrong. You feel constipated, heavy.

Then you can't afford to take chances. You want a thorough flushing-out, and you want it quick ...to clear the way for healthy per-i-stal-sis. That's the time for Eno!

What fluid-action does

You need extra fluid in the intestines. Eno brings it from other parts of the body. Eno gives mild stimulation. Clogged wastes are effectively cleared away by Eno's stimulation...by its fluid-action. How easy to swing into stride, now per-i-stal-sis is healthy again!

Don't forget: Eno "alkalizes"

Take Eno, also, to help neutralize excess stomach acids. Get this extra alkalizing benefit while you enjoy Eno's sparkling, tangy taste.

When you're off-stride, try Eno's fluid-action. Feel gloriously free as lift, lightness return! Ask for Eno now at any drug store.

FORMER INDIANA KLAN BOSS MAPS BID FOR FREEDOM

Stephenson Tells Why He Stood Mute at Trial.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Noblesville, Ind., Sept. 27.—David Curtis Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan and the state's political boss in the early 1920s, tonight told his story of the trial in which he was convicted of murder in 1925. He is in the Hamilton county jail here awaiting the outcome of one of several attempts to win a new trial.

Stephenson was convicted of murdering Madge Oberholtzer, a social worker employed at the statehouse at Indianapolis. She died after having taken poison during a week-end spent with Stephenson at a Hammond, Ind., hotel.

Fourteen years in prison have not dimmed the fire nor roughened the eloquence of the dumpy little man whose word was law in Indiana 15 years ago.

Tells Threats Upon Life.

"I had to take my choice 14 years ago between dying at the hands of assassins or of being convicted of a crime I did not commit," he said. "I chose the latter course because my attorneys told me they believed I would be killed if I took the witness stand.

"Threats were made to me personally, too. A high Ku Klux Klansman in this state told me I'd get my head blown off if I said a word.

"There never was any other reason why I stood mute at my trial. I believed I could get my story told—get my day in court—after the passions of those days had eased and the blast of publicity had died. That's what I'm trying to do now—I want to get a showdown in the crucible of a fair public hearing."

Becomes a Power Overnight.

The indictment of Stephenson was the climax of one of the most astonishing eras in Indiana history. It began in 1921 when Stephenson joined the klan at Evansville, where he had been in the coal business since leaving the army. He had served as a second lieutenant with an Indiana regiment that saw no overseas duty.

Stephenson quickly became the leader of the movement in Evansville and showed such marked organizing ability that Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, the imperial wizard, or national chief, invited him from Atlanta to rule over the state.

Stephenson, speaking of those days, says that he soon found out how to make the show that attracted the yokels. He said he was giving them a barbecue one night, holding a parade the next, and generally giving the klansmen a holiday.

Ruler of 315,000 Members.

Soon the state had 315,000 citizens who were Ku Kluxers. They paid $10 initiation fee, of which $4 was said to go to Stephenson, and another $10 for robes.

This organization became political over night. Each klansman was told how to vote—Stephenson's way—and soon he had constables, sherifs, justices of the peace, and even higher state officials directly under his orders.

One week-end in March, 1925, Stephenson and two bodyguards boarded a train at Indianapolis for Chicago. With them was Miss Oberholtzer. All four had been drinking. They stopped, however, at Hammond and went to a hotel. There was a great deal more drinking and some time during the affair Miss Oberholtzer swallowed some poison tablets.

The state contended in the trial following her death that she was denied medical treatment. She was brought back to Indianapolis and taken to servants' quarters over a garage at Stephenson's east side home. A day later she was removed to her own home, where she died.

Girl's Statement Read.

The case was taken to Noblesville on a change of venue from Indianapolis. The weightiest item in the state's evidence was the statement allegedly made by the dying girl in which she declared she virtually had been kidnaped and raped. The statement was read into the record.

When it came Stephenson's time to testify he stood mute and his conviction followed.

Stephenson's statement tonight was made in the parlor of Sherif Joe Newby's home. With Stephenson was Alban Smith, former mayor of La Porte, Ind., who is one of his attorneys. With E. E. Cole, second member of the defense staff, they had spent seven hours today conferring in preparation for a hearing to be held here on Oct. 4 on Stephenson's petition for a writ of error coram nobis. Freely translated, "coram nobis" means "before the same court."

Mayor Kelly to Proclaim Thanksgiving on New Date

Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he will follow the lead of Gov. Horner in issuing a Thanksgiving day proclamation. The governor announced in Springfield Tuesday that he would proclaim Thanksgiving day in Illinois for Nov. 23 in line with President Roosevelt's intention to call for observance of the holiday this year a week earlier than usual.

Tom Pendergast Granted Hearing on Parole Plea

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27 (AP).—The justice department today announced that a member of the federal parole board will consider the parole application of Tom Pendergast, former Kansas City political boss now in prison for income tax evasion. Pendergast entered Leavenworth on May 29, 1939, and will be eligible for parole on Oct. 29.

MAYOR PROPOSES PLAN TO BREAK TRANSIT LOG JAM

Wants to Drop Values from Franchise.

Omission for the present of a fixed valuation for Chicago's transit lines in the proposed unified traction franchise was urged yesterday by Mayor Kelly in an effort to break the deadlock in negotiations which has existed for three months.

He made his suggestion at a joint meeting of the local transportation committee and the transit lines' negotiators—Walter A. Shaw, adviser to the federal court; Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, and Col. A. A. Sprague, trustee for the elevated lines.

Must Keep 7 Cent Fare.

The mayor told the meeting, however, that the city will demand maintenance of a 7 cent fare. The companies' representatives had asked for 8 cents.

The city and the companies have been far apart on what they think the properties are worth. The companies demand a figure of 201 million dollars; the city, 101 millions. Inability to reconcile this difference has tied up negotiations, although the ordinance must be completed if the city meets the Nov. 1 deadline set by the Public Works administration, which granted 18 millions toward the cost of the new subway.

The only purpose in including a fixed valuation in the franchise, it was said, is to set a figure at which the city could purchase the lines in the event it wanted them at some future time. In place of the figure the mayor proposed that a clause be inserted in the franchise providing a means for arbitrating a price should the city ever decide to buy the properties.

No Effect on Fares.

Rates of fares now are settled by the Illinois commerce commission which has full jurisdiction over valuations for this purpose. This jurisdiction will be held by a Chicago local transportation commission if a unified franchise is achieved.

The transit negotiators said it is doubtful whether any agreement can be reached now on a figure and indicated that the mayor's suggestion is feasible. They said they would consider the plan and report back to the transportation committee Friday.

EXPLAIN 'WAVES' IN SOUTH SHORE DRIVE; FILL SANK

Motorists who have complained about the wavy bumps in the pavement of the outer drive, from Randolph street to Jackson park, got an explanation yesterday from George T. Donoghue, park district superintendent. He said they are caused by the settling of filled in land on which the drive is constructed.

Donoghue said that due to the varying depth of the old lake bed the fill is from 30 to 62 feet deep.

"Ten per cent settlement of a fill is a common occurrence and we haven't had that much," he said. "Lincoln park was filled in 1907 and some of it is still settling. Besides, I don't think the roadway is unpleasant."

GIRL, 21, KILLED BY FALL.

Miss Martha Pooch, 21 years old, fell over a bannister one and a half floors to the basement of her apartment home at 3839 Wayne avenue Tuesday and died last night in the Swedish Covenant hospital.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafc Toll

More than 9% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

FINE SPEEDER $40 AS 2 FORGOTTEN CHARGES BOB UP

When Roger S. Odman of 605 Hill road, Winnetka, was arrested Sept. 20 on a charge of speeding in Lake Shore drive, he was forced to surrender his driving license. Records then disclosed that twice previously his arrest had been ordered for trafic offenses, on May 13, 1938, and Aug. 18, 1937. Yesterday Odman was arraigned on all three charges before Judge John Gutknecht and was fined a total of $40. Odman, who is 29 years old, said he was in Iowa when the first case was called and had forgotten the other. Judge Gutknecht complimented the police department on the efficacy of enforcement measures.

DRIVE CAREFULLY DURING TWILIGHT, AUTOISTS URGED

Motorists were warned by the Greater Chicago Safety council yesterday to be careful during the period of deceptive light during twilight.

"Drivers should bear in mind that a driving hazard is created with the first approach of twilight," the council bulletin said. "It is best to make use of headlights as soon as the light begins to wone. It is impossible to judge distances normally in semi-darkness."

Miss Mildred Lanthier, 21 years old, 6635 South Wabash avenue, one of two women passengers in a small truck that struck a pole at Western avenue and 92d street early Tuesday, died last night. The driver of the car is Carleton Colby, 23, of 260 West 65th street.

Frank Schorik, 62, of 2553 South Trumbull avenue, died yesterday in the County hospital of a skull fracture received Monday in an automobile accident at Harlem avenue and Cermak road, North Riverside.

Julius Rayfield, 57 years old, colored, of 73 East 42d street, died last night as the result of injuries incurred Tuesday when his auto was struck by a cattle truck driven by Leroy York of Tipton, Ia., at Archer and Laporte avenues.

There were no trafic fatalities reported in Cook county in the 24 hours ended at 4 p. m. yesterday. Up to that hour, 622 persons had been killed by automobiles in the county since Jan. 1. In this period 481 were killed and 16,081 injured in Chicago.

PUT OUT FIRE NEAR HOSPITAL.

A fire in a rubbish cart in a courtyard of St. Luke's hospital, 1439 South Michigan avenue, was put out by firemen last night before it gained headway.

2 TOWNS PROTEST STATE'S REMOVAL OF TRAFIC SIGNS

City officials of Lake Forest and Highland Park were stirred to protest yesterday against the removal by the state highway department of all 45 mile speed limit signs along Skokie road within the boundaries of the two cities. They also objected to the moving of city limit signs to points well within the actual limits.

Mayor Kent Chandler of Lake Forest said the action was "arbitrary and senseless." He said he felt there should be some effective way to regulate speeders and added that Lake Forest policemen arrested motorists only when they went past 65 miles an hour. He complained to Gov. Horner and was referred to the highway department.

Ernst Lieberman, chief highway engineer, said the change was made because motorists paid scant attention to speed limits signs in uncongested areas. He added that one of his representatives would call on Mayor Chandler today, and that the signs would be restored in both towns if their officials insisted.

GETS YEAR FOR THEFT.

Harvey Freyling of Aurora was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell yesterday for stealing two diamond rings, valued at $150, from Mrs. Lelia Mae Legell, Rockford music teacher, in a loop hotel last Saturday.

Day by Day on the Farm

By HOMER N. WEISZ

Relief from Drouth.

Sept. 27, 1939.

A SLOW rain that fell steadily for nine hours at the Du Page county farm Monday night and yesterday brought relief from the worst fall drouth in many years. The water soaked into the dry ground as fast as it fell. It settled the clouds of dust that had blown about the farm for more than a month. No rain had fallen for nearly six weeks.

Pastures that had been brown and dusty are beginning to turn green again. The surface soil in fields where corn was cut for silage was softened so much that workers believe they can disk it and prepare the land for sowing winter wheat. They plan to start today. More rain is needed to put the fields in good condition for working.

New Homes for Swans.

Two pairs of white swans will be moved to new homes this week from their old home on the farm ponds. One pair will start tomorrow for northern Wisconsin. The other will be taken to a farm near Oswego in Kendall county.

An article in this column on Sept. 6 stated that the swans would be given to people who were prepared to take good care of them. Within a few days the birds had been offered fifty-six good homes in Chicagoland and elsewhere.

They were offered lakes, streams, and spring fed ponds in Michigan and Wisconsin with provision for keeping a space of open water for them during the winter. They were offered homes on large bodies of water in Florida with the assurance that the water never freezes over.

The swans had offers of clear lakes on stock farms in Kentucky. Requests for them came from many places in Illinois and Indiana. They could have had the free run of a mill pond of 480 acres near the Atlantic coast in North Carolina.

Drawing Decides Winners.

With twenty-eight homes available for each pair of swans, a drawing seemed the only fair means of deciding who should have them. Two numbers drawn from the total of fifty-six decided the swans' new owners. They are H. G. Bentson of Aurora and John S. Clark of Chicago.

Mr. Bentson will take his pair to his farm on route 34 near Oswego, where there is a small lake, fed by springs. He says the lake never runs dry, and that mallard ducks and Canada geese stay on it all the time. The swans have had both ducks and geese for neighbors on the ponds at the farm.

Mr. Clark will send his swans to his farm near Land O' Lakes, Wis. There they will have full charge of a lake three miles long and five miles wide.

JURY OF 1,100 HOUSEWIVES MADE "BLIND" TEST!

Here's the amazing majority vote!

1,100 housewives in cities from Coast to Coast were given "Sure-Mix" Crisco in plain, unlabeled cans.

They were not told what product they were being asked to test. They were merely asked to bake two cakes:

1. One cake with the unlabeled shortening (it was "Sure-Mix" Crisco).
2. The same cake with another shortening.

Then after the baking, we questioned each of these housewives to compare the results they got in the two cakes. And here is the majority preference vote:

THEY FOUND

1. Cakes rose HIGHER with "Sure-Mix" Crisco.
2. Cakes were LIGHTER with "Sure-Mix" Crisco.
3. Cakes were TENDERER with "Sure-Mix" Crisco.
4. Cakes BETTER-EATING with "Sure-Mix" Crisco.
5. Cakes EASIER TO MAKE with "Sure-Mix" Crisco.

Stage Manage Lunch Time for Your Children

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Your young school child's morning was discussed yesterday. Today let us go on to noontime, provided she comes home to lunch, and I sincerely hope she does; or, if not, that at school she has a hot meal or one hot dish and some time for both rest and play.

Lunch time isn't, in a way, quite as much within your control as either morning or afternoon. What you have to aim at for this short noon period for the young child who is showing the strain of school is absence of hurry. A simple hot lunch, or at least one hot dish, is most easily digested. At this meal I would rather see my child eat a little less and eat it in a relaxed way than to have her bolt a lot plus dessert in a rush. Certain dishes are more easily eaten than others. A rich vegetable soup or a strong vegetable lamb stew makes an excellent main dish for a schoolday luncheon.

If the meal is ready promptly your child can be quiet for a while afterward before going back to school. A book, a few minutes "flopping" on the couch as you talk together, or some other way will occur to you for these few moments of quiet after eating, so helpful to digestion.

Then, a start back in easy time for the afternoon session. And lucky the child whose teacher does not make a criminal offense of lateness, or whose school does not act in a similar manner about absence. Where the young school child is concerned, if lateness is frequent, it is the parent who should be approached [or reproached] and not the pupil.

And now we come to the afternoon and what is left of sunlight for our 6 or 7 year old, especially the one whose reaction to the demands and routine of the schoolday worry us. In spite of the theory of most nutritionists and pediatricians, I believe that school children when they reach home in the afternoon should have a small, nourishing snack. This is particularly practical if there is not a great deal of time for eating in the luncheon period. It also fits in with the rest of my plan for what remains of the day before bedtime.

After this afternoon snack and a little while indoors, if she enjoys it, the young child in ner first or second year of school should go out to play. If you live in the city you will have to set aside this part of your day to take her to the nearest park or square; that is, if you aren't the possessor of any private space like a back yard or a community play space such as some new apartment houses have.

The cream of the afternoon gone, call in your little boy or girl; or if you're out in the park start for home with plenty of leeway before dinner [or supper, if this is your lighter meal]. What to do with the rest of the day will be in tomorrow's column.

"Mealtime Habits" and "Helping the Nervous Child" are leaflets of interest to parents, teachers and nurses. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for each leaflet. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Beauty Editor Urges Children to Wash Hands

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Can your child wash at school?

After paying full respect to the teacher for her guidance through the mazes of subjects the child is initiated into, there is this to say:

Millions of children go to schools where they learn that washing hands thoroughly at certain times is one of the primary rules for good health and ordinary niceness, yet in treir own school buildings they are denied the means for putting into practice what their teachers tell them is an elemental factor in hygiene. Relatively few schools are equipped with all three essentials of handwashing—soap, hot water, and clean drying equipment. Soap and clean towels usually are the minus quantities, but in some schools even water must be toted, and in only a minority of school buildings is the water for handwashing heated.

Of course, Johnny's mother can pack a cake of soap and a clean towel into his lunch kit every morning. Or she may help to improve conditions by joining forces with other progressive mothers who consider funds for handwashing as essential as funds for the purchase of school books and other educational supplies. If necessary, she can work directly with the teacher, especially in rural communities, in providing tin basins, buckets of water, soap scraps, and other makeshifts which health-minded teachers find ways of putting to use.

Where teachers and parents are aware of the dangers of unclean hands, washing fundamentals can always be provided. New equipment cannot be obtained or new schedules put into effect overnight, but once there is evidence of a sincere will for effective handwashing in school, a way to bring it about can always be found.

Our interest in this cleanliness angle being instilled into the very young is based on the word of one of the best skin specialists in the country. He contends that much of the pimple eruption and blackhead formation of adolescent years begins in these early days; that the frequent washing of hands alone would spare thousands upon thousands of youngsters that tragic period so many of them suffer from skin blemishes. Rubbing the soiled hands over the face creates the blackhead formation, after which it is but a step into the pimple condition.

Hold Winnetka Fashion Show This Afternoon

BY JUDITH CASS.

TRAFIC near the New Trier High school in Winnetka early this afternoon may assume the proportions of an American Legion convention. Two-thirty is the hour set for the start of a fashion show the Winnetka board of Northwestern University settlement is giving in the school's auditorium.

Fashion conscious women will be in their seats in plenty of time, however, for they have learned in the past that the board's smooth running performances start on time. Each show is so crammed with interest and interesting clothes that no one wants to miss a single pretty model.

The hundred young women who will parade on the runway had a final rehearsal yesterday in the newly decorated auditorium. Today, while board members and the thousand or more who have bought tickets are enjoying luncheon parties before rushing to the school, the mannikins will submit to a final hair brushing and making up before slipping into the new gowns that dozens of shops in town and on the north shore are offering this season.

Young Assistants Guests at Tea.

Other young women who have important jobs as assistants—ushering, selling programs, and serving tea—were guests at a tea yesterday given by Mrs. William O. Coleman and Mrs. Ryland A. Wolcott at the former's Winnetka home.

Miss Virginia Ballard is to have the coveted rôle of the bride in the mock wedding that always brings the show to a close. Miss Mary Hale, in a ski outfit, will help to award a trip to Sun Valley—the trip is a door prize. Some lucky young woman between 18 and 28, who wears size 12, 16, or 18, will receive a round trip ticket by air to New York. She must wear an air hostess uniform on the trip, however, and act as assistant hostess. Mrs. John L. Irving will be wearing such a uniform this afternoon.

Several pieces of needle point that have been completed by the Needlework guild of the settlement will be on exhibition in care of some of the guild's members. They will take orders on further work.

Mrs. Austin Jenner, chairman of the show, is entertaining at luncheon at the Indian Hill club. The club will be the setting for dozens of other luncheon parties. Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. Edwin P. Price, Mrs. Fred W. Fairman, and Mrs. John Hooker are among those entertaining there. The show is the board's 13th annual one.

Du Page Hunt Delays Opening of Season.

The Du Page County hunt is postponing its first hunt again because of the Mill Creek's hunter trials on Sunday. Consequently the members of the Du Page will ride to hounds for the first time this season on Sunday, Oct. 8, meeting at the kennels on Cantigny farm at 4 o'clock. Col. Robert R. McCormick is M. F. H. of the Du Page and Mrs. Charles H. Coffin Jr. is its secretary.

Representing the Du Page at the hunter trials in Millburn will be two teams, one composed of Mrs. Louis F. Swift, Miss Anne Bryant, and Bradford Ripley, and the other of Mrs. Swift, William Wood, and Capt. Max Corpening. Horace Wetmore, Robert Bender, Mrs. Henry Hooper, and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick are others who ride regularly with the Du Page.

Mrs. Jefferson D. Currier, Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson Jr., Barrett Wendell III., Mrs. Nicholas Poole, Stephen Jennings, the Misses Nancy and Sally Miller, the Denison B. Hulls, Wallace Wakem, the Theodore Mohlmans, and Maj. Paul Morris of Fort Sheridan join the hunt occasionally.

The officers from Fort Sheridan always are invited to ride with the Du Page.

Early next month Mrs. Swift and her husband will have as their guest at their home in Wheaton his sister, Mrs. James Minotto of Phoenix. Mrs.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Western Front.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 27.—Immediately war broke out, publicity men at every major studio which had an English actor under contract rapped out yarns which, in the words of Allan Mowbray, "pictured local Britishers with a bayonet in one hand and a script in the other."

Mowbray, head of the British United Service club, an organization of perhaps 200 Englishmen who served as officers in the last world war, believes that the subject should be debunked of its more maudlin aspects.

Great Britain has not summoned a single soldier from here because it has its war strength at top quota. . . . In England, although the conscription act covers all classes from 18 to 41, only those up to 23 have been called.

Decision of David Niven and the earl of Warwick to return to England to report to their old regiments is entirely voluntary. . . . Niven plans to sail Oct. 10.

I talked to Niven last night. . . . "Don't picture me as heroic, old boy," he pleaded. . . . "I'm afraid that I'll be forever adjusting my shoelaces at the critical moments. You know I'll say to the other chaps: 'Run along, boys; don't wait for me.'"

The ides of March, of which the soothsayer warned Cæsar, promises to be the most decisive date in Hollywood history, because March 15 is the date on which the major studio heads will present the complete picture of foreign markets to the unions, the actors and the writers, and either ask for help, via salary reduction, or admit that help is not needed.

In signing over the 10 per cent increase to the unions the studio heads agreed that the new contract would be reviewed March 15, the ides of March. . . . The date is important.

The purpose of setting that exact date in mid-March is that the producers, at this moment, do not know how badly affected the English market will prove to be. . . . If the American market represents 65 per cent, the foreign market represents the complementary 35 per cent. . . . Just how great a portion of this 35 per cent will be wiped out is not apparent now, but will be obvious by March 15.

In this industry every one who works in it is paid on the basis of a world gross. . . . Claudette Colbert, to seize the handiest illustration, is paid $150,000 a picture predicated on a world gross of a single picture. . . . Obviously if 35 per cent of that world gross has been destroyed [for the purpose of this illustration], Miss Colbert reasonably might be asked to cut her salary in that proportion.

In this fashion, by trimming sails to the domestic market winds, the movies could continue to turn out films of regular quality for the American market.

On March 15, therefore, the producers will go to the unions and the performers and the writers and exhibit the figures reflecting the drop in world receipts and ask for readjustments on the basis of those figures. . . . It seems that this is a reasonable way to go about it, and with good faith on both sides the industry can weather what promises to be a storm of unusual severity.

In promising to review the situation March 15 the unions left the door open to the entrance of reason.

As one index of good faith the movie makers undoubtedly will disassociate themselves from the racing stables which have caused so much unfavorable comment. . . . At the time this extravagance was indulged in this department argued strenuously against it and I've never relaxed that view.

In the present crisis Hollywood's abandonment of all pretentious display becomes a "must." . . . If their case is to hold water on March 15, the movie pundits cannot appear on the dais as turfmen. . . . Otherwise they may well beware the ides of March.

Chatting with Annabella and Tyrone Power yesterday. . . . Tyrone's pretty blonde wife, as the result of three crossings of the Atlantic in the Clipper flying boats, is the colony's No. 1 aviatrix. . . . She says that the third trip, Europe to New York, was an unforgettable experience, with 51 people aboard as contrasted to the 12 who were carried over the first time.

"It was a very rough trip, and the people who were fleeing Europe thought they were going to die in the Atlantic. They cried and screamed and prayed. It was really quite frightening." . . . Well it doesn't sound good.

Wilson and the War Veteran.

Two dramatic tales emerge from the high jinks, the meetings of old comrades, and the reminiscences that were a part of the American Legion convention.

One, told by a crippled war veteran, began with the time when he lay wounded in a hospital in Paris. He was, indeed, the very man President Wilson, in Paris after the war, was taken to see when he asked to visit the most desperate case among the war wounded in the city hospitals.

"You have gone a great deal for your country," the wartime President of the United States told the American soldier lying in the bed before him, "but it's not enough. There is one more thing you must do."

The wounded man waited, resentfully, to hear what more he must do.

"You must get well," said Wilson softly. "We need men like you in the United States. And when you get back to America I hope you can come to Washington and see me."

That was in 1919. Some years later the ex-soldier was in Washington. He called at the Wilson home and was shown in to the former President, at that time an invalid in a wheel chair.

"Our positions are reversed," said Mr. Wilson. "Last time we met it was you who were about to die. Now," he smiled wanly at the ex-soldier, "it is I."

And it may be that the war veteran told him he had something more to do for his country—to get well, because his country needed him.

Second Encounter.

The other story concerns two Legionnaires who met the opening day of the American Legion convention, though their first encounter had been twenty years ago on the battlefield after the recapture of Soissons by the allies in 1918. One is a physician from southern Indiana, the other a business man from the south.

* * *

The physician was attached to the field ambulance corps and was giving first aid on the battlefield. He stopped to dress the wounds of a young soldier, and as he did so observed that the unconscious lad strongly resembled his younger brother. He left him lying on the field for the ambulance to pick up later, but because of the haunt-

Elegant Mode Now Appears in New Furniture

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

It's time to dress the house for fall. Starting Saturday the stores here and all over the country are putting on a huge home furnishings style show for National Furniture week.

Romantic modes in women's clothes are going to be seen in romantic settings, for silks, satins, velvets, and all the luxurious fabrics are appearing in draperies and upholsteries as well as in gowns and wraps.

If your newest frock has a bustle your living room will have a Victorian, button tufted, fringed garnet-red armchair in the same period. And if Edwardian ostrich feathers nod from your evening coiffure Edwardian colors will bloom on walls and floor. Alexandra red, Parliament purple, London gray, Thames tan, Brighton blue are just a few of the tones inspired by 19th century interiors.

The trend is toward more elegant materials, more suave lines in furniture, more sophistication in home furnishings generally.

Lots of curlicue work in white plaster, in the baroque style, is enlivening two smart little entrance halls opened especially for the fall season. One has a color scheme of Brighton blue [a soft, gray-blue], Alexandra red [garnet], and white. The other has gay brown and white striped walls. In both there is a mirror framed in ornate white plaster and a console table with plaster supports.

Because many of the smartest colors for interior decoration are grayed this season they combine well. One newly furnished model house, just open to the public, offers you a range of seven colors, all of which are especially chosen to work together. Draperies, floor coverings, upholsteries, wall papers, even blankets and bedding, are made in these tones, so hours of time spent in matching and combining are done away with.

A house decorated to meet the thrifty budget is carried out in pastel colored walls, the deep, vibrant colors being accents in accessories. The bedroom has one wall in pink and white stripes, while the others are plain pink. A soft blue is used as contrast for the bedspreads, and the printed chintz draperies combine the two, adding a deeper, rich wine hue.

The Victorian influence is particularly apparent in rugs and carpets. Floors are rampant again with roses. In a handsome bedroom where dark Victorian mahogany furniture with glass drawer knobs is used the floor is carpeted from wall to wall with this type of flowered rug. The walls are done in light yellow, and this sunny hue is seen, too, in the taffeta trapunto work draperies and bedspreads.

Furniture of the Regency period is mated with the later Victorian styles in some of the best looking interiors to be seen during National Furniture week. Other popular periods are the Swedish modern and the French provincial. Complete room settings and even complete houses are to be seen furnished in these modes.

National Furniture week will continue until Oct. 7.

It's Practical

For the woman to whom short hair is more becoming than locks that hang to the shoulder blades this is the kind of coiffure that is smart and practical. If the shaping and waving are good the hair can be brushed vigorously each day with no damage to the lines or crispness of the hairdress.

Velvet Styles Elegant Hats for Fall Wear

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some of the most demure little velvet hats just look that way off the head. Once perched on a fashionable hair-do they have all the romantic elegance of the dress parade costumes of the Edwardian era.

Lovely colors have been revived. Exquisite turquoise blue, the faded blue of double parma violets, the amber glow of a topaz, and the throbbing red of rose wine. Velvet and velvet alone make the smartest of these coquettish heart breakers. But it's velvet ruched, swirled and puffed by inspired fingers.

This fall and early winter you'll see toques composed of four or five carefully made velvet roses, or a clever hat made of three colors in velvet bows, or a salmon pink double whirl deftly shaped to fit the skull line with super comfort.

Amber velvet also is used. It is a new and most surprising all purpose or foundation color. . . . It goes with everything and is flattering to every complexion.

Any of these soft colored velvet toques are helped with a filmy edge of veiling. . . . some tie under the chin with the veiling, others tie on the head with the sauciest of veiling bows or picot edged grosgrain ribbon. Nothing has been seen to match these since the gay nineties. They are small, exquisitely fashioned, and dress parade enough for cocktails or theater wear as well as late dinner in town.

The colors alone make them headline value. . . . topping a dull green wool, or deep sapphire, or dull black costume they really make the outfit. If you've the matching urge, its no trick at all to find the exact duplicate in colored long or short gloves, in both kidskin or soft suede or doeskin. Even a few bags boast the same fragile colorings.

They Hunted a Fox

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright: 1939: By Alice Ormond Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

Alison Young and her fiancé, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, are guests at Chenerys, the English country estate of Tom Boldre, to attend a fox hunt and ball. Wynn Marchmont, sister of Tom's wife, Pat, is engaged to Tom's brother, Derek, a veterinary. Alison overhears a love scene between Pat and Arthur Kingsclere. Tom Boldre dies during by riding his horse bareback up the slippery ancestral stairs. Chenerys is mortgaged to the hilt. Gregg, Tom's agent, urges him to accept an offer made for the estate, but Tom refuses to sell. At the hunt, from a far off hill, Alison and Colin see Tom thrown and a man bending over him. When they reach the accident they find Derek stooping over Tom's prostrate form. A farmer, Glover, happens along and helps them. Tom, revived, is surprised that Derek, rather than his neighbor, Maj. Fitts, found him. Three weeks later Tom is again thrown in the hunting field and dies soon after. Alison visits Wynn at Chenerys. Riding near the scene of Tom's first accident they find the body of farmer Glover. He'd been shot through the head. Official verdict is that Glover was killed by a shot from a passing car. Kingsclere, Derek, and Maj. Fitts all drove that way. Inspector Headcorn from Scotland Yard investigates.

INSTALMENT XVI.

A PESSIMISTIC CONSTABLE.

"O, Mitcham's no dunce!" The words came out too quickly. Conscious of error, the chief constable tried to mend matters. "On simple routine he's quite adequate, inspector. I realized, though, that we were getting stalled. Have you identified the cars?"

"Three out of a possible four, sir—with the volunteered help of the owners." Maj. Fitts', Mr. Boldre's, and young Mr. Kingsclere's."

"I see." A hissing, indrawn breath. "And did any of them stop?"

"It's quite impossible to be sure. Besides, a little slowing may well have permitted the shots to be fired. Here, sir, is the chart I've drawn. You'll see that I've set down the order of overlapping, the measurements of the wheelbases and tire patterns, each initialed. I doubt if we can pin down the exact time of the shooting. Thus far no one I've questioned is other than vague, though a number of persons heard the shots and took them for backfiring."

Swearing luridly as pain gripped him, the Colonel studied the intricate tracing. The Inspector proceeded to give the statements as regards time which he had obtained from the three men who had accosted him in the road.

"Mr. Kingsclere made only the one journey. Coming back he branched off at the Sompton crossroads and took the main route home. He was the first to drive along the lane. He puts it at a little after 6, and the inquiries made in Bewkesbury tend to confirm him."

The invalid seemed to have found a more comfortable posture. His features had smoothed a trifle as he grunted, "And the others?"

"If you will glance at the chart you will see their times recorded. Only Mr. Kingsclere recalls noticing the gulley. He was interested to see how much the rain had increased the flow of that brook——"

"Yes, yes, he's a horse running. And——?"

"He declares there was nobody there. Still, my own tests show that driving from east to west it was fairly easy to miss seeing it."

"Humph! Yes . . . And have you got anything more from the Glover wench?"

"Nothing, Colonel." The Inspector rubbed his wart with vexation. "As a matter of fact," he added slowly, "that woman's puzzling. Too smug—too bland. Her husband wasn't a night-prowler. She must have been worried when he didn't come home; yet she waited till daylight to hunt for him—and when she did turn out, the farm lad saw her making straight for that gulley. She doesn't strike me as frank."

A long silence. The man in the bed leveled penetrating eyes.

"You won't solve this case, Inspector. Don't say I've not warned you it's going to prove a hopeless task."

"Wynn," ventured Alison uncertainly. "How do you yourself feel about Gregg?"

They had left behind the baking-hot stableyard. A moment before Wynn, slim and efficient in gray shirt and twill breeches, had been arguing with an irritated Derek over which hunters to put up for sale, while Gregg, unwanted, disparaged every move. It was the agent's quiet persistence and his general air of discouraging which had prompted the question.

"Gregg?" Wynn was calming down. "O, Gregg's all right, you know! Honest to a fault—and so conscientious it's a pain in the neck. That's his trouble, don't you see? Gregg firmly believes our scheme will go on the rocks, leaving us worse off than before—that the only wise thing is to make a clean sweep of responsibilities, take what cash may be left and call it a day."

She kicked at a snail. With returning rancor she continued:

"Of course we're getting fed up with all this kindly advice. It's not as though either Gregg or Fred Fitts were any sort of expert."

"O, the Major!" Alison spoke soothingly. "I wouldn't pay the least notice to what he was saying at lunch. Obviously he's taking his entire cue from Gregg."

"O, I know. I suppose I never could stick meddlesome people. Fred's curiosity is beyond any I ever knew. See him breaking his neck to get a squint at your wire?"

"Pity he didn't," giggled Alison. "Here, read it."

Wynn frowned perplexedly over Colin's message.

"Forced retreat, army wins. Is that code?"

Alison interpreted. "That's in answer to what I told him about the flattering attentions I've wished on myself through listening to the Major when you others were too bored. You know, taking all that trouble over getting my specs riveted and pestering me to come and look at his Indian pictures."

"Go on," grinned her friend. "Queen it over me with your conquests." She sighed and loosed Alison's arm. "O, well, back to the fray!" Bracing herself, she returned to the stables, leaving her guest to seek a cool spot to do some manuscript reading.

There was a second conquest—call it that!—which Alison had not mentioned. Gregg no less than the Major had been quietly seeking her company, only when she was alone. Coming on his gray-gabled house, screened by drooping laburnum and looking as dreary as the owner himself, she began tiptoeing from pure habit.

Often this last day or so Gregg had issued forth to join her rambles, and she strongly disliked being made a receptacle for his queer, half-confidences. Not personal ones, that she could have borne. No, entirely on the subject of Chenerys, the sad changes witnessed in his time, and the pity of it that Derek in his foolhardy ignorance should be throwing good money after bad in his effort to save his patrimony.

What most exasperated her was Gregg's doleful smile, that and his well-bred understatements. A miasma of resignation hung about him, making her feel her two friends were heading through fog straight on to a reef.

Down by the brook. A flat stone, under those cool, curtaining willows? She took a few steps, and drew back. There in front of her was Major Fitts, dangerously at a loose end, mooning about among the rank, lush grasses and poking them dejectedly with his stick. Her lips twitched as she watched him—nobody's child, sent to play by himself, ready to fasten on the first comer like a leech.

Softly she stole away. Her beautiful blue sandals! As she settled on a bench under a far distant red hawthorn she noticed the disgusting black mire on them—collected, she supposed, in the wet, spongy weeds.

"Is it tar? If so, it'll never come off."

Her head was bent and she was busily scraping at the stuff with a stick. That was why the person coming towards her got quite close before she realized his approach and the shadow falling across her ankle made her look up with a start.

Most of us are so fond of the "Italian style" spaghetti, the spaghetti served with a richly spiced tomato sauce, that we forget there are many other tasty ways in which to serve this paste.

Tomatoes and cheese seem to be indispensable to many spaghetti dishes, but they aren't quite as indispensable as is onion, or some member of the onion family. One of the simplest and best ways to serve spahetti is with plenty of butter and sliced green onions, including the tops. Chives will do nicely, too.

Spaghetti with Green Onions.
[Serves Four.]
1 8 ounce package spaghetti
½ cup butter, melted
6 green onions, tops included, minced
Salt, pepper

Cook spaghetti until tender in plenty of boiling, salted water. Drain and add butter and onions, a little pepper and more salt, if needed. Shake over medium heat until blended, and serve at once.

A favorite simple spaghetti dish among Italians, I understand, is similar to this, except that olive oil and garlic are used, and the garlic is fried in the oil before the mixture is poured over the spaghetti. Sometimes chopped anchovies are added to this mixture just before serving.

Spaghetti ring mold is a delicious base for shrimp creole, curried shrimp or other spicy seafood. The ring mold is only slightly seasoned. You get your onion and tomato in the filling.

Spaghetti Ring Mold.
[Serves Six.]
1 8 ounce package spaghetti
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cups medium white sauce

Cook the spaghetti in boiling salted water. Stir eggs into white sauce and add to spaghetti. Arrange spaghetti carefully in a greased ring mold, place the mold in a pan of hot water, and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes or until firm. Unmold on a platter and fill the center of the ring with curried shrimp or other highly seasoned mixture.

With canned spaghetti and tomato sauce you can make innumerable zesty dishes for the dinner table. Appetizing as any I know about is this one.

Spaghetti and Sauerkraut.
[Serves Six.]
2 cups canned spaghetti in tomato sauce
2 cups sauerkraut
6 slices bacon

Alternate layers of spaghetti and sauerkraut in a greased baking dish and arrange bacon on top. Bake in 350 degree oven until bacon is crisp.

SPAGHETTI WITH MUSHROOMS.

Another canned spaghetti treat is achieved this way: Sauté sliced fresh mushrooms or canned ones in butter for two minutes or so, and add a can of spaghetti with tomato sauce. Heat through and serve.

Planning a tea? You'll find many helpful menu suggestions and recipes in Mary Meade's booklet, "Tips on Tea Parties." Send 5 cents in stamps for it, or pick it up for 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

ing resemblance returned to change his dressings. He pinned a note to his coat. "If you get back to the States, look me up," he wrote, and gave his name and address.

The southerner lived and eventually was demobilized. He came to Chicago for the American Legion convention this week. So did the Indiana doctor. They met and ate luncheon together Tuesday.

"I've still got that note you pinned to my coat," the southerner told the Indianan. "It's framed and my mother has it hung over her bed."

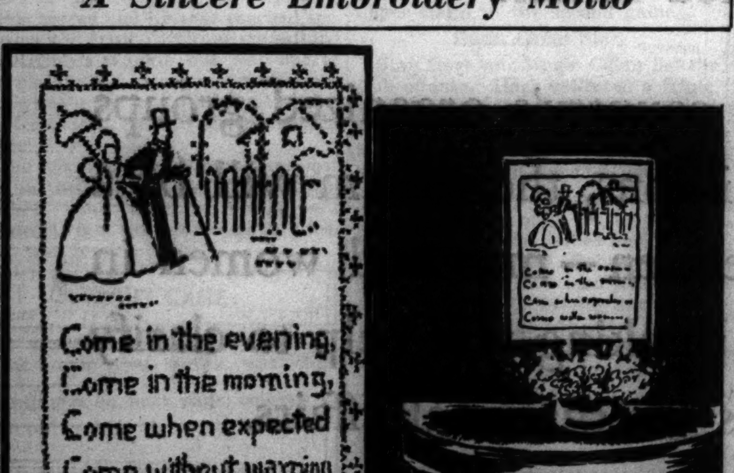
Now, for comic relief, we report the Legionnaire who had collapsed on the sidewalk on Wabash avenue, undone by his immoderate celebration.

"There'sh one thing about me," he was heard to mutter. "I alwaysh know when to stop."

A Sincere Embroidery Motto



BY NANCY CABOT.

Of the many forms of welcome none is more heart warming than this sincere greeting embroidered in cross-stitch and encased in a narrow, natural wood frame. With the motto omitted one has a dainty wall picture to be hung in one's own or the guest room.

Greater Chicago Plan Will Have Support of Business Women

The Alliance of Business and Professional Women at its opening dinner meeting of the season last evening pledged its support of a "strong business front keenly devoted to the business and civic interests of the community." Oscar F. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, previously had outlined his organization's plan for such a front at the meeting which was held in the Merchants and Manufacturers club in the Merchandise Mart.

The Association, Mr. Mayer said, has raised more than $500,000 to advance the business and civic interests of the city.

A Greater Chicago council, representing the city's business and civic organizations, is to study the city's problems with the aid of research experts, and then is to coöperate with city authorities in solving the problems.

No. 1 Girl Reconsiders; No. 2 Quakes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am 21 and madly in love with a grand gentleman, but there seems to be another girl interfering with our plans. She had been my friend's sweetheart before we started traveling around together. She dropped him, but as soon as she found out he was taking me around, she started to work on getting him back again. She claims she has something on him to hold him.

"He doesn't love her. He has told me over and over again that he doesn't even like her any more. He asked me to marry him but said before I answered we'd better wait a little longer on account of the girl's meanness. Should I wait or give him up? I don't believe I'd survive having to give him up, really. JANE."

You'd survive all right, Jane. We mortals have a way of surviving things and with considerable cheer about it. But is there need to give up the chap? What can the girl have on him? We cannot imagine! But his asking you to delay your answer creates a shade of suspicion. Still, some men are easily intimidated by women. Perhaps he is one. Perhaps he asked her to marry him and is wondering about that. Or, he may suspect her of being a scene maker, which type terrifies the other sex.

However, we'd go on pretending the girl never existed. What she says or what you hear she says needn't be listened to and hadn't better be. Don't repeat to the young man anything you hear and don't let him repeat anything to you. That's the way to close in on a mischief maker. When her malice fails to penetrate, she soon wearies of attempts in that direction.

But aren't girls the caution, though! Gracious, it must scare our young men out of their senses. They drop a youth, and because another girl finds him attractive, begin trying to lure him back. The second girl plays her best trick in refusing to imitate in unkind words or acts, which is your cue now, Jane.

Teachers and Pupils Honor John Baggett at Lake Forest School

Flowers were banked high yesterday in the John E. Baggett auditorium of the Gorton school in Lake Forest. A crowd of teachers past and present, members of the board of education, and pupils of varying ages gathered there to help Mr. Baggett celebrate his 76th birthday.

Mr. Baggett is superintendent emeritus of Lake Forest public schools. He was succeeded three years ago, after 32 years in office, by Dr. M. G. Davis. Mr. Baggett still sends a birthday card each year to every pupil under high school age.

It was the first time in decades he had not observed his birthday with the Rev. Samuel W. Chidester, former pastor of the Presbyterian church in Waukegan. Bachelors, they lived in the same quarters for 44 years. The Rev. Mr. Chidester died last May. He would have been 86 yesterday. Mr. Baggett's voice broke and he had to leave the platform as he spoke of his old friend.

Van Esso, and Mr. Van Esso will have a family breakfast following in their Highland Park home.

Miss de Chadenedes' mother, Mrs. William Pickman Fay, and Mr. Fay were living in Chicago when her daughter's engagement to the grandson of the famed surgeon, the late Dr. John B. Murphy, was announced, but they since have returned to New York. Miss de Chadenedes is living here, however. Her mother and stepfather will come back for the wedding.

Mr. Murdock will have his younger brother, John B. Murphy Murdock, for best man. John attends the Lake Forest academy. Their cousin, Mrs. John E. Gross, the former Dorothy Benedict, will be the matron of honor. There will be several other attendants. Mr. Murdock and his bride-to-be are looking for a house in the country. His mother, formerly Mrs. Rene Georges LeBrosi, and Mr. Van Esso were married this year.

Second Son Born to Henry P. Bruners

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Bruner [Marjorie Williamson] are being congratulated on the birth of a second son on Tuesday at the Lying-In hospital. The baby has been named Philip Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Folds have a new granddaughter, the infant born last Sunday in Switzerland to Mr. and Mrs. Arwed Boitel [Camilla Folds] whom they probably will not see for a year. The baby has been named Denise Antoinette. Her father is mobilized with the Swiss army, but was given three days' leave to see his child.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haug of Sydney, Australia, are the parents of a daughter born on Sept. 20 in Sydney. Mrs. Haug is the former Margery Nicol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kilian V. R. Nicol of North State street.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"An expert seldom misplays a hand in which the application of a coup, strip, squeeze, or standard safety play is clearly marked as the necessary expedient," writes John Stablein, prominent northwestern player and analyst in the current number of The Bridge World magazine. "But in the handling of a cross-ruff, or a situation demanding nice timing, he may stub his toe and look like a rank novice." And Mr. Stablein proves his point with the following hand:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

North was tempted to bid for a grand slam over his partner's six spade bid, but desisted largely because of his three low hearts. He figured that South might easily lose a heart trick, even if he had an enormous outside hand.

West opened the club nine. Declarer won with the ace and cashed the spade king, then laid down the heart ace. When the eight of hearts fell from East's hand declarer paused for a moment, but, although he realized that there might be need for care, apparently did not know just how to apply it. He laid down the spade queen, then led the club queen to the king. Next he led a low heart from dummy, not caring very much whether or not East ruffed. As it happened, however, East had no more trumps which, from declarer's point of view, was too bad. The heart king won and a heart was returned, but now when West won he returned a spade and there was no means by which declarer could dispose of another losing heart.

The fall of the heart eight should indeed have given declarer pause and suggested that measures be taken against the possibility that it was a singleton. Where declarer went wrong was in leading the second round of trumps. He should have realized that this action might permit a fatal third round to be led by the opponents. Instead of laying down the spade queen declarer should have entered dummy with a club and returned a heart immediately. If East were able to ruff this round he could do no harm—declarer, of course, would follow suit with a low heart. Now, when East returned a diamond, declarer would win, cash the spade queen, and then safely lay down the heart ace and ruff a heart in dummy.

If, on the heart lead from dummy, East refuses to ruff, declarer still is in no danger. He wins with the heart king and returns a heart immediately. West can win and lead another heart, but now dummy can ruff with the spade ace and thereby prevent an overruff.

The entire crux of a hand such as this is not to draw too many trumps before establishing the side suit.

WILSON'S Weekly MEMO by GEORGE RECTOR

The craze for eccentric dieting seems to be gradually dying out and I for one shall not bid for a place on the mourners' bench when the demise actually occurs. Perhaps the return to the fashions of yesterday is bringing about a renewed interest in the conventional three square meals a day for the human race.

Wilson's Tender Made Ham Prepared in Honey

Have the ham at room temperature before starting to heat it. Since it is all ready to eat as you buy it, the Tender Made Ham will not require a long stay in the oven. Allow 5 minutes to the pound, at 350°F.

For the bone-in ham, use water or fruit juice. I have found apricot juice gives a delicious flavor.

IT'S A HONEY

Fifteen minutes before heating time is up, remove the skin (if any), score the fat, dot with cloves, and pour over the ham half a cup of pure honey. Return to the oven at 450°F. for 30 minutes, basting frequently and adding another half cup of honey by degrees.

The result? A ham of scintillating glaze, irresistible aroma and truly satisfying flavor. I urge you to try this on your next Tender Made Ham, in lieu of the traditional brown sugar coating.

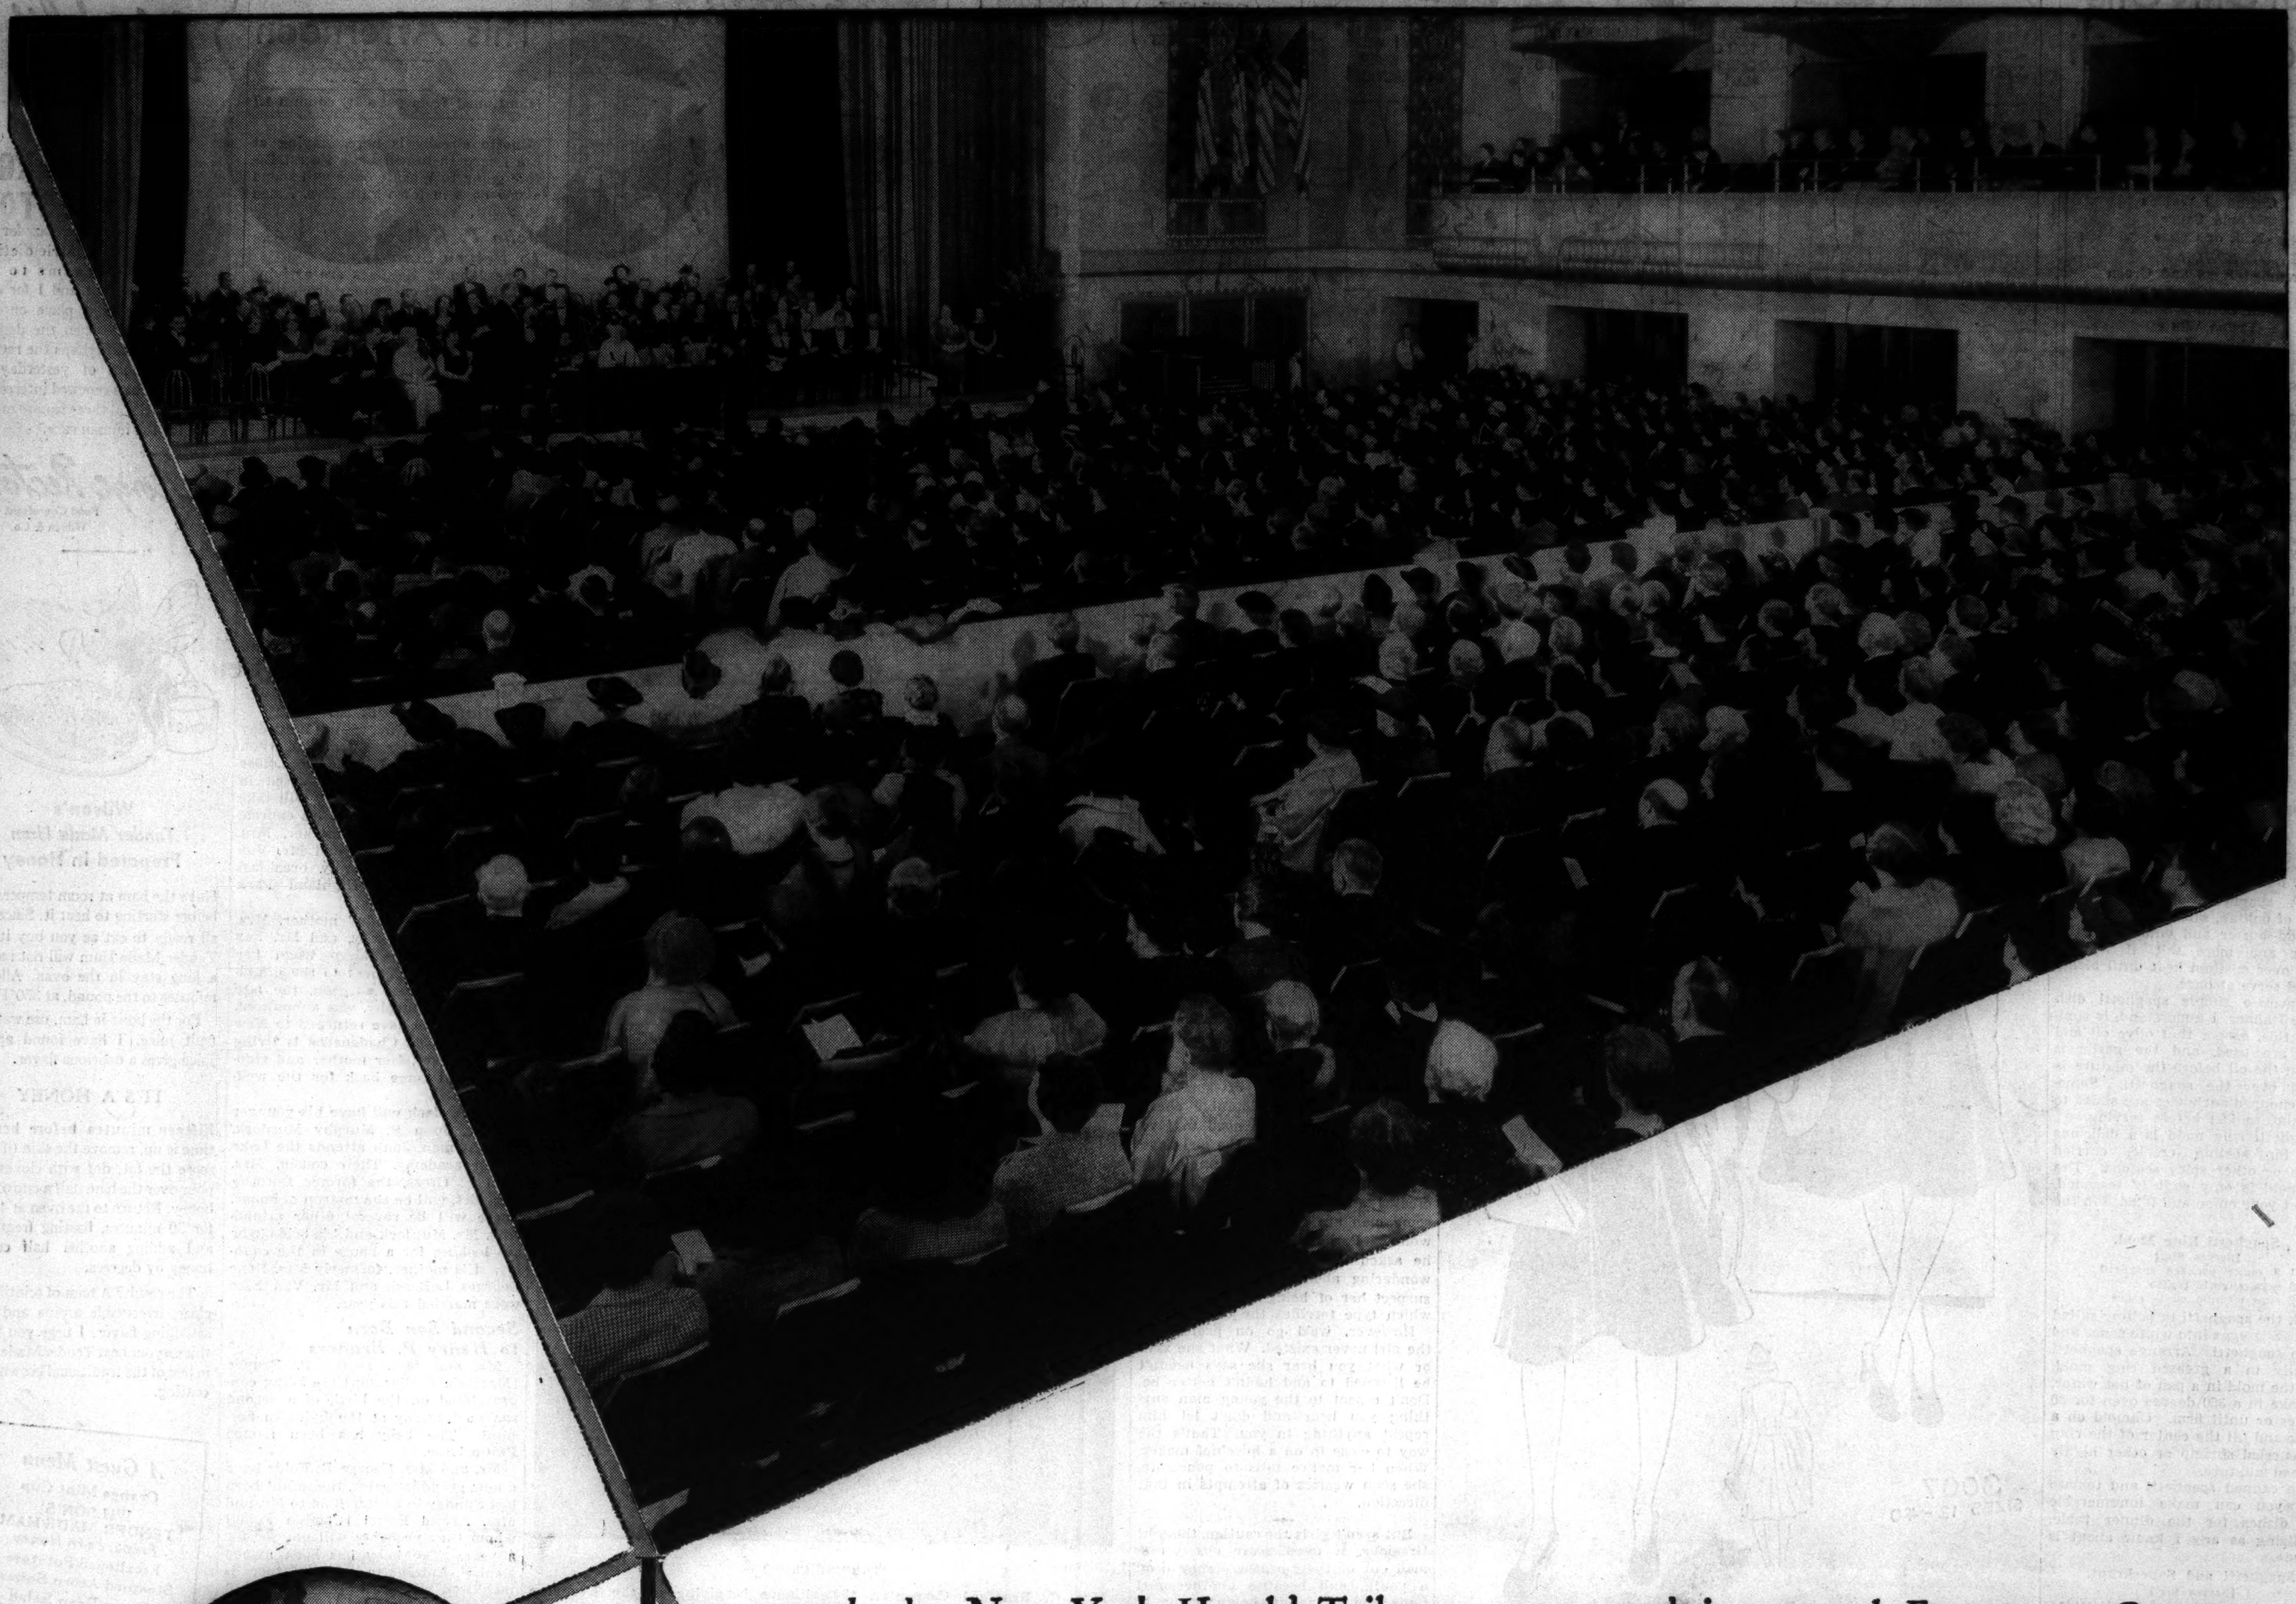
WILSON & CO.



Last month the New York Herald Tribune announced its annual Forum on Current Problems—to be held this year on October 24, 25 and 26 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Now there is war; and there have been many inquiries as to whether the 1939 Forum would be held. Emphatically yes. It aims to be the most significant Forum of all that have taken place during the past nine years.

The forum idea is essential to the democratic processes of free, full discussion. This Forum's purpose is to help the nation make decisions—after all sides have been heard.

In a period of highly developed propaganda—with public misinformation and uncertainty a constant threat—the Forum can be a rational influence, typifying America by presenting the divergent views of America's best-informed minds.

To an immediate audience of some 5,000 delegates of this country's organized groups and to a press and radio audience amounting to many millions, the Forum will be a symposium conducted by fifty or more world-known spokesmen—men and women in government, in education, in science, and in business. Such thinking will help to clarify public opinion about work in the United States as well as international affairs.

For the hundreds of thousands who each year follow its word-for-word proceedings, the Herald Tribune will report them in entirety in its Sunday edition of October 29.

October 24 in the afternoon, October 25 in the afternoon and evening, and October 26 in the afternoon and evening.

INDIANS DEFEAT SOX UNDER SUN AND THE LIGHTS

Drop Them to 4th by Winning, 5-2, 7-5.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The first afternoon-night double-header ever completed in the major leagues, played yesterday between the Cleveland Indians and the White Sox, was a dramatic success for those who didn't care what happened to the Sox. The Dykes boys were whipped, 5 to 2, in the afternoon, and whipped again at night, 7 to 5. The sun and lamplit reverses plunked the Sox into fourth place, their conquerors taking over third.

Last night's game, which was witnessed by 20,000, who lifted the attendance for seven night encounters in Comiskey Park to 206,000, was in its early aspects the third pitching night duel between Bob Feller and Edgar Smith.

As on the night of Sept. 4 in Cleveland, when Smith won his second decision over Feller, neither starter was present at the finish. The game became very wacky in the seventh inning, which was the last for both Smith and Feller. And it was wackier with Clint Brown and Mel Harder serving as relievers. However, Feller remained the pitcher of record, credited with his twenty-third success of the season.

Brown's 60th Game Sets Record.

It was Brown's sixtieth relief appearance of the year, one more relieving job than the major league record set by Garland Braxton for Washington in 1927.

There were two homers, one by Ben Chapman in the first inning and one by Larry Rosenthal in the seventh. Larry's smack put the Sox back in the game—putting them behind only 4 to 3. Then the Indians made three runs off Brown, aided by some fuzzy fielding. The Sox made two runs off Harder in the eighth, but subsided in the ninth.

The Sox have lost nine of their last ten games with teams other than the poor St. Louis Browns. But, goody, goody, their three remaining games in the American league season are with those comforting St. Louisans, starting Saturday.

AFTERNOON GAME

The Sox made the first run of the first game and they made six hits in the first three innings, but were behind at the end of that time, 2 to 1, which was slight enough, considering the Chicagoans were saved from a much worse ratio by Rosenthal's circus catch in the third.

Kuhel singled with one out in the Sox first, went to second on Kreevich's out and scored on Appling's single to right.

Came the third inning and a permanent lead for the Indians. Eisenstat opened with a singled to left and Boudreau walked. Weatherly, attempting to sacrifice, fouled to Tresh but Chapman drew his second pass, loading the bases. Hale singled to center, scoring Eisenstat and Boudreau.

Rigney Goes on His Way.

Chapman opened the fifth inning with a single to left and stopped at third on Hale's double to right center. Hale pulled a muscle and Mack was sent to second to run for him. Campbell was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Keltner drew Rigney's sixth pass, forcing Chapman across the plate. Then Mack scored on Grimes' sacrifice fly to Walker. Campbell stole third and after he knocked the ball out of McNair's glove, scored and Keltner reached second on the error. Keltner stole third on Rigney's windup but was out at the plate when he attempted to score on Pytlak's tap to Appling. Eisenstat singled to left. Then Dietrich restored order.

The Sox made their second and last run in their end of the fifth. Bejma walked, went to third on Kuhel's single to right and scored while Kreevich was forcing Kuhel.

NIGHT GAME

It appeared at the outset of the night game that Smith was chal-

Cubs Win Two 10 Inning Games from Pirates, 9-8, 9-5

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 27 [Special].—The Cubs won a double-header from the Pirates today to regain third place from the Brooklyn Dodgers. The score of the first game was 9 to 8 and the second 9 to 5. Both went 10 innings.

Heavy hitting marked both games. Paul Waner and Bill Nicholson, opposing right fielders, hit home runs in the first game. Hank Leiber bounced his 24th homer of the season off the scoreboard in left field and Elbie Fletcher, Pirate first baseman, smashed his 12th into the right field upper stand in the second game.

Hack, Galan Star.

Stan Hack and Augie Galan led the Cub offense. Hack collected a triple, two doubles, three singles, and two walks in eleven times at bat. Galan had two doubles, two singles, a triple, and two walks in eleven attempts.

The Cubs got away to early leads in both games only to be tied up later. A double by Leiber and singles by G. Russell and Bobby Mattick gave them a 9 to 7 lead after their half of the tenth in the first game. Pittsburgh fell one run short of tying in its half when Elliott and Van Robays singled and the former scored on a force out.

In the tenth inning of the second game, Mattick's single, Pinch Hitter Jim Gleeson's triple, Hack's single, Herman's triple, and Galan's fifth hit produced four runs and victory.

Both teams will be idle tomorrow.

FIRST GAME

The Cubs got away to a one run lead in the first inning. Hack doubled against the right field screen, and Herman, who walked, was forced by Galan, Hack taking third. Leiber forced Galan, Hack scoring. Nicholson fanned. Paul Waner drove one of Root's pitches into the right field stands to tie the score in the Pirate half.

Root Scores Russell.

The Cubs came back with two runs in the third. With one down Hack tripled against the right field wall. After Herman went out, Brubaker to Fletcher, Galan hit a double to right center, scoring Hack. Then Leiber singled to score Galan. The Pirates counted once in their half. With two out, Vaughan singled and ran to the plate on Elliott's triple to right.

Chicago made it 4 to 2 in the fourth. After Hartnett had flied out, Russell lined a double to left. Mattick flied to center, but Root singled to center to score Russell.

Swigart started a three run rally off Root in the fifth by singling to right. P. Waner flied out, but Vaughan doubled to left, sending Swigart to third. Elliott's triple against the left field fence scored both runners. Van Robays then hit a long sacrifice fly to right to score Elliott.

The Cubs tied it in the sixth. Nicholson doubled to right, paused while Hartnett flied to center, and scored on Russell's sacrifice fly. In the eighth Nicholson poled a homer into the right field stand. That gave the Cubs a 6 to 5 lead, which they increased with a run in the ninth.

Pirates Rally in Ninth.

Klein, batting for Brubaker, fanned to start the Pirate ninth. Bowman batted for Gustine and singled. Fern Bell, running for Bowman, scored on Schultz's double to right. Then Lloyd Waner, batting for Swigart, doubled to score Schultz.

Leiber doubled past third to start the Cubs off to victory in the tenth. Nicholson popped to Schultz and Hartnett fanned, but Russell singled to

CARDINALS DOWN TO PLAYER LIMIT; LET TWO MEN GO

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Release of Henry Adams, former University of Pittsburgh center, and Jim Neill, Texas Tech half back obtained from the New York Giants, yesterday brought the Chicago Cardinals down to the player limit of 30 for their National league game against the Detroit Lions in Soldiers' field on Sunday night.

Neill's release was necessitated by the signing of Bert Johnson, veteran full back acquired from the Bears last week. Johnson will be ready to oppose the Lions Sunday night, when the Cardinals attempt to reach the .500 mark in the western division race.

Goldberg to Make Debut.

Johnson probably will get a chance to team in the back field with Marshall Goldberg, who will be making his Chicago professional debut. In fact, Sunday night's game will be the first time in his career that Goldberg, one of the nation's most widely publicized college stars, has performed for any extended period before a Chicago crowd. An ankle injury prevented him from taking much part in the All-Star game last month.

Goldberg demonstrated in Pittsburgh last Sunday, where the Cardnals defeated the Pirates, 10 to 0, for their first victory, that he is ready to resume in the pro ranks where he left off in college last fall.

Faust Able to Play.

The return of George Faust, former Minnesota star injured in the first Detroit game, will further strengthen the offense and hopes are high in the Cardinal camp.

Detroit is unbeaten, having scored a 21 to 13 victory over the Cardinals with the help of a few timely breaks in the opener, and whipped Brooklyn last Sunday, 27 to 7.

Cincinnati to Declare Dividend, Crosley States

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 27 (AP).—Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Cincinnati Reds baseball club which is approaching a National league pennant victory, said today he believed earnings this year would "justify a substantial dividend." In a letter to shareholders Crosley said the club is assured of a "very substantial profit." He proposed revamping the club's financial structure, liquidation of a bank loan and a new common stock setup.

BROCK TESTS HIS ANKLE; HE'LL BE IN PURDUE LINEUP

Notre Dame Will See Star Runner Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 27.—Mal Elward, Purdue football coach, still may hesitate to send his veteran right half back, Lou Brock, into the Notre Dame game Saturday because of the ankle injury Brock suffered prior to the start of training Sept. 11. But you'll see Brock, although Mike Byelene may start, for Brock wasn't scrimmaging yesterday just to get ready for the Minnesota game Oct. 14. That scrimmage was final examination of fitness for Notre Dame.

Brock pulled a tendon playing softball. It was expected to heal more readily than it has, but when Lou went through ten minutes of scrimmage, blocking and carrying, he demonstrated he can play Saturday unless he aggravates the injury. He still limps slightly, but once yesterday he went around defensive right end, bowling his way between two tacklers with his peculiar hip motion as effectively as he did in any game last season.

Petty Out of Game.

John Petty, junior full back from Lebanon, Pa., will not see service Saturday, however. An ankle injury suffered Monday will prevent him from serving as relief man for Leon De Witte, varsity full back. Gene Britt, senior left end, injured last night, also may be out of the game.

Yesterday's scrimmage concluded contact drills for Saturday's opener in Notre Dame stadium. While the offense started from the same point on each play, work was carried on under game conditions. And from this preview we are convinced Purdue will not hold back an attack. The variety and execution of plays ordinarily would be expected only in mid-season.

Purdue does not have a heavy team. The difference in the back field over last year will be Byelene's weight as compared to Jack Brown's. The line, however, is considerably lighter. There is no heavyweight replacement for Joe Mihal. But Purdue is as fast as last season.

Speed Helps Execution.

Sweeping runs from spin plays, or sharp thrusts into the line are more deceptive because of this speed. Likewise, Purdue's passing attack may cause trouble because of the speed of the receivers.

The feeling of team unity is so strong that many of the boys who may not be named on the traveling squad would prefer traveling to South Bend on their own to see the game than to go to Champaign Friday night at university expense to compete in the B team game with Illinois.

The traveling squad will be named after tomorrow's practice. The team will leave Frinday morning for Elkhart, Ind., and will drill Friday afternoon in Notre Dame stadium. After the game Saturday, the Purdue players will return to Elkhart before starting for Lafayette.

The current ranking of the Purdue squad, including Petty and Britt, follows:

CENTER—August Morningstar, Basil Petry, Tex Axton.
RIGHT GUARD—Tom Melton or Carl Verplank or Jack Winchell [equal rank.]
RIGHT TACKLE—Lavern Johnson, Dick Johnson, Italo Rossi.
RIGHT END—Felix Mackiewicz, Jack Krause, William Combs.

If—

A victory today over the St. Louis Cardinals will clinch the pennant for Cincinnati. Even if the Reds lose today they can clinch the pennant by taking two out of three from Pittsburgh. In that event, and provided the Cardinals win three from the Cubs, the standing would be:

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

We never were swift at mathematics, bridge, or ablative absolutes, which may account for our inability to understand the new system of determining the best teams in minor league baseball. . . . It has become as confusing as the National Hockey league playoffs where it has happened that a sixth place team in a seven team league has won the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world championship. . . . Take the American association as a case in point. . . . According to fairly reliable journals, Kansas City finished its schedule in first place with a total of 107 victories, a record for the league. . . . It used to be that when a team wound up its regular schedule with more victories and fewer defeats than any other team in the league it was recognized as champion and the season was over. . . . Nowadays there's no special honor attached to that achievement. . . . The first place team in the new order has to play the third place team, and the second place club meets the fourth place club to see who is going to play whom for the championship. . . . Kansas City apparently was a fluke winner in the regular schedule, because it lost to Indianapolis, third place team, in the first round playoffs, four games to one. . . . Minneapolis, which ended its season in second place, likewise must have been playing far over its head, because it lost to Louisville, fourth place team, in the postseason series. . . . In case your confusion isn't complete we hasten to add that Louisville, which finished 31½ games behind Kansas City, defeated Indianapolis for the playoff championship.

Rochester, which finished second in the International league behind Jersey City, won the playoff in that organization and now is engaged in a series with Louisville for the "little world series" title. . . . Fort Worth, fourth place team in the Texas league, came through victoriously in the playoffs down there, and Nashville, which finished its schedule in third place behind Chattanooga and Memphis, was the winner in the Southern association. . . . We could carry on the report through several other leagues, but we hope we have established the point that the present arrangement is ridiculous. . . . It was designed, of course, to bring in a little extra revenue. . . . Series between championship teams in rival leagues would produce more earnings without destroying the reputation a team such as Kansas City acquired through a season of play.

The Real Victim.

Their marriage was wrecked, and they parted;
Now in a court trial they appeared;
The suit that the mother had started,
Asked that by her their child might be reared;

With the questioning, hours were squandered—
Cross-examined were husband and wife—
While a little boy sat there and wondered Why his parents engaged in such strife!
With the stern, legal battle near ending,
Their blond, little boy took the chair—
And, as though here some climax portending,
Everyone in deep silence did stare;
"Would you happier be with your mother?
Answer me!" asked the Judge, "on your oath!"—
The man and wife looked at each other—
The boy sobbed: "I'd be happy with both!"

Ten Years Ago Today—The Chicago Cubs, National league pennant winners, lost to the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 3. . . . Detroit whipped the White Sox, 11 to 10, in 10 innings. . . . WALTERS LOSES TO M'GEE'S FOUR HIT PITCHING

Leaders Get Another Chance Today.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 27.—The St. Louis Gas House Gang, determined to be tough to the last, today refused to step aside and permit the Reds to pass through the National league's pennant portal for the first time since 1919. And the Reds, denied their flag clinching for at least another 24 hours, didn't argue much about it. They succumbed quietly, even patiently, by the ignominious score of 4 to 0.

Bill McGee.

The Red who was to do the act waranting lighting of the bonfires is Bill [Bucky] Walters, winner of 27 games. The ex-infielder, probably a bit weary after his long summer of toil, didn't have what it takes. The Cards nicked him in three different innings, although one productive inning would have been enough in view of the Reds' feebleness before Bill [Fiddler] McGee, member of Pepper Martin's now outlawed hill-billy band. It was Walters' eleventh defeat.

The Fiddler Is in Tune.

The Fiddler, who shut out the Reds the last time he faced them, required nothing more than ordinary fielding to choke them off on a meager portion of four hits. He gave up a single in the second. A single with a few other happenings caused him to bear down a bit in the third when he found the bases loaded. He shook off this load by foiling Frank McCormick, the only man who hit him safely in the last six innings. McCormick, cleanup artist in the Rhineland attack, singled in the sixth and again in the ninth. The third was the only inning in which the Reds reached second base.

Various Gas Housers figured as builders of McGee's ample margin. When the gang scored its first run in the second inning, Ducky Medwick started and Terry Moore and Stu Martin completed the venture. In the fourth when two scored, Don Padgett was the main man. He doubled. Thereafter Walters was invincible, the only real damage being a ninth inning homer by Moore, who, with a long fly ball, also contributed half of the two tallies in the fourth.

Yanks Take Heart.

By failing to score today, the Reds undoubtedly heartened the American league Yankees and possibly produced a little consternation among National league adherents. It marked two scoreless games in a row for the prospective champions and their 24th consecutive runless inning. They haven't scored since the second inning of yesterday's first game, when Billy Myers hit a decisive homer with two on base. In the last two games Myers hasn't hit a ball out of the infield.

Although the Cardinals persist in hanging on, the pennant situation isn't alarming the Reds. Tomorrow in their season's final with the Gas House Gang they will come back under the cover of Paul Derringer's pitching barrage. The Cardinals have only two choices, Curt Davis, who was knocked out in the second inning of yesterday's first game, and Max Lanier, the rookie southpaw who last Sunday held the Cubs to four hits.

Cards Move Ahead.

After an uneventful first inning, the Cards began to operate on Wallenging Feller's fame as the strikeout king of the majors. Lefty fanned Boudreau and Weatherly to get the game under way. It would have been very nice if he had whiffed Chapman also, but, alas, something went awry. Chapman socked a homer into the left field stand.

Weatherly walked to start the Indians' productive third inning. Chapman fanned and Weatherly stole second. Grimes walked and Campbell fanned. Keltner singled to left, scoring Weatherly.

Feller's dreams of a no-hitter disappeared at the start of the fifth. McNair led off with a line single to right. Radcliff fouled to Keltner and Rosenthal bounced to Mack. Tresh walked after a three and two count. McNair and Tresh tried to put on a double steal, but McNair was harpooned on Hemsley's throw to Keltner.

The first Cleveland hit after Keltner's run producing single in the third was Keltner's run producing double in the seventh. Grimes drew Smith's eighth pass with one down and went to second while Campbell was grounding out to Bejma. Keltner then doubled to left center, scoring Grimes, and Hemsley doubled to right center, scoring Keltner to build the Indians' lead to 4 to 0.

Sox Break Loose for Three.

The Sox broke through with three runs in the seventh and would have tied the score but for a super play by Boudreau. Kreevich opened with a single to center, after which Appling walked. McNair hit what appeared to be a single to center until Boudreau stopped it with a dive back of second. He recovered and tossed to Mack, forcing Appling, Kreevich taking third. Radcliff forced McNair, Kreevich scoring. Rosenthal then knocked his homer, scoring behind Radcliff.

Then came Brown and his record breaking relief appearance. Trosky batted for Feller and doubled to right. Allen ran for Trosky. Boudreau sacrificed and when Tresh threw late to third both runners were safe. After Weatherly was thrown out Chapman was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Grimes sent a double play ball at Appling. Luke's toss to Bejma forced Chapman, but Bejma was spilled and made a high throw to Kuhel, Allen scoring. Campbell singled to right, scoring Boudreau and putting Grimes on third. Grimes and Campbell put on a double steal, the former scoring.

Pittsburgh got a run in the tenth. After Vaughan had grounded out, Elliott and Van Robays hit successive singles. Fletcher forced Van Robays and Elliott scored.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs took a lead in the second inning of the second game. After Russell had flied to left, Mattick hit a hard grounder down the left field foul line for a double. Mancuso flied to right, but Page blasted a long double to the 406 foot mark in left center, scoring Mattick.

They scored two more runs in the third and drove Klinger from the mound. With one out Galan hit a high double near the foul line in left. Leiber singled him home. Nicholson got a single when Vaughan couldn't quite handle his liner. Russell's single scored Leiber and routed Klinger. Swift replaced Klinger and forced the next two men to fly out.

Pirates Perk Up.

Pittsburgh scored one run in its half of the third when Swift was safe on an error and Schultz and Vaughan singled. The second Pirate run came in the fourth on Fletcher's walk, Gustine's single to right, and a fielder's choice on Schultz, Fletcher scoring.

Galan tripled to right and Hank Leiber followed with his 24th homer of the season over the scoreboard in left field to give the Cubs a pair in the fifth.

A Cub error contributed to the scoring of the third Pirate run in the fifth. Elliott hit his third triple of the day to deep left. Van Robays fanned, but Mancuso let the ball go through him and Elliott scored.

The Pirates took advantage of Chicago's fourth and fifth errors to score again in the sixth. Schultz singled to right and went to second on Herman's wild throw to catch him off the base. Swift was safe on an error by Mattick, Schultz scoring.

The Bucs tied it up at five runs apiece in the seventh when Fletcher hit his 12th homer of the season into the upper right field stands.

CALL OFF SECOND GAME OF LITTLE WORLD SERIES

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP).—The second game of the little world series, scheduled for tonight and postponed at noon today because of rain and threatening weather, will be contested by the International league's Rochester Red Wings and the Louisville Colonels of the American association tomorrow night, field conditions permitting.

Groundskeepers failed to cover the infield strip with protective tarpaulins after Tuesday night's opener, won by Louisville, 7 to 0, and the sandy stretch was a quagmire after the rain.

Si Johnson will pitch for Rochester and Jim Weaver will start for Louisville.

Design Golf Meets to Aid Prep Players

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The trophy cabinets and shelves of a number of Chicago district golfers during the coming winter will include a small wooden cup which will carry more than the customary value attached to a prize won in competition. This little wooden cup is one of the several being offered by the junior golf committee of the Chicago District Golf association with a view to obtaining old clubs for the promotion of golf in Chicago high schools.

The C. D. G. A. junior committee, of which Mel Kein of Northmoor is chairman, plans to make the wooden cup contests a regular feature of the district program in future years. The cups were first made available four weeks ago, and the sixty-two member clubs of the association already have been acquainted with the system of conducting competitions for them with the result that a number already have held their contests.

Entry Fee—an Old Club.

The wooden cup contests constitute one of the most worthwhile methods for the propagation of golf the district ever has seen. The cups may be purchased from the Chicago District Golf association at $2.50 each. In order to enter into competition for them, each player contributes an old club or $1 in cash. A tournament then is held, the plan of same to follow the club committee's choice, with the wooden cup going to the winner. Some clubs have purchased two cups, one to be played for by men members and another by women. A majority of the wooden cup contests have been conducted on an 18 hole handicap basis, although others have gone 36 holes.

High Schools to Benefit.

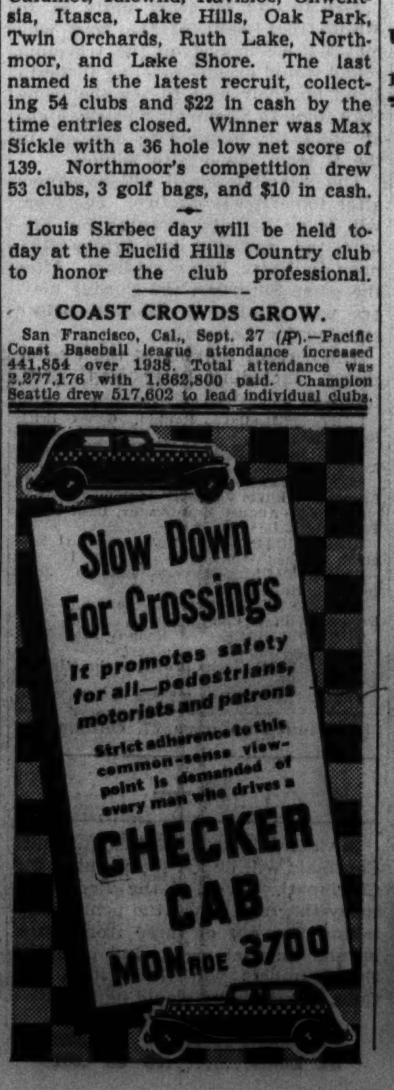
Joe Davis and Jimmy Gowdy of the C. D. G. A. are assembling all of the old clubs turned in by contestants. These will be distributed to the athletic directors of the city's high schools to be used by students in supervised classes. The cash secured in lieu of used clubs will be spent in the purchase of golf equipment. In addition to the lessons in the schools, students will be permitted to rent sets for play.

Among the clubs which have not waited until next season to open play for the wooden cups are Knollwood, Calumet, Idlewild, Ravisloe, Onwentsia, Itasca, Lake Hills, Oak Park, Twin Orchards, Ruth Lake, Northmoor, and Lake Shore. The last named is the latest recruit, collecting 54 clubs and $22 in cash by the time entries closed. Winner was Max Sickle with a 36 hole low net score of 139. Northmoor's competition drew 53 clubs, 3 golf bags, and $10 in cash.

Louis Skrbec day will be held today at the Euclid Hills Country club to honor the club professional.

COAST CROWDS GROW.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 27 (AP).—Pacific Coast Baseball league attendance increased 441,854 over 1938. Total attendance was 2,277,176 with 1,662,800 paid. Champion Seattle drew 517,602 to lead individual clubs.



Davey Day Again Floors Sparmate in Gym Workout

For the third successive day yesterday Davey Day floored a sparmate while preparing for a 10 round elimination bout with Sammy Angott in Chicago Stadium Oct. 6.

This is a good sign for Day followers because Davey seldom shows good form in training. The Chicago sharpshooter knows he must eliminate Angott, No. 1 lightweight contender and conqueror of Milt Aron, a leading welterweight, if he expects to earn a rematch with either Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong or Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers.

In his first encounter against Armstrong and Ambers, Day was defeated, but only after a hard battle against each.

"The contest is the most important held in Chicago this year," Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois boxing commission said yesterday. "It not only will give the survivor recognition as leading challenger in two divisions—lightweight and welterweight—but the bout will tend to bring additional major attractions to the city."

The chairman referred to proposed matches between the Day-Angott winner and Armstrong and Ambers.

The ten round contest between Dave Clark and Buddy Knox, scheduled in Dayton, O., Oct. 2, has been set back to Oct. 6 to enable Joe Louis to be the referee. . . . Buddy Baer, California heavyweight, and Trainer Izzy Kline will leave today for Lubbock, Tex., where Buddy meets Sandy McDonald on Oct. 5. Buddy also fights Bill Boyd in Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.

Cards Defeat Cincinnati and Walters, 4 to 0

ters in the second. Medwick stirred up a little excitement with a single to right. Mize lined in the same direction, but by sprinting in at top speed Goodman caught the drive. Goodman also caught Padgett's tall fly. Then T. Moore singled to center, Medwick stopping at second, whence he scored a moment later on S. Martin's looping single into short left. Werber tossed out McGee to close the inning.

The only peep from the Reds during the first two innings was Lombardi's single. In the third the Reds, with the benefit of an error, were a bit more boisterous, but equally as unsuccessful. Myers lined to S. Martin for the first out and Walters singled to center. He should have been forced at second on Werber's tap, but S. Martin dropped Gutteridge's throw. The error became less of a worry when Frey tapped to McGee. Goodman walked, the last two pitches to him being intentionally wide, then, with the bases filled, McCormick popped to Brown.

Two More for the Gang.

The Cards gathered only one hit in the fourth, but it was mixed with a pass and error to produce two runs. Mize walked and perhaps in this spot the Gas House gang should have resorted to the orthodox bunting game. Padgett preferred to swing, however, and doubled into right center, scoring Mize. Lombardi endeavored to pick Padgett off second, but the throw went wild and the runner moved to third. Padgett scored on Moore's long fly, giving the Cardinals a 3 to 0 lead.

Brown opened the fifth with a single and was bunted to second, where his progress halted. Medwick was the next man to break through Walters' deception. Ducky doubled along the left field line with two out in the eighth. The Reds figured Mize couldn't be trusted in such a spot and gave him a pass. It worked out satisfactorily; Padgett flied to Berger.

Moore's bit of damage in the ninth was accomplished on the first pitch. He slapped it over the left field barricade just inside the foul line. Walters handled the next three men with ease and the Reds then made their final bid. It wasn't much.

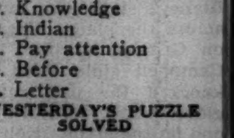
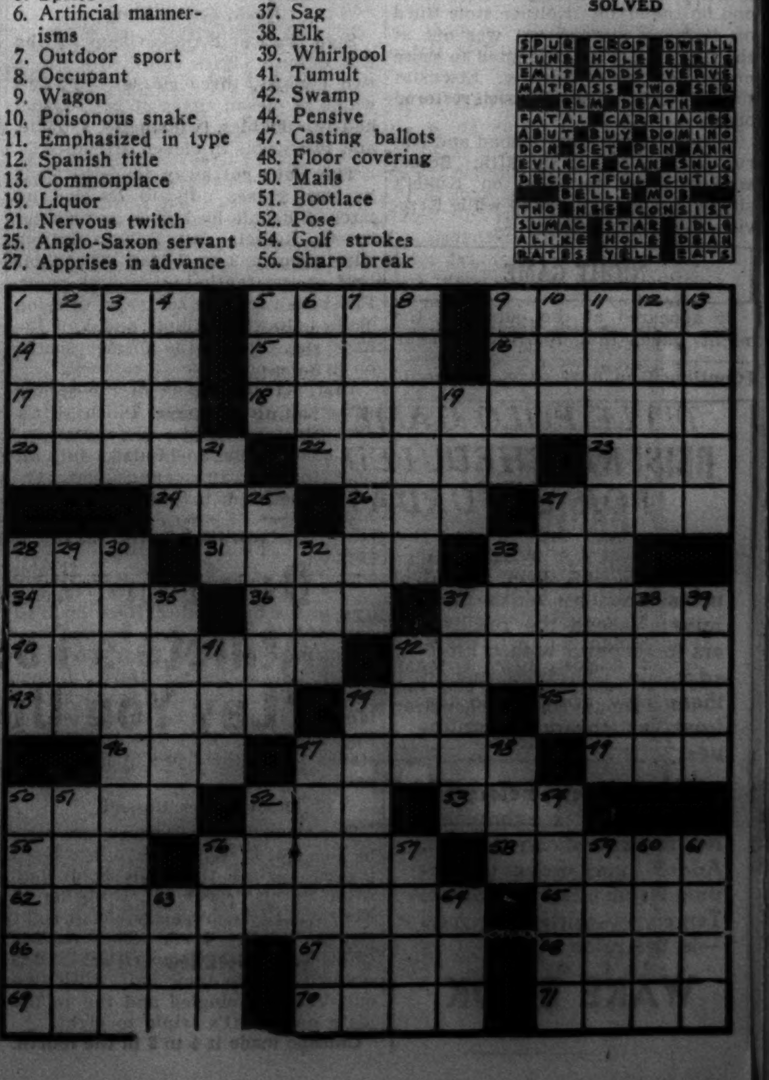
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





MAROONS TO USE AERIAL ATTACK AGAINST BELOIT

Hope Own Line Can Check Rival's Forwards.

With practice at Chicago limited to afternoon sessions starting today, Coach Clark Shaughnessy yesterday planned strenuous activity on two offensive fronts, outmaneuvering the Beloit line, which averages 181 pounds, the same as Chicago's line, and paving the way for the Letts to Wasem passing combination.

Possibility that two outstanding Maroon regulars, Co-captain John Davenport, who is nursing a sore leg, and Walter Maurovich, guard, still not in shape after a late start, may not start in the Beloit opener Saturday increased odds on the Wisconsin school. Two sophomores, Bob A. Miller and Bob Kibele, worked out yesterday in Davenport's position while the former Big Ten sprint titleholder kept warm on the side-lines.

BADGERS WORK ON PASSES.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27 [Special].—Wisconsin's varsity concentrated on its aerial attack today in preparation for the Marquette game here Saturday while the second and third teams scrimmaged the freshmen. Billy Schmitz and Tony Gradisnik, veteran half backs, did most of the passing.

Although both Gordon Gile, left end, and George Paskvan, full back, have been kept out of scrimmage for several days, they will be ready to start against the Hilltoppers. Gile has a pulled muscle in his leg and Paskvan has a sore hand.

Advance sales point to a crowd of about 26,000 for the Marquette game. The Hilltoppers marked up their last victory over Wisconsin in 1936.

MARQUETTE LINE READY.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 27 [Special].—Marquette university's line appeared set today for Saturday's opening game with Wisconsin at Madison. Seven letter men are expected to compose the forward wall against the Badgers vith Don Vosberg, Dubuque, Ia., and Gil Thomsen, Kenosha, Wis., as ends; Ray Busler, Watertown, Wis., and Tom Woods, Chicago, tackles; Bob Kemnitz, Green Bay, Wis., and Dave Braden, Milwaukee, guards, and Ray Apolskis, Chicago, center.

PURVIS STARS FOR ILLINI.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 27 [Special].—The running of Chuck Purvis, senior half back, paced Illinois' offense as it scored three touchdowns against the freshmen today. Purvis twisted 78 yards through freshmen tacklers for one touchdown. His ball carrying and passing were the main factors in another touchdown drive which saw the varsity roll up seven first downs on a sustained march of 85 yards. The third score was the result of three passes by Ralph Ehni, the last to Paul Milosevich who went over from the 10 yard line. Capt. Mel Brewer place kicked two extra points.

SIX WOLVERINES HURT.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 27 [Special].—Coach Fritz Crisler put the first, third and fourth Michigan teams through their paces today, but was at a loss to find the standard second string eleven. Out of what was to be the second team this season, only five men have escaped injury.

Those who are now on the side lines are Jack Meyer, last season's second string quarter back, with a bad knee; Freddie Trosko, veteran half back, with a strained ankle; Al Wistert, sophomore guard, with a sprained ankle; Horace Tinker, junior center, with a dislocated elbow, and both second team tackles, George Ostroot and Dennis Kuhn, with a bad hip and dislocated elbow, respectively.

Tom Harmon returned to contact work after a two day layoff because of a charley horse.

IOWA BACKS SHIFTED.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 27 (AP).—Coach Eddie Anderson today ordered a general shakeup of the first string back field as he prepared the Iowa eleven for the opening game with South Dakota here Saturday.

Only Nile Kinnick, star left half back, remained in the first string back field. Sophomores Bill Green and Burdell Gilleard replaced Ray Murphy, full back, and Russell Busk, right half back, respectively. The latter two were shifted to the third string. Gerald Ankeny filled the quarter back spot, with Al Couppee, who has been holding the post, on the second eleven. The first string line remained intact.

OHIO STATE STAR HURT.

Columbus, O., Sept. 27 [Special].—Two picked Ohio State varsity squads scrimmaged today against the reserve elevens. The bright spot in the session was the capable full backing of Sophomore Johnny Hallabrin, who replaced Jimmy Langhurst when the latter retired for treatment for a leg infection. The Buckeye regular, according to the team physician, Walter Duffee, will be out of the lineup for several days.

TITLE POLO GAME IS RESCHEDULED FOR SATURDAY

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—The game between C. B. Wrightsman's Texas Rangers and John Hay Whitney's Greentree team for the Monty Waterbury Memorial Polo cup was rescheduled tonight for Saturday after rain forced a postponement today. At first it was planned to play the game of the annual high goal handicap tournament tomorrow.

IRISH SCRIMMAGE

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 27 [Special].—Coach Elmer Layden today sent the Notre Dame football squad through its final scrimmage for Saturday's game against Purdue. Joe DeFranco and John Gubanich, starting left and right guards, respectively, participated briefly in the skirmish, but were soon relegated to the side lines. Phil Sheridan, fourth string left end, also was allowed a short period of contact work. Coach Layden pointed out that despite the availability of these men, the coördination of the team has suffered because of their week-long absence from the lineup.

It appeared that only Mike Corgan, right half with the second team, and George Rassas, left end, might be kept out of the Boilermaker game with injuries.

Joe Laiber, right guard, and Steve Bagarus, right half back, both sophomores from Washington High school of South Bend, were moved up to the third team today.

Ed Sullivan, sophomore brother of the late Joe Sullivan, 1935 captain, and No. 3 left guard, was hurt early in today's drill and he probably will be unable to play Saturday.

INDIANA EXPECTS TRICKERY.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 27 [Special].—A wide open game is expected here Saturday when Indiana and Nebraska meet in the Indiana homecoming game it was indicated in practice today as the Hoosiers prepared for a deceptive attack and then worked on some offensive surprises of their own.

Anticipating tricks from Nebraska's fast backs on kicks returns, Coach Bo McMillin drilled the Hoosiers at length on covering kick-offs and punts. A defensive scrimmage followed, with a reserve team presenting Nebraska's attack.

An infected foot having recovered quickly, Harry [Tuffy] Brooks probably will appear the back field Saturday, McMillin said.

NEBRASKA OFF TONIGHT.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 27 (AP).—Nebraska's football players held a final drill on offense today. A squad of 37 will have a last look at Indiana formations tomorrow, then entrain for Bloomington.

GOPHER LINEUP SHIFTED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 27 (AP).—A tentative lineup, including some surprises, began to take shape on the Minnesota practice field today as Coach Bernie Bierman hustled final preparations for the opener against Arizona Saturday. Among the unexpected moves was the shifting of Fred Van't Hull, sophomore guard, to end, along with Ed Steinbauer, veteran full back. Bob Kollinger, a reserve, saw heavy duty as varsity center, and signs were he would start against the Wildcats.

Bierman cut the workout schedule to one a day today.

WILDCATS SCRIMMAGE.

A stiff intrasquad scrimmage yesterday concluded the last formal drill for Northwestern's squad before it meets the freshmen Saturday in the first public performance this fall. Four full teams saw action against each other in the workout.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS ELIMINATED IN BASEBALL MEET

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 27 [Special].—Chicago Heights, Ill., Randolph Field, Tex., and Bancroft, Ia., today were eliminated from the National amateur tournament of the American Baseball congress when they suffered their second defeats. Chicago Heights lost to Linden, N. J., 16 to 1; Randolph Field was beaten by South Bend, Ind., 5 to 3, and Bancroft was defeated by Fremont, Neb., 7 to 6.

Battle Creek also triumphed, defeating Chattanooga, Tenn., 6 to 2. The victories sent Battle Creek, South Bend, Linden, and Fremont into the fifth round. The only game scheduled tomorrow will bring together Linden and South Bend.

Catholic League Schedule Opens Tomorrow Night

The Chicago Catholic High School league, which this year promises that its champion will halt the Public School league's string of victories in Mayor Kelly's All-City football game, starts off its season under the lights tomorrow night in Weber park, Ashland and Wellington avenues, with a game involving Andy Pilney's Weber eleven and Catholic High of Joliet. Five other league contests in the north and south sections will be played Sunday afternoon.

In preseason games the Catholic league boasts two victories over Public School league opponents and another game ended in a scoreless tie. Two weeks ago Loyola academy defeated its neighborhood rival, Senn, 14 to 13. Last Saturday De Paul academy routed Phillips, 20 to 0. The scoreless deadlock was played by St. Rita and Lindblom two weeks ago.

Mount Carmel, champion of the Catholic league last year, which fell before the sensational runs of Fenger's Donald Griffin, 13 to 0, in the city prep title game, begins its 1939 campaign against St. Rita on the latter's field, 63d street and Claremont avenue, Sunday afternoon. In another south division contest, De La Salle will oppose De Paul at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets.

In the north section, Fenwick faces St. Patrick in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue; St. Ignatius plays Loyola academy in St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets, and St. Mel opposes St. George in a new athletic stadium at Roosevelt road and Central avenue.

Lane Tech and Tilden Tech, co-champions of the Public High School Soccer league, opened their season with victories yesterday. . . . Lane defeated Von Steuben, 10 to 1, and Tilden won from Amundsen, 5 to 0. . . . Schurz and Kelly played a 2 to 2 tie and Crane Tech defeated Hyde Park, 3 to 0, in another pair of games. . . . The Rev. P. J. Conaty of Fenwick will serve as president of the Catholic league this year. . . . The Rev. G. M. Mullen will be vice president.

Mayor Kelly has been named honorary chairman of the annual Sisters of Mercy charity game which will bring together Leo and St. Rita in Soldiers' field Oct. 29.

Five members of Farragut's football team prepared themselves for the league season by spending the summer at Fort Sheridan in the Citizens Military Training camp. . . . They are John Rohs, right end; Joe Koluder, left end; Jerry Maresh and Bob Hunter, centers, and Tony Pojman, right tackle.

Lake Forest academy begins its fiftieth football season Saturday by playing the alumni in Lake Forest. . . . Culver Military academy opens its 1939 schedule against Pullman Tech at Culver, Ind., Saturday. . . . Chicagoans who will be in Culver's starting lineup include Roger Bentley, guard; Lindsey Park, full back, and Layne Rogers, center. . . . Hammond Tech and Froebel of Gary, which dropped their opening games in the western division of the Northern Indiana prep conference, will meet tonight in Gary.

Little Hig Is Awake While Railbirds Doze

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Hawthorne race track crowd went sound asleep for a few minutes yesterday and before it awoke, one of the good things of the meeting had come in at 13 to 1.

This was Little Hig, a four year old gelding owned by Mrs. D. C. Wilhelm. Though his past performances indicated that he could be a very definite factor in the six and a half furlong dash, the bettors practically ignored him while they backed Happy Road to 5 to 2, with Goshen and Lunsford the 5 to 1 second choices.

When the horses reached the starting gate over in the chute, Little Hig was quoted at 20 to 1. Those who remembered his two recent efforts, got out their form sheets and saw that the favorite, Happy Road, had finished only a length ahead of him the last time they met. They also saw that Little Hig had been beaten only two lengths and two noses in running fifth to Busse Trumpet since that horse attained his excellent form of the last two weeks.

Somebody Gets Smart.

A very short time before the starting bell, a lump of smart money went in with a solid thud, sending Little Hig's odds down to 13 to 1. And there they stayed.

Breaking from the extreme outside post position, Little Hig was forced to go fairly wide most of the way. Lunsford, Cherovan, and Happy Road went out to match speed during the run down the back stretch while Jockey Al Bodiou was keeping Little Hig clear of interference. Swinging around the turn Little Hig worked his way up gradually, but he was still sixth as they headed into the stretch.

After going out to get around the pace setters, Little Hig came up under a hard drive to take the lead in the last sixteenth. Then he drew out nicely, beating Cherovan by a length with Lunsford two lengths further back. The favorite, Happy Road, could do no better than fourth after tiring in the stretch.

Star Bud Wins.

Star Bud won the Lost Battalion purse, a six furlong allowance event. After Battle Call and Ginocchio had raced head and head around the turn, Cooling Spring came up to challenge in the stretch. Then Star Bud and Squaw Lady, both of which had been outrun in the early stages, moved up on the outside. Star Bud got to the front in the last sixteenth and went on to win by two lengths while Squaw Lady was taking second place away from Cooling Spring.

Star Bud was held at a little less than six to one in the betting while Battle Call and Squaw Lady were being established as the 2 to 1 favorites. Tickets on the winner were worth $13.60, $5.20 and $3.40.

GRIFFITH DENIES PITT, NEBRASKA TO JOIN BIG TEN

Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner, said yesterday there was nothing to a report that Pittsburgh and Nebraska will become members of the organization, as predicted in a circular letter to members of the Pitt Lettermen's club.

"That story comes up every once in a while," Griffith said. "I haven't heard any discussion on the part of conference officials regarding any possible changes in conference membership for a long time."

PABSTS ROLL UP 3,109 SCORE TO TAKE 1ST PLACE

The Pabst team bowled 899, 1,176, and 1,034 for a 3,109 series last night at the Cragin recreation, winning all three games from the Schlitz and taking the lead in the Wednesday division of the Classic league. The Ambrosias won two out of three from Michelobs and trailed the Pabsts by one game. The Koenigs took three from the Pragers and the Monarchs defeated the Power House twice.

Herb Freitag, lead-off for Pabst, bowled 190, 256, and 232 for a 678 series.

MR. MILE'S OWNER ASKS $2,500 FOR INJURY TO HORSE

William Hamilton, head starter at the Hawthorne race track, yesterday was named defendant in a $2,500 damage suit filed in Circuit court by Owner Harry Herendeen for injuries sustained by the latter's horse, Mr. Mile, in the first race at Hawthorne on Sept. 21.

Herendeen's suit charges that Mr. Mile was injured so severely that his value as a running horse was destroyed. The horse did not run in the race, being excused by the stewards after the injury was revealed.

FEDERAL CHEAP MONEY POLICY IS TERMED FAILURE

Interest Rate Going Up, Says Banker.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 27 [Special].—The end of the era of "easy money" was predicted today by H. Donald Campbell, president of the Chase National bank of New York. He told the American Bankers association that the low interest rates that have been enforced by government policy for the last decade cannot be longer maintained.

Campbell, whose bank is the largest in the United States, said the government money policy has been a failure. It has, he said, jeopardized the existence of the private banking system by destroying its earning power, penalizing the thrifty, and taking away a large share of their investment income. Millions of individuals have been forced to pay more to get life insurance protection as a direct result of the government's program, he said.

Cites Changed Conditions.

Recent developments, beyond the ability of the government to control, have created a new set of conditions that will bring a rise in interest rates, Campbell declared.

"Interest rates," he said, "cannot be pegged at their present levels. Existing rates do not represent an equilibrium between savings and demand for long term funds. For a time the true situation was disguised by government deficits, by the financing of these deficits through the banking system, by the swelling of bank deposits and the growth of idle reserve funds."

The big metropolitan banks, Campbell said, have been the chief victims of the government's money policy. They, to a greater degree than the smaller banks, have had to meet the competition of the government itself, which has become the leading purveyor of credit.

Policy Termed Shortsighted.

"To make use of funds borrowed from commercial banks—at rates of interest fived artificially low—to compete with these same commercial banks, seems to me to be both unfair and short-sighted," he said. He added that these banks "are struggling desperately to sustain themselves."

The Chase executive said the present trend of business activity promises an expansion in the commercial loan banks.

The expansion should be accelerated by the war in Europe, and this demand for loans may use up some of the huge supply of idle credit now carried in the banking system, he said.

The factors influencing the demand for credit include the wider markets available to the United States in South America through the shutting off of industrial competition from some European countries.

Predicts Increased Income.

"Already," he said, "there is increased borrowing demand. Rates of interest have shown a rising tendency. Banks are going to have larger income from current operations than seemed probable six week ago."

Campbell assailed proposals for greater centralization of credit con-

Coal Division Aid Urges Cut in Fixed Prices

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—An official of the bituminous coal division of the interior department today recommended a reduction of 15 cents a ton in the proposed minimum prices for domestic coal moving into Chicago and other Illinois and Indiana points, and an additional 10 cent cut on all industrial coal.

The official was Dr. C. J. Potter, assistant chief of the division's marketing section. He testified on the price relationships established by the division during its hearings on objections to its proposed minimum prices for midwestern coal.

Consumers Make Protests.

Consumers and producers have joined in protesting that the prices proposed by the government for every size and type of coal were too high and discriminatory. Yesterday the division brought into the hearings 92 schedules of prices which showed wide variation from minimum prices proposed earlier.

Potter admitted on the stand today that the prices proposed by the coal division were not based on prices at which coal heretofore has sold.

Discusses Specific Prices.

Most of the day was spent hearing his recital of reasons for determining specific prices in various sections of the midwestern and southwestern areas, which include Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

Intervention by the state of Illinois in the hearings is expected tomorrow in a move to protect interests of Illinois consumers and producers. After it developed that some of the proposed rates were discriminatory as between neighboring cities and that proximity to mines was disregarded, Gov. Henry Horner directed Harry R. Booth, assistant attorney general, to draw up a petition of intervention on behalf of the state.

ROBERT E. WOODRUFF REPORTED SELECTED TO HEAD ERIE ROAD

Cleveland, O., Sept. 27 (AP).—A usually informed source said today that Robert Eastman Woodruff, operating vice president of the Erie railroad, had been selected by the line's directors as their choice for president and cotrustee to succeed Charles E. Denney. Denney is expected to be elected president of Northern Pacific later this week to fill the vacancy created by death of Charles Donnelly.

R. E. Woodruff.

Erie is in reorganization and selection of Wooduff would need approval of federal court and the interstate commerce commission, railroad men said.

Woodruff, 55 years old this month, has been operating vice president for ten years and was understood to have Denney's recommendation for the position. His entire railroad service has been with Erie. Woodruff was born in Green Bay, Wis., and attended high school at Benton Harbor, Mich.

Owens-Illinois Glass to Cut Interest on Loan

New York, Sept. 27 [Special].—Owens-Illinois Glass company has reported to the Securities and Exchange commission arrangements for cutting the interest and changing other terms of its 3½ per cent sinking fund debentures, sold privately in 1937. Interest is to be cut from 3½ to 2¾ per cent. Starting Aug. 1, 1940, the company is to be permitted to make sinking fund payments sufficient to redeem $2,000,000 face value of the bonds.

Drouth Is Big Threat to 1940 Winter Wheat

Drouth seriously threatens next year's winter wheat crop, the department of agriculture disclosed yesterday. The parched condition of the soil in the western plains states has retarded germination of seeds.

Continued lack of rain in the winter wheat belt last week was reported by the weather bureau in its weekly crop bulletin. Unseasonably dry weather prevailed also in many Atlantic states, in the upper Rocky Mountain section and generally in the Pacific northwest.

Plentiful rains are essential to the winter wheat crop which is being planted in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and Nebraska. Without adequate soil moisture, the seeds wither and their growth is halted entirely or dwarfed.

Planting Extremely Late.

N. E. Dodd, director of the Agricultural Adjustment administration's western division, said that planting of the winter wheat crop was "farther behind than ever known." He had returned from an inspection tour of the great plains, the Rocky mountains, and the Pacific northwest.

Crop experts said that drenching rains were needed to assure a good wheat crop next year and to prevent duststorms. Unless the rains come soon, they said, there will not be sufficient plant growth to hold the top soil together. Without a covering crop, the soil would be lifted by autumn and winter winds in severe duststorms reminiscent of the drouths of 1934 and 1936.

Some Planting Done in August.

Winter wheat is normally seeded in September and October although August planting occurs in some areas. The wheat is harvested in the next June and July.

The hard and soft red winter wheat crops supply about three-quarters of

WORSTED GOODS BOOSTED AGAIN ON WOOL RISE

Many Staples Move Still Higher.

Textiles, fastest moving group in the list of commodities lifted by the war boom, held the center of trade attention again yesterday. Manufacturers of worsteds, or high quality woolen goods, raised prices for the fabrics 10 to 20 cents a yard. It was the third advance since the rise started, and carried prices to levels 50 to 60 cents a yard higher than at the end of August. The new levels represent an advance of about 30 per cent.

Dealers also predicted a further advance in worsteds and other woolen goods may be announced in a few days. The next increase is expected to amount to 10 cents a yard or more, but it will depend on developments regarding the possible importation of wool supplies controled by Britain.

Wool Shortage Possible.

The United States does not supply all its own wool needs, and substantial imports from Australia are usually made. Britain, however, has been allocated the entire Australian supply for British consumption, and the possibility of a shortage of raw wool has boosted prices upward in the raw wool markets at Boston and New York, with consequent increases in the cost of goods.

New York wool top futures yesterday dropped .5 to 1.2 cents a pound, but cash wool held at $1.30, only 1 cent a pound under the war boom peak. The price was 86½ cents a pound on Aug. 31. In the Boston market wool prices continued to move upward slowly.

South American Prices High.

C. W. Bigelow, secretary of the Boston Wool Trade association, said plenty of wool is available in South America, but prices there are "pretty high."

Cash zinc was another feature performer, with some sellers advancing the price to 6½ cents a pound at East St. Louis, Ill., a new peak since the boom started. It was believed all major producers would soon be quoting 6½ cents rather than 6¼ cents, the price prevailing recently.

Zinc and lead futures moved up slightly at New York. Copper gained .12 to .20 cent a pound.

Sugar futures rose as much as .10 cent a pound, with world contracts stronger than domestic futures. Reports that Spain bought 60,000 tons of Cuban raw sugar and 10,000 tons of refined brought a fair volume of buying into the market. The entire Cuban quota for European sugars is expected to be sold by Nov. 15.

Other Commodities Gain.

Other New York commodities moving upward were rubber and both Santos and Rio coffee futures. Cottonseed oil, cocoa, and silk futures declined. Cash raw silk moved slightly higher.

Hide futures dropped .30 to .34 cent a pound, although cash hides remained at 17 cents. A Dow-Jones dispatch credited a Boston shoe manufacturer with predicting the increased cost of hides will bring an advance of at least 15 per cent in the wholesale price of shoes. Short supplies of shoes already manufactured will cause the increase to reach the consuming public quickly, the dispatch said.

Federal Competition Is Held Barrier to New Construction

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—Government competition stands in the way of recovery in the construction industry—a recovery which would absorb all workers employed in WPA construction projects—James D. Marshall of the Associated General Contractors of America, today told members of the Producers' Council, Inc.

J. R. Fugard chosen treasurer of architects' institute.

The semi-annual meeting of the council was held here in conjunction with the annual convention of the American Institute of Architects.

If the building industry were restored to pre-1930 volume, it could completely absorb the WPA workers now competing with private industry, Marshall declared.

Hindrances to Recovery.

"Chief hindrances to recovery in the construction industry," he said, "have been fear of investors to put money into long-term investments, such as private construction, and the direct competition of the WPA with construction organizations on public works.

"Emergency construction cannot afford the inefficient use of manpower, machinery, and materials. The emergency, created at least by the necessity for defense preparedness, makes it all the more necessary that the government cease its competition with private construction and instead take steps to foster and rebuild it in order that it may be of greatest usefulness to the country in time of peace or preparedness."

He asserted that money which formerly went into construction is now idle "cyclone cellar money," or is placed "in the great competing investment — government securities." Until the flow of private capital is once more resumed, private construction has a definite barrier, he said.

View on Building Costs.

Dealing with construction costs, Marshall said that the popular belief, encouraged by frequent pronouncements of government officials, was that construction costs had been rising and were now excessive, but that recent surveys by his organization did not bear this out. A "1927" model building could be exactly reproduced today at lower costs than in 1927, he declared, adding that today's reproduction would have many features and improvements not available twelve years ago.

However, the American Institute of Architects called upon the department of justice to investigate what it termed racketeering in the building industries.

Members said the alleged rackets included control of labor operations, sales of materials, and handling of real estate transactions.

John R. Fugard of Chicago was elected treasurer of the American Institute of Architects. Edwin Bergstrom of Los Angeles was elected president.

14 LOCOMOTIVES TO BE ORDERED BY BURLINGTON

Plans for substantial equipment purchases were announced yesterday by the Burlington and Norfolk and Western railroads. After a meeting of the executive committee in New York, Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, said a buying program was approved which includes 10 freight locomotives, 4 Diesel-electric passenger locomotives, 100 flat cars and 250 coal cars.

The Diesel-electric locomotives will be built by the Electro-Motive corporation at La Grange. Three will be of 4,000 horsepower and one will have 2,000 horsepower. The new locomotives will be used between Chicago and Omaha and Denver.

The Norfolk and Western has placed orders for 1,500 steel hopper cars. This is in addition to the orders placed last week for 2,000 similar cars.

HEAVY SELLING HALTS EARLY STOCK ADVANCE

Close Is Irregular; Industrials Dip.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 27.—The stock market closed irregular today when heavy selling checked an early advance under the leadership of rail and utility stocks. At one time gains in those groups were substantial, but they were pared sharply or wiped out at the close.

Standard industrial issues, never buoyant at any time, proved vulnerable to the late liquidation and posted losses running to more than a point. Despite the late slide, one average for the rail group registered a new peak for the year with a rise of .17 points to 35.90. Early in the session the index reached 36.70.

Trading picked up appreciably. The total was 2,339,930 shares, compared with 1,712,670 shares on the preceding session.

Movement Termed Technical.

In the absence of concrete developments observers ascribed today's market behavior to technical factors coming into play first after the boom in "war stocks" and more recently after the upsurge of carrier shares.

Among the more prominent rails Union Pacific closed fractionally higher. Southern Pacific, New York Central, Great Northern preferred, Delaware and Hudson, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and Southern Railway ended fractionally lower. The low price Canadian Pacific and Northern Pacific issues were active on the upside.

Power and light shares resisted the selling slightly better than other shares.

Steel Group Is Weak.

Steel shares turned conspicuously weak in the selloff. United States Steel lost nearly 2 points. Bethlehem dropped 1⅜ points.

Aviation stocks closed irregularly lower. Douglas, United Aircraft, and Consolidated Aircraft showed losses running to a point. Most active copper shares slipped fractionally.

Most active copper shares slipped fractionally.

Strength in rubber shares was one of the features of trading. Gains of a point or more were recorded by United States Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, and General Tire and Rubber.

Motor shares also gave a relatively good performance, General Motors, Chrysler, and Yellow Truck working fractionally higher. Merchandising issues, notably Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck, also worked higher.

Allied stood out in the chemicals with a 1 point gain, but du Pont and Union Carbide eased. Electric equipment issues, including Westinghouse and General Electric, were firm. Rail equipment stocks met selling.

Two memberships on the stock exchange were transferred today at $70,000 each, an increase of $5,000 from the preceding sale and equal to the high mark for the year first touched March 8. Lowest 1939 price was $51,000 on April 11.

New York Bonds.

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—Buyers of railroad liens continued to crowd the bond market today. Representative carrier loans stretched their exceptionally wide September gain by an average of ½ point, according to the Associated Press rail index.

Utility issues also were strong. Other sections of the market followed the pace of the rail-utility leaders, although profit taking cut into gains near the close.

United States government loans speeded up their recent rally as buyers, prompted by signs of price stability, extended the range of their bids. At the end many treasuries showed gains of ½ point or more and the list as a whole was comfortable above the war selling lows recorded last week.

Recovery trends persisted over a large part of the foreign list,

Chicago Stocks.

Volume leaders on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday were irregularly higher. Advances predominated as transactions expanded to 55,000 shares from Tuesday's 31,000. Four issues reached new highs for the year.

Commonwealth Edison rose ¼ point to 28⅝. Central and South West Utilities common, however, lost ⅛ point, closing at 1⅛.

Sundstrand Machine and Tool at 15⅞, Aetna Ball Bearing at 9⅞, and Compressed Industrial Gases at 16½ closed fractionally higher at new peaks. Pressed Steel Car touched a new high of 16⅜, but closed below that level.

City National bank stock was bid 1 point higher in yesterday's trading. Other issues were unchanged. Prices follow:

Buying by mills featured trading in cotton futures yesterday. Closing trades were at gains of .03 to .16 cent a pound. October increased its premium over the deferred futures. STEEL PLANTS' OPERATING RATE POINTS HIGHER

Shortage of Materials Is Reported.

Steel production this week is at 84 per cent of capacity and will go still higher in coming weeks, the magazine Iron Age said yesterday. At the same time the industry, working near top speed for the first time in two years, is encountering "bottlenecks" that tend to slow production.

These include shortages of essential raw materials used in steelmaking, such as pig iron, coke, and scrap. The survey also mentioned mechanical defects which appear only when machinery is working under stress.

The only negative sign in the steel situation, according to Iron Age, is the fact that production is climbing more rapidly than consumption. Any open places on mill schedules, however, could be quickly filled with some of the export inquiries which the steel companies have been turning down, it said.

May Announce Prices Soon.

First quarter prices for next year may be announced in two weeks, the survey said. The announcement is expected to bring a rush of orders, including many of the railroad inquiries not yet placed, which will fill the books for that quarter almost immediately. Meanwhile most mills are booked to capacity for the remainder of 1939, and many are refusing to take bids on several important products such as plates, shapes, pipe, and rail.

The survey termed the abrupt rise in steel scrap prices "one of the most serious aspects of the present situation." An apparent shortage of good scrap has pushed the Iron Age scrap composite up $2.42 in the last week to $21.67 per ton, only 25 cents below the 1937 boom peak.

Record Set in 1917.

The survey recalled that the highest scrap prices on record were reached in the world war boom of 1917, when Pittsburgh scrap sold for $45 per ton in June of that year. The highest postwar scrap market was in 1920, when the Pittsburgh price went to $30.

Railroad orders in the last two weeks totaled more than 40,000 cars, which will require about 500,000 tons of steel. An increasing volume of orders and inquiries for rails was in evidence.

Anthracite producers announced increases of 15 to 30 cents a ton on domestic sizes of hard coal. Last week the producers boosted prices 15 to 40 cents.

Business Bits

William B. Given Jr., president of American Brake Shoe & Foundry company, announced yesterday that an export department had been established, with D. H. Young as director of exports. Young is vice president of the American Manganese Steel division of the firm.

D. H. Young.

Arthur Williams will join Middle West Export company, effective Oct. 1. He was formerly export manager of the Woodstock Typewriter company of Woodstock, Ill., and was president of the Export Managers club of Chicago for 1938-1939.

The "Information Please" type of question and answer program will feature the meeting of the foreign trade division of the Chicago Association of Credit Men tonight at the Medinah club. Banking experts who will attempt to answer questions on credits and exchange conditions in foreign countries are M. C. Hesse of the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co.; H. J. Karch of the Northern Trust company; A. B. Grout, Harris Trust & Savings bank; and C. J. Ruethling, First National Bank of Chicago.

The Women's Finance forum opens its new season today with a dinner meeting at the Congress hotel. Earl L. Smith, president of Webber college, Boston, Mass., will speak.

POWER OUTPUT SETS ANOTHER NEW HIGH MARK

Production of electric power in the week ended last Saturday climbed to the highest mark for any week on record, Edison Electric Institute figures indicated yesterday. This resulted from the efforts of industrial enterprises throughout the United States to supply demands created by the war boom.

The institute reported power output of 2,448,888,000 kilowatt hours. In the previous week, when the previous record was established, output amounted to 2,444,371,000 kilowatt hours.

The latest week's output was 13.7 per cent ahead of the 2,154,218,000 kilowatt hours produced in the corresponding week of 1938.

Electricity output of the Commonwealth Edison company group, serving Chicago, totaled 149,269,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended Sept. 23, an increase of 15.6 per cent over the corresponding week of last year. The preceding week's output of 152,041,000 kilowatt hours was 14.2 per cent above 1938.

BRAZIL ORDERS SHIPS AND RAILS FROM AMERICA

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 27 [Special].—A deal was closed today by the Brazilian government with American manufacturers for $5,400,000 worth of rails and ships. A $6,500,000 transaction for locomotives and freight cars was reported near conclusion.

The rail order was $1,900,000 for 22,500 tons. Fourteen ships were purchased from the Moore and McCormack lines for $3,500,000.

Both transactions call for a 35 per cent cash payment in dollars and 65 per cent credit by the Export-Import bank of Washington, D. C., at 5 per cent interest.

Robert McConnell Named Hopkins' Business Adviser

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27 (AP).—Robert E. McConnell, engineer and former head of several large business firms, today became business adviser to Harry Hopkins, secretary of commerce.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

A sharp decline hit the market for hogs after a slightly higher opening yesterday. A big share of the supply went over the scales at reductions of 10 to 25 cents a hundred pounds, compared with the average of the preceding day. Recent losses in provision market prices, especially lard, and the increasing slaughtering of hogs throughout the country were blamed for the setback in the market at the stockyards.

Most classes of steers and yearlings fell 15 to 25 cents under pressure of heavy receipts. A few of the best light yearlings, which were in largest demand, held steady.

The trade for lambs surged upward fully 25 cents despite weakness in other meat animals.

MARKET TO FLEE TO RENO IF 'HAM AND EGGS' WINS

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 27 (AP).—Officials disclosed plans today to move the San Francisco Stock exchange to Reno if the "ham and egg" pension plan becomes law.

A statement by the exchange said the organiation had "completed arrangements for the formation of a Nevada corporation under the name of San Francisco Stock Exchange, Inc."

Purpose would be to escape the California gross income tax—really a transaction tax—which would automatically become effective Nov. 8 should the retirement life payments act win a majority vote in the Nov. 7 election. The tax is 3 per cent.

Under the proposed pension all nonworking Californians over 50 years of age would receive $30 weekly in state issued scrip, which would circulate as money in all businesses which would accept it.

DROUTH SERIOUS THREAT TO 1940 WINTER WHEAT

Parched Soil Retards Seed Germination.

the nation's annual wheat yield in normal years. Hard red winter wheat is produced in parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Texas and Oklahoma, and is used mainly in making bread flour.

Soft red winter wheat is grown mostly in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, and Ohio and is used for biscuit and pastry flour.

Water for livestock is low in Ohio, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Kentucky, Montana, and Oklahoma. Parched pastures confront stock raisers in this area.

In Missouri, agriculture department officials said that milk production had been reduced almost one-half by the drouth. Average rainfall in the state last week was less than 3 per cent of normal. Pasture and ranges are tinder dry. Many live stock farmers in the drouth area have been forced to sacrifice meat animals unfattened, it was reported.

Frost occurred in some areas but did little damage because of the rapid maturity of all crops. Most of the corn crop is safe from frost damage. Harvesting has started over a wide area.

CORN PRICES DROP

Corn markets weakened yesterday and closing prices of futures on the Chicago Board of Trade showed net losses of 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents a bushel. December sold at 53⅛ cents, the lowest price for that delivery since Sept. 2.

Farmers were reported as showing much more inclination to sell new and old corn for deferred shipment and Chicago handlers announced they purchased more than 400,000 bushels yesterday. Weakness developed in the sample market where prices were ¼ to ¾ cent lower compared with the December future.

A revival in the export demand for rye with sales of 60,000 bushels reported made for shipment to Scandinavia was responsible for independent firmness in that grain. Futures closed ⅛ to ½ cent higher.

Trading in wheat futures was slow with the close ⅝ to ¾ cent lower.

The Federal Crop Insurance corporation is estimated to have purchased about 3,000,000 bushels of cash wheat in the west and southwest in the last two weeks. The large buying is regarded as a reflection of a keen demand on the part of farmers to secure protection on next year's crop due to the continued dry weather.

MARGINS ARE SLASHED IN COMMODITY TRADE; MARKETS ORDERLY

Margin requirements on speculative trades in many commodities were cut by several Chicago commission houses yesterday. The reductions ranged from 20 to 40 per cent. The orderly action of the markets recently was said to be responsible for the smaller amounts of money speculators must deposit to guarantee their trades.

New margin requirements per contract which went into effect yesterday as announced by J. S. Bache & Co. compare as follows:

	Current	Previous	Contract
Cocoa	$300	$ 500	30,000 lbs.
Copper	750	1,000	56,000 lbs.
Lead	750	1,000	60,000 lbs.
Rubber	750	1,000	22,400 lbs.
Zinc	750	1,000	60,000 lbs.
Cottonseed Oil	600	900	60,000 lbs.
Hides	800	1,000	40,000 lbs.
Lard	500	750	50,000 lbs.
Pepper	350	500	33,600 lbs.
Sugar	500	750	112,000 lbs.

No change in margin requirements on trades in wheat, corn, and other grains is contemplated at the present by the Chicago Board of Trade, it was said. Commission houses and brokers, however, assert that the present requirements of 15 cents on wheat, rye, and soy beans and 12 cents a bushel on corn are excessive in view of the recent actions of the markets.

BULLION DEALER CUTS PRICE OF FOREIGN SILVER

The price of foreign mined silver was lowered 1⅞ cents an ounce yesterday by New York dealers. Handy and Harman, bullion dealers who make the market, fixed the quotation at 37¼ cents an ounce. The reduction was the result, they said, of "lack of demand." In recent weeks trading in the metal has been quiet.

The price of imported silver at New York usually moves with the trend of the London or world market for bar silver. The London price yesterday, however, was steady at 23½ pence an ounce, equivalent to 42.62 cents on the basis of $4.03 for sterling.

The price of gold at London was continued at 168 shillings an ounce.

Increasing demand boosted the price of the British sterling 2 cents to $4.02¼ at New York.

Strength of the pound imparted new vigor to most other European currencies. The French franc climbed 0.00½ cent to 2.28 cents, and the Dutch guilder advanced 0.06 cent at 53.31 cents.

JOBS, PAY ROLLS IN MIDDLE WEST REPORTED RISING

Quickening activity in many basic lines of industry, particularly in steel and automobile production, indicates a September gain in employment and pay rolls in the 7th federal reserve district, George J. Schaller, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said yesterday. He issued a monthly review of business conditions.

Martin P. Durkin, state director of labor, reported meanwhile that continued employment gains in Illinois boosted August pay rolls 13.1 per cent over the level for August, 1938. Employment last month was 2.3 per cent ahead of July, while August pay rolls rose 3.9 over those for the preceding month. The figures covered 6,740 establishments. In Chicago employment increased 0.9 per cent and pay rolls 1.8 per cent, Durkin reported.

FEDERAL CHEAP MONEY POLICY IS TERMED FAILURE

Interest Rates Going Up, Banker Declares.

trol in Washington, D. C. The same note was struck by several speakers who had appeared earlier at this convention.

"It does not matter," he said, "whether the central authority is Republican or Democrat or something else. The opportunity for oppression or restriction and political misuse of the lending power would be identical."

Campbell said that he is optimistic about the prospects that the country will return to a conservative financial program and that economic activity will again revive.

The vigor with which the banking profession is reasserting its independence was highlighted in addresses by today's speakers. Unreserved criticism of government policy is a distinguishing mark at this convention.

Change in Attitude Noted.

For the most part at the annual A. B. A. convention in recent years the delegates have listened politely to government representatives explain the new order of things and their criticisms, if any, were phrased to give the minimum possible offense to the political agencies of the government.

This year the delegates and speakers appear to sense that popular disfavor which bankers are supposed to have incurred does not exist.

Philip A. Benson, retiring president of the association, said the economic stresses which the European war will bring in the United States make it necessary that government conflict with business be ended.

"The least we can accomplish is to end the disunion within our borders," Benson said. "What we need now more than anything is stability."

Administration Record Assailed.

Dr. Paul Cadman, economist and director of the American Research Foundation, said the Roosevelt administration has weakened the country economically to a point it would be seriously handicapped in prosecuting war if the necessity arose.

Debt has piled up to a point where the major financial reorganization would be necessary in order to finance a war, he asserted.

Deliberate efforts have been made, he said, to blame the recent advances in prices on war profiteers in a move designed to arouse antagonism to private business.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he declared, "notwithstanding that there are racketeers throughout the world, in economics as well as politics. Their influence upon prices as a whole is small and short-lived."

Oklahoma Is Nominated.

H. W. Koeneke of Ponca City, Okla., was nominated for the second vice presidency of the association. He was the unanimous choice of its nomination committee. Under the rule of succession long followed, Koeneke will succeed to the association presidency in 1941. He is president of the Security Bank of Ponca City.

There is no contest for the presidency. Robert M. Hanes, president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust company of Winston-Salem, N. C., is scheduled for formal election to the presidency for the next year at tomorrow's session. He is a brother of John W. Hanes, undersecretary of the treasury, and is known as a critic of many Roosevelt administration policies.

P. D. Houston, chairman of the American National Bank of Nashville, Tenn., will succeed Hanes as first vice president.

UTILITIES POWER A HODGEPODGE, ATLAS CHARGES

Defends Its Program for 'Sprawling' Company.

Arguments on the proposed plan for reorganization of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, submitted by the Atlas corporation, began yesterday before Federal Judge William H. Holly. The plan has been approved by Harry N. Gottlieb, special master in chancery, and by the Securities and Exchange commission.

Utilities Power is a holding company which once had assets listed at about $400,000,000. Formerly headed by Harley L. Clarke of Chicago, it was described to Judge Holly as a great sprawling enterprise with an unduly complicated capital structure embracing factories and movie houses, as well as public utilities.

Junior Stockholders Object.

The arguments for and against the plan are expected to take several days. The chief objections have been made by the junior security holders. No provision has been made for them in the proposed plan, although they retain the right to subscribe for new issues of common stock.

Attorney Nathan S. Blumberg, counsel for the Atlas corporation, spoke several hours during the day in favor of the plan. The Atlas corporation, he told the court, has the greatest interest in the reorganization proceedings because it holds 81 per cent of Utilities Power's outstanding indebtedness.

He answered objections to the conversion of the company from a holding to an investment concern, which is part of the Atlas plan.

Criticizes Management.

"The company is not equipped to continue as a public utility holding company," he said. "It has neither the funds nor the proper management."

Included in the holdings of Utilities Power not in the realm of public utilities, according to Blumberg, are a 10 cent movie house in New York and a box factory in Bemidji, Minn. Many of these properties should be sold, he said.

The company was insolvent when it began reorganization proceedings, Blumberg said, but today through the help of the Atlas company is solvent, having reduced the amount of its outstanding debentures from 50 million dollars to less than 32 million dollars.

Objections Are Heard.

Objections to the proposed plan were discussed during the afternoon session. Attorney Willard L. King, representing holders of the common stock, asserted that section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy act, under which Utilities Power is being reorganized, does not permit elimination of three of the four classes of securities.

He exclaimed heatedly that any law permitting this procedure would be discriminatory and therefore unconstitutional. The hearing was continued until this morning.

JOBLESS TOTAL IN NATION DIPS DURING AUGUST

New York, Sept. 27 (AP).—The National Industrial Conference board reported today that unemployment in the United States declined 4.3 per cent in August to the lowest point since December, 1937.

The number of jobless was estimated at 9,424,000 compared with 9,852,000 in July and 10,601,000 in August, 1938.

The conference board said total employment rose almost half a million in August to 45,263,000 the largest number since November, 1937.

LOANS

Solely on the borrower's signature

A limited type of loan—$300 to $1,000—solely on the borrower's signature. It is of practical convenience for executives (senior or junior), professional men, and others who are in qualified borrowing circumstances.

We call this loan Self-Secured rather than "unsecured," "single name," "without collateral." For the borrower does give security when he gives his promise to pay—his word is his bond.

WORTH SOMETHING.

I hold some common stock of Eastern Texas Electric company. Can you tell me if this is worth anything?—K. N.

Answer: Eastern Texas Electric company, which was a subsidiary of Engineers Public Service company, was dissolved last year. A final liquidating dividend of $46 a share was paid to common stockholders of record Feb. 5, 1938. You should send your certificate, with a letter of transmittal, to Engineers Public Service company, 90 Broad street, New York, to receive your dividend.

POOR & CO.

I would appreciate a report on Poor & Co. What does this organization do?—D. S.

Answer: Poor & Co. is in the railroad equipment industry. It is engaged in the manufacture, purchase, and sale of railway supplies used in track maintenance and construction. It also makes commercial drop forgings and malleable castings.

The company reported a net loss in 1938 after four profitable years. Net income and earnings of a class B share in recent years:

	Net income.	Earned.
1934	$296,664	$ .16
1935	127,410	*.31
1936	418,497	.49
1937	827,285	1.59
1938	*203,439	*1.22

*Loss.

In the six months ended June 30, 1939, the company had an estimated net income of $382,000, or 72 cents a class B share, against an estimated net loss of $34,000 in the same period last year. The estimates are made by the company.

The company has a funded debt of $1,300,000 in 4 per cent debentures due 1946. There are 160,000 shares of $1.50 cumulative participating class A preferred, and 362,843 shares of class B common outstanding.

The class A is entitled to dividends of $1.50 a year. After the class B has received $1.50 a year class A is entitled equally with class B to an additional 50 cents a share on the class A. Dividend accumulations on the class A amount to $6.62 a share. Nothing has been paid on the class B since 1930.

Financial position is satisfactory. Current assets totaled $1,691,570 and current liabilities $337,397 at Dec. 31, 1938.

Practically all railroad equipment companies experience wide fluctuations in their business. They may have a great number of orders on hand or little or none. One year profits may be substantial, only to be followed by a loss the next year. Stocks of these companies have large price movements.

BANKING GROUPS ASK RIGHT TO BID ON COUNTY BONDS

Two banking groups have sent letters to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, asking that they be permitted to submit bids in any forthcoming bond sale of the county, it was learned yesterday. One letter was written on behalf of the largest downtown banks. The other was sent by about ten municipal bond houses.

The letters resulted from the county board's recent private placement of warrants aggregating $600,000. Illinois has no law requiring the public sale of general obligations of a government body. The city, the sanitary district and often the park district call for public bids on their issues.

Smith said the county was not planning to market an issue at present. On La Salle street it was reported a $2,000,000 issue of the county board was being prepared.

This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $1.52 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $100 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less, and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note, or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today.

Local Loan Gives You the Service You Want

75% of our loans are Signature Only Loans to employed men and women. LOCAL LOAN originated and perfected this salary loan service because the great body of employed people—young or old and regardless of occupation—are entitled to a simplified loan method.

Our aim is to offer you whatever plan will enable you to borrow most easily. LOCAL LOAN makes liberal Furniture and Auto Loans, but if you are steadily employed we prefer to make you a loan On Your Signature Only without mortgages or endorsers. You may borrow $25 to $300—

On Your Signature Only

You make your own repayment terms [repaying any time within 20 months], and you are charged only for the actual time you have the money.

When you deal with LOCAL LOAN you borrow without the knowledge of your employer, friends and relatives.

We cannot tell you all about our service in our advertisement. Just phone one of the following offices. Your loan request can be taken over the telephone so you can obtain the money more quickly when you call in person.
